

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF THE PAPERS.

The Collection of Treasury Papers, of which the following is the first portion of a calendar, consists of:—

- I. Such written applications as were from time to time presented to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury for recompense of services rendered to the State, for grants of moneys and pensions, appointments to offices, remissions of fines and duties, and for the relief which in various ways could be afforded by a Board having such extensive powers:
- II. The reports made to their Lordships by other boards of commissioners, or by individual officers, to whom, from their special knowledge, their Lordships referred the matters contained in those petitions or memorials; with these are joined affidavits, certificates, letters, and other documents in support of the applications:
- III. Schemes, estimates, accounts of expenses, and proposals of various kinds brought under their Lordships' consideration.

The papers described in this volume extend from the year 1556-7 to the year 1696.

They all fall under the great divisions DOMESTIC, IRISH, and COLONIAL, and comprise all the papers thought worthy of preservation by this administrative department, at least those which have come down to us. Although they relate to one department only, it was of all others the one which was continually brought into communication with almost every other; for as most transactions of Government required money for their accomplishment, those who were engaged in them could not proceed far without coming to the spring from which the money flowed, viz., the Treasury.

These papers have this advantage over private communications, that for the most part they are more intelligible. A petition to be laid before a board of commissioners for its deliberation would naturally be more carefully prepared than a hastily written communication from one friend to another; consequently it is rare to find their meaning obscure.

As to their value, the late Deputy Keeper of the Public Records, in his seventh report, p. 4, founding his observations on the report of Mr. Black (who had been deputed by the late Master of the Rolls, on 19th January 1842, to examine and report on the whole mass of Treasury Records), thus states:—

“They are of the highest historical interest and curiosity, throwing light on a variety of civil and political events; the progress of the Revenue, the Crown lands, the Colonies, the public transactions of the office, and many of the private affairs of persons of every class; and afford evidence of the rights, both of the Crown and of the subject, of a peculiar and very valuable description.”

The sixth report (dated 3rd June 1862) of the Committee appointed to examine, &c. the papers of the administrative departments of the Government, made to the Lords of the Treasury, states that these papers “teem with every variety of subject,” and that,—

"Every subject, whether of an administrative or fiscal nature, whether relating to public transactions or to private interests, [was] brought before the Board of Treasury, and consequently its documents must offer the richest mine of information on all subjects, pre-eminently above any other public office, whose business must necessarily be restricted to one special channel."

Exclusively of the information the papers themselves afford, they will often give a hint to the intelligent inquirer to search in various series of books of the Treasury now happily open to the public, such as letter, warrant, order, and money books, where further particulars may not unfrequently be found.

The petitions which were addressed to their Lordships, in addition to the dry details of the wants of the petitioners, frequently contain minute particulars nowhere else recorded; and although it may not unfairly be supposed that the petitioners made the best of their case, yet generally they stated the truth (at all events viewed from their side of it), knowing that before they obtained anything from their Lordships a searching investigation would be made.

The papers dated before the Revolution are not very numerous, and many of them are copies. One of the earliest original papers, as well as the most curious and interesting, is a petition of David de Grange, His Majesty's limner in Scotland, for 76*l.* for work done by him and delivered to persons of quality by the King. It will be found at length at p. xxiv. of this preface.

Of the copies, the one which stands first deserves special mention. It is a copy of a petition of John Dee, gent., bewailing the subversion of the religious houses and their libraries, and proposing to borrow such works as were valuable to have them copied. His scheme extended to the Vatican and other libraries on the continent, and he further proposed the erection of a library for the preservation of such works. (See Vol. I., No. 1.)

The following also deserve mention :—

- (1.) Papers relating to discoveries by Oates and others in 1678, as to the estates of the Jesuits (Vol. I., 45).

Oates' petition runs thus :—

“ Therefore yo<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> prays yo<sup>r</sup> Lop<sup>ps</sup> that hee may have leave to be heard before yo<sup>r</sup> Lop<sup>ps</sup>, and that yo<sup>r</sup> Lop<sup>ps</sup> would not dispose of any such money to Button or Savage or any other till heard by yo<sup>r</sup> Lop<sup>ps</sup>.

“ (Signed)      TITUS OTES.”

- (2.) Papers relating to the making of farthings and halfpence of tin and not of copper. (See Vol. I., 49.)

- (3.) Papers and letters of the Earl of Bath, 1686 to 1688, respecting the Stannaries in Cornwall and Devon, about which a Convocation or Parliament was held in the autumn of the year 1686, at Lostwithiel, the Earl of Bath having issued his precepts to the "four Cornish mayors," to choose their respective "Stannators." (See Vol. II., 16 and 17.) A similar convocation was to be held in Devonshire, and a further Parliament was held in 1688. There are several of these papers, and they contain important historical information touching the Stannaries, as well as the history of this country at a very critical period. In one, dated 23rd Oct. 1688 (Vol. II., 58), the Earl states that on the 11th of that month,

"the Convocation mett at Saltash according to their adjournment, when I thought we should have nothing to doe, but to signe the lawes, and ratify the agreement for the farme, which was before concluded of, and was in this meantime ordered to be engrossed; but instead thereof, I found the influence of the tymes* had soe wrought upon their tempers that some were growne peevish and suspitious, and started new jealousyes and difficultyes, which engaged them in disputes till Saturday afternoon."

The Earl further says His Majesty had commanded him to take care of the city of Exeter, and to raise some part of the militia, to secure the peace thereof, under such officers as he could put no confidence in. The present mayor, who was major of the militia of Exeter, was a person in whom he could place no confidence, as he had often faithfully acquainted His Majesty. The rest of the officers had tendered to the Earl their commissions, and desired to be excused from serving under him.

To a large extent the papers are capable of classification. The following would be some of the more prominent sub-

* William the Third landed at Torbay, 5th Nov. 1688, a few days after the date of this letter.

divisions in which they might be placed, viz., papers relating to—

Admiralty.	Navy.
Army or Paymaster.	Sick and wounded.
Customs.	Taxes.
Excise.	Transport.
Ireland.	Victualling.
Mint.

Many of the papers relate to the settlement of claims of military men, and this could hardly be otherwise in the time of William the Third, so large a portion of whose reign was given to war; but by far the largest class consists of reports of the Commissioners of Customs, rendered to the Lords of the Treasury, on petitions transmitted to them by command of their Lordships, in relation to questions arising out of the customs revenue. As they are so numerous they deserve special notice.

These reports of the Commissioners of Customs will be found to throw great light on the working of the navigation and other laws affecting imports and exports, on manufactures, on the exercise of patronage (ever a fruitful source of dissatisfaction, see Vol. IV., 63; V., 11 and Vol. XX., 42), and on the authority exercised by the Commissioners of Customs and Excise over their subordinates. (See Vol. III., 59; IV., 52; and V., 27.)

The Commissioners were often the means of softening the effect of the various enactments touching imports and exports, in fact they were the regulators which made it safe to work the engine under the high pressure put upon it.

The duty of both the Commissioners of Customs and the Lords of the Treasury evidently was to see that the revenue was made as productive as possible, but the rigid exaction of the law would have been, in many instances, manifest injustice. For example, an Act was passed raising the duty on certain goods, the additional duty to take effect after a given day; a merchant had goods of the species referred to in the Act consigned to him in ample time, in ordinary circumstances, to arrive before that day, but from adverse winds or other causes the ship did not complete her voyage until after the date, whereby the larger duty was incurred (see Vol. X., 24); or take another example, an Act was passed rendering it imperative that ships of this country should be navigated by at least three-fourths English sailors; the master of a vessel thereupon departed hence with his full number of English mariners, but whilst abroad his men ran away or died; as he must have a sufficient number of hands to navigate the vessel, he engaged foreigners, but when he returned to England the ship and cargo were, from such a casualty, forfeited. The Commissioners of Customs, under those circumstances, advised the Lords of the Treasury to grant relief, but in doing so respected the rights of the officer who seized the goods, to whom the petitioner had to make compensation for his share of the forfeiture.

It would appear from a report of 21st April 1692 (Vol. XVIII., 22), that the officers of the Royal Navy, who should have been the guardians of law, were a source of trouble to the Commissioners, for they report on some India goods imported from Holland contrary to the Navigation Act:—

“That it seems to us that the whole carriage of this buisnes (as well the importation from Holland as the conveyance up the ryver) was by some one of the ships of warr and the boates that attended her, for that the greatest part of the goods were found on board a hired ketch belonging to the ship Northumberland, and were brought on board the said ketch by the said ship’s pinnance, which gives us occasion again to reflect (as frequently we have been constrained to doe) upon the unwarrantable proceedings of the men-of-warr, and their ungovernable carriage in relation to the customes."

Again, in a presentment of 30th May 1696 (Vol. XXXVIII., 28), the Commissioners state that the carrying out of the kingdom the coined money and gold and silver bullion (which they had done what they could to prevent) was chiefly done by the men-of-war and yachts passing between England and Ireland and England and Holland.

* DUTIES OF THE TREASURY BOARD.

As these are materially illustrated in this body of papers they claim some attention.

The Commissioners appointed to inquire into the fees, gratuities, &c. received in the several public offices, reported, on 20th June 1786, that the business of the Board of Treasury was :

"To consider and determine upon all matters relative to Your Majesty's Civil List or other revenues ; to give directions for the conduct of all boards and persons intrusted with the receipt, management, or expenditure of the said revenues, to sign all warrants for the necessary payments thereout, and generally to superintend every branch of revenue belonging to Your Majesty or the public."

A century earlier they appear to have been much the same.

It has been ascertained that the following were the modes of proceeding adopted by their Lordships in the discharge of the duties committed to them.

On the presentation of a petition to their Lordships the usual course was to refer it to the particular department with which it was connected, or to some person whose special knowledge could guide them in coming to a proper decision : thus, if it were a matter affecting the payment of customs, they would refer it to the Commissioners of Customs, or, if a legal opinion were wanted, to the Attorney General. Similar endorsements to the following are common on the petitions:—

Upon such a reference as the above the Commissioners of Customs would take the petition and corroborative documents into consideration, and if they were satisfied as to the proper course to recommend, they would return a report to their Lordships, but if not, they sometimes took another step. They, in their turn, placed it in the hands of some one in whom they could confide, to make a report on the case. The papers were then returned to the Lords of the Treasury, and if there were no further difficulties attending the case their Lordships made an order as to what should be done.

This order or minute is often endorsed on the papers by the Secretary of the Treasury, and very frequently these minutes are the only record of what was done. This is more especially the case from March 1690 to April 1695, for the four volumes numbered 2 to 5 of the Minute Books (where some of these minutes might be recorded) are not known to be in existence.

Their Lordships held their sittings at the Treasury Chambers, Whitehall, until 4th January 1697, when those Chambers were burnt down; they then temporarily assembled at the house of Mr. Lowndes, “near the west end of the abbey in Westminster,” until the 17th of February (see Minute Book, Vol. VIII., p. 85, et seq.), when they removed to the Treasury Chambers at the Cockpit, for on that day there is the following note in the Treasury Minute Book, Vol. VIII., p. 112:—

"Mem<sup>d</sup>, on the 17th day of February 1697, the Lords Com<sup>rs</sup> of His Ma<sup>ty</sup> Trea[su]ry had their first sitting at the new office in the Cock pitt."

In the earliest Minute Book, 30th May 1667, it is stated :—

"That the ordinary times of the Lords Com<sup>rs</sup> meeting be upon Tuesdaies & Thursdaies at 3 of the clocke in the afternoon & upon Wednesday and Fryday at 8 in the morning."

In the year 1689, there are frequent instances in the Minute Book of their attending at eight o'clock in the morning.

An attempt was made by them to assign a day to particular duties, for in the Minute Book, Vol. VI., p. 303, 16th May 1696, is the following :—

"On Wednesday in every week, in ye afternoon, my Lords will read petitions, and ye dores to be shutt, none to come in unless Com<sup>rs</sup> of Excise or Customs be sent for."

Closely connected with the duties of their Lordships were the duties of their secretary, and the following order, entered in the earliest Minute Book (27 May 1667), illustrates them as well as the nature of the Treasury Minute Books :—

"Ordered that the Secretary Sr George Downing, Kn<sup>t</sup> & Baronet attending this Commission, should keepe a booke singly for registering the breife notes he should take for framing any orders upon, or pursuing other their Lopp<sup>s</sup> directions, w<sup>ch</sup> notes at their next meeting, and before they entered upon any new buisnes, he should acquaint them with, & what was done thereupon, and so from time to time what progresse was made, upon any directions then unperfected, that he should enter the names of the Com<sup>rs</sup> present at every meeting & constantly observe this method."

The minutes on the backs of these papers were principally made by Wm. Lowndes, even for some time before he was made Secretary to the Treasury. He also kept the Minute Book in 1695 and for many years afterwards. His appointment on 24th April is thus recorded (Minute Book, Vol. VI.) :—

“Mem<sup>d</sup>, this evening the King was graciously pleased to bestow on mee the place of Secretary to the Treasury, for wh<sup>ch</sup> I kisst his hand, and His Ma<sup>ty</sup> at the same time approved the table of fees for the office. W. LOWNDES.”

HISTORY OF THE PAPERS.

As regards the history of these papers, it may be gathered from what hereafter follows that they have been in a chronic state of confusion and disorder, and the wonder is that for the most part they are in a good state of preservation. There are, however, many of them which have suffered from damp.

They seem to have been difficult to produce in former as in more recent times from the following extract from a letter, dated 15th December 1696 (Vol. XLI., 53), of one David Williams to Mr. Glanville, respecting his two petitions which were lost or mislaid. He says :—

“I pray, good S<sup>rs</sup>, endeavour to find these two petitions, for we shall be undone if they are lost ; else lett Esq<sup>r</sup> Lowndes make me keeper of his petitions, & I will be bound in ten thousand pounds not one shall be lost while I live ; now I have waited above 3 quarters of a year, & now my petition is mislaid.”

These missing petitions of Williams will be found described in Vol. XLII., No. 42.

He also mentions that Mr. Charles Nevell's petition was not forthcoming.

When the Treasury Chambers (where the papers seem to have been kept), with other buildings, were burnt down the papers were rescued, see Minute Book, Vol. VIII., p. 85. The following is the entry :—

“Mem<sup>d</sup>, on the 4th day of January 1697 a fire happened in a private lodging near the stone gallery at Whitehall, at 3 or 4 of ye clock in the afternoon, w<sup>ch</sup> continued till 6 or 7 of ye clock in the morning, during w<sup>ch</sup> time the rooms of state, the King's chappell, the counsell chamber, the offices of the princip<sup>l</sup> Secy of State, the Treasury Chambers (w<sup>ch</sup> latter were blowne up about 9 of ye clock, after all ye books & material papers were preserved), and severall other buildings were consumed."

Henry Nelson was the first person specially appointed as keeper of the papers and books at the Treasury Chambers by Royal Sign Manual of 2nd June 1726. The papers and books were then described as being in bags and presses in a disordered condition for want of proper places to deposit them and fit and able persons to collect, sort, digest, and put them in order. See Notes of Materials for the History of Public Departments, 1846, p. 6.

Many of the papers have no doubt been lost, and on this subject Mr. Black in his report (printed in the Seventh Report of the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records, App. II., p. 22), gives the various reasons which discouraged him in entertaining the hope that documents would turn up from the time of the Restoration; he thus expresses himself:—

"First, that many of the papers in the loft were " examined, and the bundles broken up some years ago
" for the purpose of making a collection of 'Select
" Papers;' second, that a serious purpose was long
" entertained to destroy a large proportion of the old
" papers, and selections to a great extent were made
" with that view; and third, that the loft was, until " recently used as the laundry of the building, and the " disordered state of the papers piled up against the " stack of chimneys was such as led me to suspect
" that some of them had been taken to light the fires
" of the stove and copper boiler which formerly were " fixed there until they were deemed unsafe for the " building."

The abstraction or destruction of the earlier papers must have been great, for in the reign of James II. there are only about 50 or 60 remaining.

Mr. Black further says in relation to these papers (App. II., p. 23 to the above report),—

“ Before the civil wars the papers appear to have “ been either acted on and left in custody at the Ex“ chequer, or retained (as in the case of the Burghley “ Papers at Hatfield, and elsewhere) in the possession “ of the Lord Treasurer. After the Restoration, when
“ the Lord Treasurer, or the Commissioners representing “ him, had a permanent official place of business apart
“ from the Exchequer, all letters, memorials, petitions,
“ contracts, and other documents relative to Treasury “ business were lodged at the chambers and descended
“ to succeeding administrations.”

The principal part of the papers included in this calendar were removed from a back kitchen in the Treasury Chambers in June 1856.

On 25th August 1835 the Lords of the Treasury by their minute in relation to the Treasury Board Papers, ordered a selection of the useless papers to be made with a view to their destruction, and another minute of 1st February 1839 states that the operation of the Minute of 1835 was suspended after certain progress had been made. Their Lordships then ordered the Superintendent of the Registry and Record Department, to take immediate steps for carrying into effect the provisions of the former minute, viz., to make a selection of such as they deemed valueless, with a view to their destruction, in order to make room for modern accruing papers. This selection was carried on for a long period, and many were removed to the Record Office in 1846; there they remained until the years 1862 and 1863, when the Committee appointed to examine, &c. the records of the Administrative Departments of the Government again condemned the greater portion of them, upon which they were eventually destroyed.

The same committee advised the preservation of all the papers prior to the year 1700.

THE DATES OF THE DOCUMENTS.

Many petitions, unaccompanied by a report, as well as other documents, are without date, but they not unfrequently have one or more minutes on the back which are dated. The date which appears nearest that of the document is the one under which it is placed in the Calendar as an approximate date. Thus an undated petition may have been received on 1st January, read on the 3rd of the month, and nothing may have been done on it until the next month or the next year, and even sometimes until several years had passed. The date of the reception of the document would in that case be taken, failing that, the date of the reading, and failing both, the date of the minute.

The papers coming from abroad with a double date, being the old and new styles, are placed under the earliest, as if they had been written in England; thus  $\frac{1}{8}$ th October 1694 would be put under 16th October. They consist chiefly of letters from Mr. Blathwayt, Secretary-at-War. The names of the places where they are dated are also given, as (to some extent) furnishing materials for an itinerary of William the Third in his campaigns abroad.

If the following order in the Minute Book, of 20th April 1689, had always been acted on there would have been no difficulty as to the dates of the documents:—

“Order’d that when petitions are brought in, the day on w<sup>ch</sup> they are exhibited be entered on the back thereof.”

There are many enclosures not now with their papers relating to disbursements, the period of the accounts only being given; when they were rendered does not appear. In such cases they find their place in the Calendar under the last date.

THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE CALENDAR.

The Calendar has been prepared in accordance with the Instructions to Editors of Calendars, issued by the Master of the Rolls, as far as they are applicable to these papers, viz. :—

“The Master of the Rolls considers that, without superseding the necessity of consulting the originals, every Editor ought to frame his Calendar in such a manner that it shall present, in as condensed a form as possible, a correct index of the contents of the papers described in it. He considers that the entries should be so minute as to enable the reader to discover not only the general contents of the originals, but also what they do not contain. If the information be not sufficiently precise, if facts and names be omitted or concealed under a vague and general description, the reader will be often misled, he will assume that where the abstracts are silent as to information to be found in the documents, such information does not exist; or, he will have to examine every original in detail, and thus one great purpose will have been lost for which these Calendars have been compiled.

“As the documents are various, the Master of the Rolls considers that they will demand a corresponding mode of treatment. He therefore recommends the following rules :—

“1st. That all formal and official documents, such as letters of credence, warrants, grants, and the like, should be described as briefly as possible.

“2nd. That letters and documents referring to one subject only should be catalogued as briefly as is consistent with correctness. But when they contain miscellaneous news, such a description should be given as will enable a reader to form an adequate notion of the variety of their contents.

• • • • •

"5th. Striking peculiarities of expression, proverbs, manners, &c. are to be noticed.

"6th. Original dates are to be given at the close of each entry, that the reader may know the exact evidence by which the marginal dates are determined.

* * * * *

"8th. The number of written pages of each document is to be specified, as a security for its integrity, and that readers may know what proportion the abstract bears to the original.

"9th. The language of every document is to be specified. If, however, the greater part of the collection be in English, it will be sufficient to denote those only which are in a different tongue.

"10th. Where documents have been printed, a reference should be given to the publication.

"11th. Each series is to be chronological."

Following these instructions the general plan pursued, with papers which appeared to possess little interest, has been to shorten the description of them as much as was consistent with those instructions; but in cases where the papers are of considerable interest much fuller abstracts have been given.

It having been thought advisable by the Lords of the Treasury that the minutes to be found in the Minute Books should be added, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, a search was made through those books to the end of 1699, and the minutes touching upon any of these papers have been appended, and are a valuable addition to the Calendar.

In some instances where the paper calendared rendered it peculiarly desirable that what could be discovered in relation to it should be given, the Letter Books and Money Books have been searched and the information obtained from them has been also added to the Calendar, together with the reference where it might be found.

In an early stage of the progress of the Calendar a portion of it for one year was forwarded, with the sanction of the Master of the Rolls, to the Lords of the Treasury, who by their Secretary were pleased to approve of the plan adopted for its compilation.

Many of the papers which were originally inclosures had been separated from the reports to which they belong. It has been difficult in every instance to reunite them. The index, however, will prevent any inconvenience arising from their separation.

The papers will be found to furnish information, amongst other things, on—

Arts (Fine Arts).	Manufactures.

And extracts and copies of documents, as well as some remarks under these heads, are here given as showing more fully the nature of the papers.

ARTS (FINE ARTS).

The following interesting documents are given entire, as showing the treatment experienced by His Majesty King Charles the Second's limner, previously referred to in the general description of the documents, before the Revolution. (Vol. I., 25.)

His Majesty admits that the services of the petitioner were acceptable. He seems, however, to have allowed the old man to want, and had not paid him for his labour for 20 years, and even then did not promptly relieve his pressing necessities, but referred him to the Lords of the Treasury; whether he obtained anything from them has not been discovered.

Under this head attention may be drawn to a collection of paintings of the Earl of Melfort, secretary to King James II., who was outlawed for high treason; they were valued at 813*l.*, and there is an inventory of them. See February 10th, 1690-1, Vol. XIII., No. 7.

King William the Third declined to sign the warrant for the arrears of salary to Sir Godfrey Kneller, but signed one drawn by Mr. Blathwayt for his salary. See letter of the latter, dated at the "Camp at Becelaer, 17 June '95," Vol. XXXIII., No. 38.

Information on the history of the art of engraving and coining is afforded by a report of three officers of the Mint, dated 2nd July 1689 (Vol. IV., 25), as well as incidents in the life of the family of one of the principal engravers at the Mint. The following particulars are obtained:—The family of Roettiers, consisting of three brothers, had a patent as engravers for the Mint from the year 1669.* Of these three brothers, one removed to the Mint at Paris, and another to the Mint at Brussels; but the eldest, who was the best artist, remained in England. He contemplated retiring to Brussels in 1689, having lost the use of his right hand; he had however brought up two sons, who were proficient in their father's art, and had, without his assistance, engraved the great seal, and made the puncheons and dies for the coronation medals and for the coins of gold and silver which had hitherto been prepared. One of the sons (James, as appears by papers of a subsequent date to those in this Calendar,) continued in the employment of the Mint as engraver until 1697, when by order of a Committee of the House of Commons he had all his puncheons, dies, and tools seized, and was turned out of his house in the Tower, and the officers of the Mint sought their Lordships' directions as to whether the father should still be allowed a habitation there. On a reference to the Minute Book (Vol. VII., p. 93, 26th February 1696-7), it appears that Mr. Harris was to carry on the service, and Mr. Roettiers was to be turned out. James Roettiers shortly after petitioned their Lordships to grant an order to Mr. Harris and himself, that they might show the difference of their art.

BIOGRAPHY.

Valuable materials are afforded in these papers for the compilation of memorials of the lives of some of our public men. They tell many a tale of sorrow and of hope deferred, and many an incident, long forgotten, which looked at from this distance may not be much heeded, but which at the time to the persons concerned was of considerable moment.

There are various notices of Isaac (afterwards Sir Isaac) Newton. Amongst them is one complaining to the Lords of the Treasury that his salary was only 400*l. per ann.* with a house of 40*l. per ann.*, and his perquisites only 3*l.* 12*s. per ann.* for fee coals; and that it was insufficient to support his office. That of the master and worker was 500*l.*, with a house and great perquisites; also that the duties were increased, &c. The following was their Lordships' minute thereon. (See Vol. XXXVIII., 48.)

"Read, 16 June '96. My Lords at the end of the coynage will give him a consideration ext<sup>ra</sup>, suitable to his trouble & proportionable to the increase allowed to the other officers for this extra coynage. But this to be done out of ye coynage mo[ney]."

The oath taken by him not to reveal the new invention of rounding the money and making the edges of "them with letters or grainings," is among these papers, dated 2nd May 1696. (Vol. XXXVII., 53.)

Amongst the men of his day perhaps few were more fully occupied or displayed more ability in their profession and good sense out of it than Sir Christopher Wren. He was required to give his opinion on the building progressing at Hampton Court in the year 1689, which the King thought was in a bad condition. Sir Christopher suggested that they should have the opinion of practical unbiassed men, "bricklayers, carpenters, and masons who had left off their aprons." There was evidently a professional quarrel on this subject between him and a Mr. Tallman, another officer of the works. Their Lordships thought they would never agree, one would say one thing and the other another (Vol. VI., 37). An angry petitioner complains of Sir Christopher not returning certain drafts, and being himself impotent to do him much harm, he magnifies the "contempt" of Sir Christopher to His Majesty and his disobedience and "insolence" to the Board (Vol. VII., 78).

Sir Christopher complains in a petition reported on about the 13th of July 1691, (Vol. XIV., No. 55) that he had spent the greater part of his life in the service of the Crown faithfully and laboriously and had not served himself. The report on his petition shows that there was 2,213*l.* 12*s.* 4*d.* due to him, viz., for five years' allowance at 325*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.* per ann., for his riding charges when he travelled, at 7*s.* 10*d.* a day, for his salary out of the Exchequer, at 45*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* per ann. for four years, 182*l.* 10*s.*, and 25*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.* out of the Great Wardrobe. It is stated that he had no other fees, that the riding charges, settled in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, were not a third part of the charge of that age, and the livery from the wardrobe was the same as was allowed in the reign of Henry VIII. Also that the office was a place of skill, trust, and perpetual attendance.

There can be no doubt that the office of Secretary to the Treasury was one of a very onerous character. It was ably filled by Mr. Lowndes, who was admitted to it on 24th April 1695, as previously stated. He appears to have been employed in the Treasury as early as 1679, and perhaps earlier (see Vol. I., 33). The fees of the persons employed in the Treasury were settled monthly, and Mr. Lowndes' share of them in 1696 approached to 2,400*l.* (Vol. XLII., 13), and he perhaps occasionally received presents for special services, when he lent a helping hand to those whose affairs required it with their Lordships; at least Mr. Charles Thomas on 24th July 1696 (Vol. XXXIX., 17), writing from Barbados, thanks him for the favour done him in getting his patent to be receiver general of the casual revenue in that island, and he adds, that he had sent a few sweetmeats in the "Bristol," and had designed to send him all sorts of sauces of that country, but the fleet sailed so soon. He would, however, send them by the next. Mr. Lowndes occupied the office until his death, which occurred on 20th January 1723-4, as appears by the Treasury Fee Book.

COINAGE.

There are many papers bearing on the state of the coin which, previous to the measures which were taken in 1695, was in very bad condition. The Commissioners of Excise, on 13th October 1696, state (Vol. XL., 42) that they—

“had directed their collectors and receivers in the countrey, not to be scrupulous in receiving such puncht money as the late Act for remedying the ill state of the coyne describes and allowes of, since which severall of the said collectors have advised us that, pursuant to y<sup>e</sup> said directions, and to prevent the clamours of the people, and for the clearing their arreares, have received for the duties of excise, severall sūmes in sixpences, not clipt within the innermost ring, and shillings and halfe-crownes, that have the greatest part of the letters, which they cannot get to passe from them in payment for bills of exchange or otherwise, whereupon they directed them to make affidavitts, that the money soe received by them are (sic) the very same money they soe received for y<sup>e</sup> duties of excise, & that they made noe advantage or profit thereby to themselves, and to send up the same in specie, sealed up, numbered, and weighed, to y<sup>e</sup> Excise Office, which they have accordingly done, and the said moneys having bin refused to be received by the cashire generall as lawfull money, now lye deposited in the Excise Office.”

And they prayed their Lordships' directions.

The following report of the Commissioners for the Revenue (Ireland), dated 19th June 1696, inclosed in one by the officers of the Mint of 4th July 1694 (Vol. XXVIII., 65), also shows the state of the coinage in that country :—

“May it please your Lordpp<sup>s</sup>.

“Since ours of the 5th of May, wherein we laid before your Lordpp<sup>s</sup>, the last Lady day quarter's account, there has arose a great inconvenience by the refusall of the white halfpence and farthings, occasioned by their not passing in England.

“This has given a great disturbance to the revenue, arising by the hearth money and inland excise, in which the poorer sort are most concern'd, who generally make their payments in white, or copper halfpence. The people begin to scruple copper halfpence; if they should also be refused, or a failure in changing them, the revenue will suffer greatly.

“The plate mony has for some time been sent away privately into England to save exchange, by which means scarce any silver is left, except ducatoons at 6<sup>s</sup> a piece, and all payments under them are generally made in halfpence, and not so many of these ducatoons left, as amount to a sufficient cash to maintain a trade.

"The guineas are the chief coyne in which payments are now generally made for customs and quit-rents. They pass here at 23<sup>s</sup> a piece. We are inform'd they are currant in England at 22<sup>s</sup> or thereabouts. Exchange is lowe here at present, but if (for want of an export trade) it should rise, the guineas will also soon be gone.

"The poor people in the country that have no otherwaies to support themselves and familys than by brewing and selling ale by retayle add very considerably to the exise, yet are seldom able to change a ducatoon or cobb upon the spending of a 1<sup>s</sup> or 18<sup>d</sup>, by which it's evident that a small coyn to be made currant here, by public authority, would be of great use.

"We therefore submit it to your Lordps consideration, whither the value of fifty thousand pounds of silver mony, consisting of threepences, groats, and sixpences, may be coin'd for the use of this kingdom, at the rate of £10 per cent. under the standard, which we hope would in a great measure obviate the mischief we apprehend may fall on the revenue for want of convenient change.

"Custom House, Dublin, 19 June 1694."

There is also a paper relating to standard pieces of gold and silver which were wanted for the mint in Scotland, dated 7th April 1687 (Vol. II., 29).

COLONIES.

Among the papers relating to the colonies is a letter of Col. Stede, who was receiver of the casual revenue of Barbadoes, in which he says there had been such a plentiful crop of all things which the island produced, that it was of little value for want of conveyance to send it to market. It must be shipped off whenever ships could be had, for it was not possible to consume any considerable portion of it there. The letter affords other interesting matter. (See 19th Sept. 1690, Vol. X., No. 11.)

The merchants inhabiting New York set forth that that colony had been under the government of England, since 1664, ever looking on themselves as free-born subjects of England, and they had defended themselves against all attempts of the French. The report of the Commissioners of Customs on their petition, dated 9th April 1691 (Vol. XIII., 52), expressed the opinion that they should have the like privileges with natural-born subjects, and not be called to pay alien duties; which recommendation was agreed to.

An interesting paper under date 25th November 1691 (Vol. XVI., 20.) will be found entitled "A discourse how " to render the plantations [of America] more beneficial
" and advantageous to this kingdom."

FINANCE.

The finances in the reign of William the Third were in such a deplorable condition that the wonder is that the affairs of Government could have been carried on. Any one studying the Treasury Papers of this reign must come to the conclusion that a more difficult task could not be assigned to any set of men than was imposed upon such bodies as the Commissioners for sick and wounded seamen, the Navy, Ordnance, and other boards, having large payments falling due, and little or no money with which to meet them. The urgent memorials from those boards are too frequent and too circumstantial to be considered exaggerated. Poor sick seamen and prisoners were continually in imminent danger of starving in the streets, for lack of money to pay the "quarterers," and this continued through months and years. A glance at the index under "Sick and wounded" will fully bear out these remarks.

The memorialists had so often pleaded the abject state of poverty of the creditors to the Crown without any result, that on one occasion they tried the effect of a little mixture of grim pleasantry. They state that one of those applying for relief was reduced to that low ebb, that (if not kindly prevented) he would in mere despair of receiving his share have "liquidated all his accounts in the river of Thames." (See 30th August 1692, Vol. XIX., 40.)

In another they state as follows, viz. :—

"That unless we be enabled to pay the 470*l.* 14*s.* 4*d.* to clear the arrears of the Savoy (with which your Lordships have been so often troubled) and we dayly perplexed, severall of the poor people to whom it is due, do protest they will lay their children at our doors." (See 28th September 1692, Vol. XIX., 62.)

The miserable state of arrears of these Government departments was participated in by a large body of individuals who had the misfortune to be employed by the State. A very curious document entitled, "An Account of Fees and Salaries payable by his late Majesty, with the sums due thereupon at Xmas 1701," fully bears out these remarks, and will be found in an appendix to Mr. Hardy's preface to the Syllabus of Rymer's Fœdera.

It would appear from some of the petitions that the Lords of the Treasury did not always keep faith with the contractors for various supplies, for they complain that they were solemnly promised ready money for their articles, and could only obtain tallies, which had to be discounted at a fearful loss; but this by no means proves that the promises were not made in good faith.

The following is a specimen of how their Lordships' orders to pay were sometimes honoured (Vol. XXVI., 60) :—

"My Lords,

"Dublin, March ye 6th, '93.

"I brought a letter from yo<sup>r</sup> L<sup>ds</sup> to the Lords Justices, directing them to pay mee two yeares pay on the acco<sup>t</sup> of my arrears as brigadier, w<sup>ch</sup> I see firmly relyed upon that I made use of most part of ye 4 months pay w<sup>ch</sup> I receaved at London for my officers, and proposed to satisfye them out of my pay as brigadier, w<sup>ch</sup> by yo<sup>r</sup> L<sup>ds</sup> letter I expected I was imediately to receave heare, there Lordpp<sup>s</sup> positively tell mee they have not money to answer any part of yo<sup>r</sup> Lordpp<sup>s</sup> directions in that matter; I must therefore most humbly beg yo<sup>r</sup> Lordpp<sup>s</sup> farther and speedy directions in that perticuler, otherwise I shall be utterly disabled, boath myselfe and officers, to performe the service His Ma<sup>tie</sup> may expect from us. W<sup>t</sup> favo<sup>r</sup> yo<sup>r</sup> Lordpp<sup>s</sup> will bee pleased to sho in removeing this present disapointm<sup>t</sup> shall ever bee most thankfully acknowledged by me, who am,

“ My Lords,

“ Your Lordshipes’ most humble and obedient servant,

In 1694 the officers of the royal regiment of horse under the command of the Earl of Oxford were paid part of their arrears in tallies, which they had to part with at 25 and 30 per cent. loss. (Vol. XXX., 19.)

In a memorial of the officers of ordnance, dated 27th June 1694 (Vol. XXVIII., 59), is the following:—

“ The condition of our gunmakers is such as it well deserves some short memoriall by itselfe. By the encouragement yo<sup>r</sup> Lordspp<sup>s</sup> gave them of 500*l*. weekly paym<sup>ts</sup>, they were so well supported, whilst y<sup>e</sup> same continued, as that (depending thereon), they lookt upon themselves as perticularly provided for, but y<sup>t</sup> course of paym<sup>t</sup> haveing bin so interrupted y<sup>t</sup> they have in the whole not yet rec<sup>d</sup> more then 16,000*l*. in part of 30,000*l*. promised by yo<sup>r</sup> Lordspp<sup>s</sup>, and they having since entered into new contracts wth our office, and thereupon delivered great quantitys of armes, whereby their debt is now prodigiously encreased, they are reduced to the utmost extreimity imaginable, many of them being throwne into prison, and divers more forced to leave their habitations and abscond y<sup>m</sup>selves for debt; we must therefore earnestly intreat yo<sup>r</sup> Lordspp<sup>s</sup> to take their condition into serious consideration, and renew the said weekly payment for the uture, and likewise advance them at least 100,000*l*. in part of their arrears, w<sup>ch</sup> possibly may keep their company together in this so necessary service, w<sup>thout</sup> w<sup>ch</sup> their Maj<sup>ties</sup> must have armes from abroad; the great ill consequence w<sup>ch</sup> must attend the not supporting these poore people is a sufficient argum<sup>t</sup> by itselfe to induce yo<sup>r</sup> Lordspp<sup>s</sup> consideration of their circumstances.”

In another, dated 25th September 1694 (Vol. XXIX., 39), they finish by saying :—

“ Your Lordships have bin alwaies so kind as to pardon our troublesome addresses, when their Ma<sup>ties</sup> affaires have not permitted you to assist us, but we are now brought to such a pinch, in point of credit, for carrying on our business, that a small chiding and a round sum wou<sup>ld</sup> please us better.”

Mr. Blathwayt writes by the King's command from Breda, on 4th June 1696, N.S. (Vol. XXXVIII., 22.), that our credit in those countries was so very low, and the wants of the army so great, that unless their Lordships sent a speedy supply for the forces they must infallibly come to ruin.

It must have been utterly discreditable to a Government to allow persons in its employ to remain for long periods, without payment for their services. That they did so remain, will be seen in what follows.

Mr. Aaron Smith, the Treasury solicitor, and a very busy man, as is apparent by the frequent notices of him, complains on 21st June 1694 (Vol. XXVIII., 46.) that his credit had become bankrupt, he had no money and was in most miserable condition without it, and his salary was above three years in arrear.

John Phelips, Esq., one of the seven auditors of the revenue, had received no salary for 15½ years. (See Vol. XXXI., 43.)

The birds and beasts in St. James's Park were fed for seven years by William Story, who received nothing all that time for their food or his salary. He claimed 511*l.*, and perhaps was glad to get the 200*l.* ordered him in full of all demands. (See Vol. XXXI., 47.)

The persons employed for the “ extraordinary service ” about the King's gardens had waited for payment for their work and for goods supplied above six years. (See Vol. XLII., No. 570.)

to look about for some one in trouble whose lands or goods were forfeited, or who were fined as Popish recusants, and having made themselves masters of the particulars, to apply to the Treasury to allow their claim to be taken out of the lands or goods. Rymer's case (see Vol. XXVIII., No. 10) is one of several, and has been especially alluded to in Mr. Hardy's preface to the Syllabus of Rymer's Fœdera before mentioned.

It is not within the province of this preface to discuss the question of the desirability of a national debt as a means of consolidating a government by attaching to it a large number of persons who have a money stake in the due administration of the laws, and who would naturally prefer rulers who would keep faith with them to those who, having nothing to lose, would be glad of anarchy and confusion in order to gain something in the scramble; but a funded debt appears to have become a question of necessity rather than of desirability. Under the circumstances, an honourable nation having been supplied with the various commodities needful to carry on expensive wars, which had been undertaken by its rulers with its own consent, was driven to entail a debt upon posterity which no taxation short of confiscation, could pay off at once.

It will be seen above that the different departments were put to considerable inconvenience, in fact, they were at their wits' end to provide for the public service. The clever Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Montague, solved the difficulty by the expedient of exchequer bills and public credit was systematized and came to play a far more important part in our finance than it had hitherto done.

HISTORICAL NOTICES.

The following affidavit relates to the preparations that were making by the French fleet, which was afterwards engaged at Bantry Bay. It was made 1st May 1689 by the master of a ship at Southampton, who swears that he came out of Camerit in France, on 28th April, where—

“Hee, with all the English that were there and at Brest, were deteyned 7 daies untill such time as the French fleet, consisting of 20 saile of capital ships, 7 fire ships, and 7 victualers and tenders, should be ready to saile, as all these reported and pretended, for Ireland; hee farther maketh oath that hee was at Brest, and saw the said fleet, and believes they carried off about one thousand Irish souldiers, and that Friday the 27<sup>o</sup> of Aprill he saw the said fleet put to sea, the wind being then at east, and supposes they sailed for Ireland.” (See 7th May 1689, Vol. III. No. 34.)

In a letter dated Guernsey, 15th May 1689, from Andrew Cotton, commander of the “Charlotte” yacht, to the Commissioners of Admiralty, after the fight, at Bantry Bay, he states:—

“The news that I hear is that y<sup>e</sup> French fleet that was at Ireland got into Brest on the 8th or 9th inst, but very much batter’d, and they say all y<sup>e</sup> ships in France is fitting out, & they will have 40 saile out of y<sup>e</sup> Mediterranean; it is likewise said that y<sup>e</sup> French has taken 5 Dutch West Indiamen that came from Cuiresoe, also a very rich Spaniard that came from Portabello; likewise there is between 40 or 50 sail fitting out of St<sup>t</sup> Maloes, from 10 guns to 40 guns, all to cruize (cruise) y<sup>e</sup> Channell, but if there was 10 saile of good friggetts, 3 fire ships, and 2 boom vessells, I would not question but to destroy there ships and burn there town.” (See 25th May 1689, Vol. III., No. 55.)

The petition of Gideon Godet, a French Protestant refugee, is not without interest. He states that he had served three different envoys extraordinary of the crown in the court of France as French secretary. He enumerates several spies and pensioners he had detected, viz., Christian, a spy who received 100 crowns a month from Mons. Louvois [Secretary of State to the King of France], who was seized on the petitioner’s information, and his papers deciphered; the Chevalier de Beaujen; Mazot;

“ an English gentleman (whose name must be concealed),
 “ who received a pension from France;” and the Jesuit Abercrombe, going from France into Scotland. (See Circa, 7th June 1623, Vol. XXII., No. 46).

Among the letters which incidentally contain news is one of 21st November 1694 (Vol. XXX., 57), of Mr. John Taylor [of London, merchant], to Henry Guy, Esq., at the Treasury Chamber. It states :—

“ This week arriv'd here [? London] a fleet of Sweeds ships from Gottenbro, where they left Sr Cloudesly Shovell the 9th inst<sup>t</sup>, with about 70 sayl of ships under his convoy, he having 3 or 4 days before receiv'd orders from the King to join the Dutch fleet, w<sup>ch</sup> consisted of between 3 & 400 sayl, & were at Elsinure wth 8 or 9 frigatts; these ships say that Sr Cloudsly did imediatly send a leuten<sup>t</sup> to hasten the Dutch to him; & they suppose that they joynd in 24 hours after their departure; the winds having been favourable & continuing so, we hourly expect their arrivall, these ships tell me they did not see one privateer in their voyage.”

This must have been some time after the unsuccessful expedition against Dunkirk, referred to by Schomberg in his Naval Chronology, Vol. I., p. 92, who says :—

“ Early in September Sir Cloudesley Shovel received instructions to undertake an expedition against Dunkirk,” &c.

IRELAND.

Various petitions for recompense of services rendered in Ireland at the time of the reduction of that country to the rule of William the Third will be found among this collection, as well as others on behalf of Protestants who sought to possess themselves of the estates of the Papists.
 The readiest means of satisfying the claims of the petitioners seems to have been to encourage them to present to the Lords of the Treasury lists of estates belonging to Papists, which had previously not been discovered, whereupon their Lordships appear to have dealt out the lands to them.

Among the documents more particularly worthy of notice is one showing the condition of Londonderry, dated 28th June 1691 (Vol. XIV., No. 47), and another showing the sufferings endured whilst the struggle was going on in that country. Sarah Butler, widow, complained that she had lost her husband and three sons at the fights of "Agrum and Arklone;" that the French and Irish kept garrison in her house nine months, and burnt it when they could keep it no longer; they took her daughter, about 14 years of age, cut her hair off, and afterwards killed her, and when she came to the child's rescue, they cut her in three places and took her prisoner to Limerick, where they kept her 15 months; she sought for payment of arrears due to her husband and sons. Her papers to prove her claims were lost, but Mr. Fox was ordered to pay her 5*l*. (See 2nd November 1693, Vol. XXIV., 59.)

An allowance of 40*s*. was made to Mr. Savage, the clerk of the Crown, for each person outlawed. Viscount Sydney, the Lord Lieutenant, thought this incentive to the industry of that official had lasted long enough, for on 24th October 1692, he informed the Lords of the Treasury that he had put a stop to it, as there were already 4,000 persons outlawed, and the number was daily increasing; and a great part, if not the greatest, of that number consisted of people so poor that there would not come 40*s*. a man from their forfeitures to the Crown; and yet there must be so much paid the officer for that service for each of them. (See Vol. XX., 14.) The Lords of the Treasury however granted him a custodiam of lands until he should receive 4,000*l*. (See 21st October 1696, Vol. XLI., 3.) The Lords Justices also represented his case on the 20th March 1698-9, and recommended him for a pension, and stated that the number outlawed amounted to 5,373 ; but there is a minute of 1st November 1699 that the King was not pleased to grant him a pension.

A petition under date 19th October 1694 (Vol. XXX., 1), states that the "septs" of the "Brenans" was very numerous, and a great terror to the English inhabitants in Ireland, and frequently committed many great robberies and "murthers," and they were in arms for the late King James. They seem more particularly to have been connected with the county of Kilkenny.

There are various papers in the years 1694 and 1695 relating to the affairs of Mr. Francis Babe, who had been appointed to the office of surveyor-general of Ireland, then deposed, and afterwards reinstated. He made various complaints against the Commissioners of Revenue in Ireland, and more particularly against Mr. Carlton, one of that body (whom he charged with carrying on a trade with France), and there are many interesting particulars of the proceedings of the Commissioners in relation to him. They characterize him as a man void of all sincerity, and only bent upon mischief. He was reprimanded on his knees in the Irish House of Commons for a breach of privilege.

In a report, dated 5th July 1695, of the Lord Lieutenant as to the state of the forfeitures, he says that upon inquiry into the books kept by the Commissioners of the forfeited estates, it was found all things were in disorder; that the Commissioners of Inspection had not taken due care in preparing rent rolls or regular charges to the collectors; that they had called few if any of the collectors or sub-commissioners to account in a right manner; that they had generally allowed all encumbrances upon the forfeited estates, without inquiry whether any part of them was paid; that they had set few leases under the Exchequer Seal, as their Commission directed; and that, in effect, their chief business had been to get in their own salaries. It appeared they had received of the King's money 1,800*l.*, of which they paid themselves 1,700*l.* He recommended the Commission to be superseded. (See Vol. XXXIV., No. 8.)

Historical particulars of the campaign in Ireland in 1688 and 1689 are found in papers touching a proposed grant of the forfeited estate of Dudley Bagnall, Esq., to Sir James Caldwell. (See 7th December 1695, Vol. XXXV., 25.)

The Lord Lieutenant reports, on 24th March 1695-6 (Vol. XXXVII., 4), that the forts and fortifications were generally out of repair, the guns unmounted, the palisadoes wanting, and some of the breaches not sufficiently made up; and other works, especially for Galway, had been begun but not finished.

There are numerous lists scattered through the Irish papers of forfeited properties in Ireland, showing the names of the proprietors, the denomination of the property, the quit-rents, &c., after the reduction of that country.

LAW.

These papers eminently illustrate the working of various legal enactments, more particularly such as related to revenue. The prayer for a nolle prosequi is frequent in the petitions.

A paper of 20th February 1694-5 (Vol. XXXII., 33), shows the manner of renewal of a 40 years' lease from the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, near Rochester, Kent.

In a paper dated 12th April 1693 (Vol. XXI., 73), (more fully noticed under the head Travelling at p. lii.), it is stated that the hundred in which a robbery had been committed was discharged [from its liability to make good the amount stolen] by the capture of one of the robbers, who was shot.

In a similar robbery the hundred of Broadwater was sued for 776*l.* (the money lost). The matter being referred to Chief Justice Treby, he awarded 520*l.* to the [plaintiff]. (Vol. XXXIX., 35.)

There is an opinion illustrative of the King's right to derelict land, and how the lord of the manor might have the same by prescription, in the report of Sir Edw. Ward, the Attorney General, dated 4th August 1684. (Vol. XXIX., 5.) On this subject see an amusing account of the taking an inquest (the jury for which were drunk) to ascertain whether certain land in Sussex was derelict or not (Minute Book, Vol. VII., pp. 230–234). Amongst the assertions made is:—"Mr. Northey (afterwards Attorney General) saies it is not derelict land unless y<sup>e</sup> sea flows " and re-flows every tide." (See also the paper for 15th August 1696, Vol. XXXIX., 39.)

Bells could not be exported from this country by Stat. 33 Hen. VIII. c. 7, and 2 & 3 Edw. VI. c. 37, and so the Lords of the Treasury were memorialized to allow one to be sent to Barbadoes. In particular cases permission had been granted, and in this case their Lordships assented to the prayer of the memorialist. (See October 1694, Vol. XXX., 24.)

MANUFACTURES.

A presentment of 28th June 1689 (Vol. IV., 19,) contains information on the manufacture of tobacco from that of German growth, with some leaves of Virginian to cover and wrap over it. There were principally two sorts of rolled tobacco, one bright and fair and made up with little moisture, the other very dark and mixed with great quantity of syrups.

In a proposal for the prevention of frauds in the shipment of tobacco, supposed to be about the year 1694 (Vol. XXXI., 23), is the following :—

“ In December 1693 there was a great quantitie of haye and horse dung spun together at a place called Minehead, near Bridgewater, in imitation of tobacco, and there shipt off by debenter as tobacco, but was afterwards accidentally detected by an officer of the Customs.”

An undated petition, placed at the end of 1694, shows that the potters, or manufacturers of painted earthenware, considered their craft in danger by the importation of “ delph ” redwares or counterfeit china wares and gally tiles. (See Vol. XXXI., 58.)

PATRONAGE, &c.

The following particulars have been principally gleaned from presentments and reports of the Commissioners of Customs, and are illustrative of the exercise of patronage, and of the authority of the Commissioners over their subordinates.

On the 8th of August 1689 they present that they were surprised to receive two warrants to establish two persons in place of two surveyors of the landwaiters, without any charge made against them since their approval by the Board, which left the Commissioners in suspense as to naming others. The dismissal of these persons from their employment, after their approval by the Board, which was always looked upon as the immediate judge of the officer's behaviour, occasioned much discouragement and might prejudice their Majesties' service, by setting them loose from their dependence on the Board, whose business it had always been to instruct and direct, as well as to punish and correct them, by suspension, dismissal, or otherwise. The choice of the officers was one of the most essential parts of the duty of the Commission. All former Commissions had the power of constituting as well as dismissing the officers until the year 1671 (and the Commissioners of Excise still retained the same authority), and though this Commission obtained warrants from the Lords of the Treasury for the constitution of deputed officers, yet the general course had been not to grant such warrants except upon the presentment or approbation of this Board. (See Vol. IV., 52).

The method of examination as well as the number of candidates for a vacancy is here illustrated (22nd August 1689, Vol. IV., 63) :—

“ In obedience to your Lordpp<sup>s</sup> comands, signified to us by Mr. Jephson by his letter of the 21th instant, for the reason of our displacēing Mr. Francis White, wee humbly acquaint yo<sup>r</sup> Lordpp<sup>s</sup>, that having before us the examination of about 30 landwaiters that were in possession, and of about 200 petitioners, that were referred unto us by your Lordpp<sup>s</sup>, for vacancys in the said place ; although wee did call before us every one of the said persons, as well those in possession as those that were petitioners, and did examine the fitness or defects of the one, as well as the quallificaçon of the other ; yet the numbers being soe great, we could not set downe the distinct character of each, but having taken our owne private notes upon each person, as the examination past, the Board agreed in their dissatisfaction as to Mr. Francis White ; and that was the ground of their presentment for his being dismist.”

* * * * *

[One Mr. Pollard was recommended for the first vacancy.]

In the Minute Book of 4th Sept. 1689 is shown the manner in which the Board of Customs exercised its patronage :—

“ His Ma<sup>tie</sup> was pleased to tell their Lor<sup>s</sup> he had received information that many places in the custom house were sold, and that the Com<sup>rs</sup> of the Customs did take their turns in disposing of places vacant ; and order’d their Lor<sup>s</sup> to enquire into this matter, and to take the best care to prevent such practices, and that the persons to be presented by the Com<sup>rs</sup> for places should be agreed upon at that Board by the majority : these & no particular commissioner to have a nomination by turne, as His Mat<sup>ie</sup> had been inform'd they have of late practiz'd."

The answer to this charge is amongst these papers (Vol. V., 11), and is here subjoined :—

"May it please your Lordpp<sup>s</sup>,

"Wee being greatly sencible of the reflections which have been cast upon our management before His Mat<sup>ie</sup>, wherewith your Lordpp<sup>s</sup> were pleased to acquaint us at our last attendance on your Lordpp<sup>s</sup>, which seeme to draw in question as wel the integrity as the discretion of our conduct ; and having since, by your Lordpp<sup>s</sup> order, received from Mr. Jephson a paper conteyning part of what your Lordpp<sup>s</sup> were pleased to signify to us, wee take ourselves obliged to offer something in vindication of ourselves, and the method of our proceedings, and crave leave humbly to animadvert upon the whole matter, as followeth :—

"That by the law it is so penal to buy or sell any offices in the Customs, that it not only incurre a forfeiture of the office, but also an incapacity, in the person offending, for any other office in the revenue ; but the imputa<sup>co</sup>n of this kind now charg'd upon the whole Commission, is too gen<sup>l</sup> to affect any one of the Comm<sup>rs</sup>, who doubtless (if guilty) would bee unworthy of that trust.

"The inference that is made from the method of offering persons (to fill up vacancies) by the Comm<sup>rs</sup> in turns (as if that should give opportunity for the selling of offices if any of the Com<sup>rs</sup> should incline so to doe) will not bee found unanswerable, when it shall bee considered that this method has been in use many yeares in King Charles's time, and since, without any such inconvenience ptended hitherto. And it was designed for the King's service in gen<sup>l</sup>, by saving the time of the Board (taken up daily with things that relate to the more urgent and weighty parts of their management), and in particular, by alotting a share equally to each Comm<sup>r</sup> of the care and difficulty of finding out persons fitly qualifed to supply the vacancies that happen ; in judging whereof, each one of them takes himself ingaged to bee very cautious, least on the future miscarriage or unfitness of such officer (discovered on tryall) the Comm<sup>r</sup> that propos'd him to the Board (which is registred) bee rendered in some sort lyable to the censure of the rest. And it is to bee observed, that a single Comm<sup>r</sup> hath only the care of finding out and proposing the person to the Board; and he is never presented to the Lords of the Treasury but by the agreement and approba<sup>o</sup>n of the Board, after a competent inquiry into the qualification of the person.

"Now each Comm<sup>r</sup> may reasonably bee supposed to concerne himself for the service of the revenue, and for the honor of the whole Cōmission, as wel as for his owne, and it is not probable that the management can go on well (without which the King's service must suffer), or that they can bee able to give a good account of the trust, unlesse able and fitting officers bee employed under them; so that it is the interest of each of them, and of all together, to procure such. But after all, though it hath been heretofore judged for His Ma<sup>ties</sup> service, and long practiced, yett if His Ma<sup>ties</sup> shall not thinke fitt to approve thereof, but shall direct any other method, the Com<sup>rs</sup> are very ready to submit to His Ma<sup>ty</sup> pleasure therein.

"All which is humbly submitted to your Lordpps considera<sup>o</sup>n.

"G. BOOTH.

"JO. WERDEN.

"ROBT. CLAYTON.

"J. WARD.

"Custom House, London,
17th Septemb<sup>r</sup> 1689."

(Indorsed.)

"17th September 1689.

"Presentment from the Com<sup>rs</sup> of the Customs in vindication of their method of proceeding in putting in officers each in his turn, &c."

"For the King.

"The King cōmands that the Com<sup>rs</sup> Customs shall not present to places vacant in their turns, but by the majority of the Board, according to His Ma<sup>ties</sup> comands at Hampton Court the 4th Sept 1689.

"See the minute of that day."

On 16th October 1689 the Commissioners state that it was one of the standing rules of the Board "to advance those who have well deserved in an inferior station."
(See Vol. V., 27.)

The Commissioners of Ordnance give their opinion that a petitioner, one John Harris, having applied himself in the manner he had done after a refusal to appoint him, was the highest contempt imaginable put on them. (See 12th Dec. 1692, Vol. XX., 42.)

On the 19th of October 1692 (Vol. XX., 9) the Commissioners of Customs state that—

“The constant opinion and practice of this Board has been by all meanes to discountenance and discourage any private agreement for the surrendering or obteyning any of the places upon the establishment, that y<sup>e</sup> filling up y<sup>e</sup> same may be without any other consideration besides the fitnessse of the person presented.”

On the 23rd of July 1694 (Vol. XXVIII., 78) the Commissioners of Customs repeat the same, adding,—

“But for patent offices, the Comm<sup>rs</sup> have alwayes look’t upon them as bountyes, in the hands of the Crowne or yo<sup>r</sup> Lordpp<sup>s</sup>, being generally bestowed upon persons, with power to execute by deputy; and therefore the Comm<sup>rs</sup> have alwayes been passive and easy in the transactions of those grants, when their Lordpp<sup>s</sup> have been pleased to referr them to this Board; not thinking it became them to enter into the consideration of the meritts or services for which they were bestowed, nor to concerne themselves soe much about the qualification of the person as to make provision for good deputyes, who are to execute those offices; and especially for such of the patent offices as have been held for life, this Board has been alwayes forward to make way for those surrenders, believing it greatly for the advantage of the Crowne and the ease of the management to take in those grants, and give out others for pleasure.”

The following, although a little later than these papers, occurs in the Minute Book, Vol. VIII., p. 177, on 25th May 1698, and as they are closely allied to this subject are here given :—

“His Mat<sup>ty</sup> rule upon the death } The King is pleased to make or removall of an officer. } this rule. That upon the death or removall of an officer payable quarterly, he be paid by y<sup>e</sup> day to the day of his death or removall. That if there be an interval

before another officer is admitted, the salary during that intervall be saved to the King. And that the salary of the officer who succeeds be computed by the day, from the date of his comission, grant, or constitution, till the next quarter day, and from thenceforth quarterly, and be paid accordingly, saving the usuall allowances of those w<sup>ch</sup> administer any governm<sup>ts</sup> in remote parts frō the death of any governor till a new appointment be made by the King."

In regard to the allowance to those who supplied the place of governors in the West Indies until new appointments were made, the following is entered in the same Minute Book, p. 188:—

"Whereas His Majesty has thought fit that for the better support of the Government in y<sup>e</sup> severall plantations a sufficient allowance be set apart for such as shall be lievtenant governor, or comander-in-chiefe residing there for the time being, upon the death or during the absence of a governor-in-chief. In order whereunto His Mat<sup>y</sup> is pleased to direct that one full moiety of the salary, and of all perquisites & emolum<sup>ts</sup> w<sup>ts</sup>soever w<sup>ch</sup> would otherwise become due or are allotted unto the said governor-in-chief, be paid and satisfyd unto such liev<sup>t</sup> governor, or commander-in-chief who shall be so resident upon the place, for his better maintenance and support of y<sup>e</sup> dignity of y<sup>e</sup> Governm<sup>t</sup>. His Mat<sup>y</sup> is further pleased to declare & appoint that the said half salary shall not upon any acco<sup>t</sup> whatsoever be diverted for the future from such lievtenant governor, or commander-in-chiefe, and that the governour-in-chief appointed or to be appointed for any of His Majesty's plantations do not pretend to receive or take to himself upon any acco<sup>t</sup> whatsoever any part of the said half salary, perquisites, or emolum<sup>ts</sup> due or accruing to the said leivtenant governor, or comander-in-chief, during the absence of such governor-in-chief or until his arrivall upon the place. His Majesty likewise reserving unto himself the disposall of the other moiety of the said salary from the date of the cōmission of such governour-in-chief untill his actuall arrivall within the Government. And hereof an entry is to be made in the books of the Treasury and in other offices where it may appertain."

[The above regulation was prepared by Mr. Blathwayt, and read and approved by their Lordships. See Ib.]

RIGHTS OF PROPERTY.

There are numerous papers which touch on this subject, amongst which the Surveyor-General's reports are not the least important.

The right to clippings of coin was claimed by the sheriffs of London and Westminster under ancient grant. (See Vol. XXXIX., 38; XLI., 16.)

There are many papers relating to the King's right to tin in Cornwall from 1686 to 1688. (See 15th May 1686, Vol. II., 10, &c.)

STATISTICS.

In a proposal for a duty on cattle (undated, but probably about 1690, Vol. XI., 47,) London, Westminster, the suburbs, &c. are estimated at one-fifth of the population of England, and to consume as much meat as the other four-fifths.

A paper under date 5th April 1692 (Vol. XVIII., 4), states that:—

“ Since Henry the 8th time the vulture of money as to things bought therewith, is not now above the 4th part of what it was then, as for example, a person could buy as much hay, corne, cheese, &c. in K. Henry 8th time for 1<sup>s</sup> as he can now for 4<sup>s</sup>, as is apparent from the statutes of those times.”

Land in the Isle of Thanet had fallen in 1693 from 20*s.* to 16*s.* an acre. (See Vol. XXII., 17.)

Land in the neighbourhood of Scotland Yard, Westminster, was, in 1694, valued by the Surveyor-General at 7*s.* 6*d.* a foot [?frontage], per annum, &c. (See Vol. XXVII., 6.)

A memorial dated 21st November 1694 (Vol. XXX., 50) of the Commissioners of Customs of Ireland states that 20*s.* a day was allowed as travelling charges to two of their number, as had been continually done since there was any commission for managing the revenue in Ireland, and as was then practised in the Commissions of the Customs and Excise in England, at the rate of 40*s.* per diem or more.

TOPOGRAPHY.

Scattered among the papers will be found some that throw light on topography, more particularly as to Westminster. Thus there is a petition and other documents in 1694, of Mr. Joseph Craig, about property in the north-western corner of Scotland Yard. He is described as having buildings adjoining, with an open court before them, on the north side of the premises. (See 12th March, Vol. XXVII., 6, and 5th July 1694, Vol. XXVIII., 66.) It seems more likely that Craig's Court took its name from him than from the father of Secretary Craggs, as supposed in Cunningham's hand book for London, Vol. I., p. 243.

Cunningham also says that "Storey's Gate, Birdcage Walk, St. James's Park, was so called after Edward Storey, who lived in a house on the site of the present gate, and was employed by Charles II. in the improvements which he made in St. James's Park," and there are two papers in this collection which seem to confirm his account of its origin, for William Storey who was evidently resident thereabouts, says in his petition that his deceased brother and himself had been keepers and feeders of their Majesties' birds and beasts in St. James's Park, ever since the Restoration. (See 18th May 1693, Vol. XXII., 25, and 1694, Vol. XXXI., 47.) The house of Lord Chancellor Jeffreys was next to that of Storey. (See 25th June 1691, Vol. XIV., 45.)

In an extract from a patent accompanying one of Sir Chr. Wren's reports (7th March 1694-5, Vol. XXXII., 44), it appears King James I. granted to the inhabitants of the parish of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields an acre of ground to make a new churchyard. It recites that in Henry the Eighth's time, they had no parish church, but resorted to St. Margaret's, and thereby were forced to carry their dead by the court gate of Whitehall, which the said King Henry misliking, caused the church to be built.

There is an interesting paper in relation to the town and harbour of Rye, and the lands adjacent to the River Rother. It contains some historical particulars of that place. (See 18th Aug. 1692, Vol. XIX., 36.)

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

The reports of the Commissioners of Customs afford a good deal of information as to our trade.

The one dated 2nd April 1692 (Vol. XVIII., 3) is an instance. It states that the trade of the kingdom was generally carried on by men of substance and reputation; that the very nature of the trade had altered from the time of Charles I., for in those days there was no trade to the East and West Indies, or any plantation, and at that time it was chiefly driven by merchant strangers, but at the time of the report it was entirely in the hands of English merchants. Their report concludes with the following remark, viz.: "that the freer and more easy trade is in any place, the more it flourishes."

TRAVELLING AND THE STATE OF THE ROADS.

In 1689, the receiver-general of the aid for the county of Hereford petitioned for 110*l.* for bringing up to the Exchequer at London 6,500*l.* in two journeys, having employed 14 horses and 10 men. (See 13th Nov. 1689, Vol. V., 42.)

John Phillipps, one of the collectors of excise, in his petition states,—

“ That on the 9th day of Aug<sup>t</sup> 1691 your pet<sup>r</sup> collected the duty of excise then arising within the district or division of the market town of Endfeild, in the county of Mid<sup>x</sup>, and in bringing to London the money he there received, att five of the clock of the evening of the same day, he and the supervisor & supernumerary were sett upon neare Edmington, and was by six highwaymen or robbers on horseback robbed of 198<sup>li</sup> 2<sup>s</sup> 7<sup>d</sup>. That yo<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> and the said officers defended themselves against the said robbers for a considerable time, and in the skirmish shott one of the robbers, who was afterwards taken, and soone after dyed of the shott he received.

The Commissioners of Excise reported on the case, and advised that he should be allowed the amount of which he was robbed. (See 12th April 1693, Vol. XXI., 73.)

The customary charges of the royal messengers are given in a paper dated 6th July 1694 (Vol. XXVIII., 70); 30*l*. was charged for journeys to Edinborough, Dublin, or the Hague, 6*d*. a mile on post journeys, and 2*s*. for every stage of 10 miles, and 10*s*. a day for every day they were out.

In a paper dated 9th October 1695 (Vol. XXXIV., 66) it is reported by the agents of taxes that in December 1691, the receiver for the county of Worcester, having sent up 6,500*l*., the waggon, at a place near Gerard's Cross, Bucks, was robbed of 2,343*l*., upon which he sued the hundred, but the verdict was against him. Their Lordships, however, allowed him 2,500*l*. for his loss and charges.

Again, Mr. Francis Johnson, the collector of excise in Hertfordshire and Bedfordshire, in conveying the money from Biggleswade to Hoddesdon, was robbed of 776*l*. (See 12th Aug. 1696, Vol. XXXIX., 35.)

MISCELLANEOUS OBSERVATIONS AND EXTRACTS.

One of the most frequent arguments brought forward by the petitioners was that they were Protestants, and that they had suffered from the Popish rule. If by any means they could make it apparent they had been instrumental in forwarding the revolution, the little circumstance, whatever it might be, had a prominent place assigned to it in their memorial to the Treasury.

One man says he had always opposed the Popish and arbitrary designs of the kingdom's enemies, and especially by voting for such men to serve in Parliament as were friends to the Protestant religion and the rights and liberties of the people, and that he had appeared in arms on the King's arrival. (See 23rd April 1689, Vol. III., 20.)

The following shows that the vocalists had a grievance which did not extend to their instrumental brethren. (Vol. XXII., 27)—

“ In obedience to your Lordships' order of reference of the 19th instant, with relation to the annexed petition of their Maj. . . . vocal musick, I humbly report to your Lordships that the vocal and instrumental musick were join'd together in the late reigns of King Charles and King James, at the allowance of forty pounds per annum a piece, and at their present Maj<sup>ty</sup> accession to the Crown my Lord Chamberlain swore them indifferently into their places pursuant to the methods of former establishments, and y<sup>r</sup> L<sup>ds</sup> were pleas'd to direct the payment of them all to Lady Day [1690,] since which time the instrumental musick only have been [paid,] without any provision for the vocal.

“ Which is most humbly submitted to your Lordships.

“ 24 May 1693.

J. RICHARDS.”

King Charles the Second's physician in ordinary (who was also professor of botany) appears not to have been much better dealt with than his portrait painter, for his widow, Margaret Morrison, complains in 1693 that his salary was 4,400*l.* in arrear. Their Lordships had examined the claim, and ordered 200*l.* a year to the widow, but she had received nothing (except a tally for 100*l.*) for five years. She obtained the unsatisfactory reply to her application for continuance of the pension, "It cannot be done at this time." (See About, 17 August 1693, Vol. XXIII., 46.)

The subjoined petition of Walter Butler, supposed to be about 1693 or 1694 (Vol. XXV., 38.), shows how good offices were bargained for by persons having, or who were supposed to have, the opportunity of soliciting their Majesties' favour. It runs thus :—

"The humble petition of Walter Butler,

"Humbly sheweth that yo<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>r</sup>, being importuned by Major McGullycudy and severall others of the Irish officers, whoe came off at the capitulation att Limberick, to solissitt thire Maties, in thire behalf, for a compedency to keep them from starving, and in consideration thearof the said officers promised yo<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> two shillings & sixpence out of eatch pound that should be allowed them by thire Maties, which they gave y<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> under thire hands, with an assignment upon any paymaster whatsoever to stop and pay to y<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> the afforesaid two shillings & sixpence, which is redy to produce, the said officers alleaging to y<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> that theare was not above 20 of the said officers to truble thire Maties, giving y<sup>e</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> a list of thire names, whoe weare all found upon record as paid last yeare, and returned soe by M<sup>r</sup> Danchford. Now soe it is that one M<sup>r</sup> Courtney, being refused to be put upon the said list, it being filed up before, givs information against severall of the said officers, to make roome for himselfe and his cohearants, after w<sup>ch</sup> he confesed if he had beene put upon the said list, he would make noe such discovery, thogh now he givs out it is to prevent the King's being cheated, which he winct at the last two years that he was upon the list and received the King's money, when the King paid six times the number that petitions His Ma<sup>tie</sup> now,—

“Yo<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> thearfore humbly prays y<sup>r</sup> Lordships will be pleased to order the number of twenty officers, wheather them that contracted with y<sup>e</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> or those that informs against them, and gets the benefitt of y<sup>r</sup> pet<sup>rs</sup> labor, to pay y<sup>e</sup> pet<sup>r</sup> the said halfe croune in the pound out of thire Mat<sup>ies</sup> bounty, if any theare be, and that the same may be stopt for y<sup>e</sup> pet<sup>rs</sup> use in the hands of any paymaster that shall be ordered to pay them, in consideration of his pains and labor in obtaineing thire pretentions to be broght to this issue, the rather because they imployed Mr Killgrew to sollissitt for them last yeare, and never paid him.”

It is stated that in the reign of King James the Second a year's pay was the settled equivalent for the loss of a limb, but there was no such provision made in the subsequent reign. (See 1st August 1694, Vol. XXIX., No. 2).

The records of the county of Chester were spoiling by the rain, owing to the state in which the building was in which the courts were held. (See 22nd April 1690, Vol. VIII., 10.)

A paper of the date of 18th January 1691–2 (Vol. XVII., 14), speaks of tea “of the goodness of what is “ used in coffee houses for the makeing of single tea,” and it sold at 12s. a pound, the duty being 5s.

The following occurs in a petition of the Countess Dowager of Clancarty, who states that,—

“There was a custome (tho' an inhuman pastime) in that part of Ireland to toss men in blanketts, that y<sup>e</sup> country people would come freely to offer themselves to be tossed for halfe crowne a piece, y<sup>t</sup> the said butcher [whose widow made a claim on the Countess] was unfortunately tossed, and for want of care [died] soon after.” (See 1st December 1693, Vol. XXV., 1.)

The following illustrates the frauds practised against the customs' laws. It is found in the proposal referred to before at p. xliii. for the prevention of frauds, supposed to be about the year 1694 (Vol. XXXI., 23):—

"In November 1692 the shipp "Anne and Margaret," of Bristol, burthen about 40 tonns, the said William Beard master, [bound] for Ireland, being about a third part laden with tobacco in trusses, he that was supercargo of the ship, went down privately into the hould and pulled a plugg out of the ship's bottom, which was contrived for that purpose, and when the said ship had abt four foot water in the hould, one William Smith, mar of the same vessel, called a trough, which had layn ten daies waiting for the said ship, took in all her tobacco, and runn it ashore at Callicote, and left the said ship to sink in the river. This fraud was, by accident, detected in the action."

Mr. Vernon, on 16th May 1696, communicated to the Lords of the Treasury the wishes of the Lords Justices that Signior Coronelli, geographer to the Republic of Venice, should have a gratification of 100 guineas, he having presented to them, in the name of His Majesty, and for his use, some of his geographical works. (See Vol. XXXVIII., 5.)

In our own time not unfrequently complaints have been made of the roundabout way in which official business is conducted; but the Commissioners for registering Seamen are a good specimen of the same thing in 1696, for they had to propose that the Lords of the Admiralty would please to move the Lords Justices to direct the Lords of the Treasury to order the Custom house officers not to permit vessels to be cleared without giving bond for payment of 6*d.* per month out of their wages. (See Vol. XXXIX., No. 37.)

The previous pages, it is hoped, will sufficiently indicate the nature of this valuable body of papers, the contents of which hitherto must have been but little known.

PHILIP AND MARY.

1556-7.
Jan. 11.

1. Copy of a "supplication" of John Dee, gentleman, addressed to Queen Mary, setting forth that "lamentable displeasures" had happened by the subversion of religious houses, and by the destruction of so many notable libraries; wherein lay the treasures of all antiquity and the everlasting seeds of continual excellency; but notwithstanding many precious jewels and ancient monuments had perished (as at Canterbury the work "Cicero de Republica") yet the remainder, which were scattered, might be saved: praying that such order might be taken as the suppliant had devised, for the recovery and preservation of the said monuments.

Accompanied by:—"Articles concerning the recovery and preservation of the antient monuments and old excellent writers; and also concerning the erecting of a library, without any charges to y<sup>e</sup> Queens Mat<sup>ie</sup>; or doing injury to any of the Queens Highness subjects: according to the tenor and intent of a supplication to the Queens Grace in this behalf, exhibited by John Dee, gentleman, anno 1556, the xj. day of January." His scheme was to borrow such works as were valuable and have them copied. It extended to the Vatican and other places on the continent.

The documents of which these are copies are preserved among the Cottonian MSS. in the British Museum, Vitellius, C. VII., p. 310: they are both somewhat injured and there is a trifling variation in the date. They were printed in 1726 by Hearne in his Johannis Glastoniensis Chronica, App. Num. III., p. 490, and by Kippis in 1793 in his Biographia Britannica, Vol. V., p. 33 note.

He further states that there is one clause in the warrant, binding him to bring with him at his speedy return a note under the hands of the officers of "the ports of this charge," and the Queen's commandment by him delivered, and of the time when, and the number of vessels and mariners so stayed ; the form of which certificate he encloses by the bearer, who is to attend his Worship and the rest ; that the writer may receive it from him on his return from the west. Enjoining on the Mayor to charge the lieutenants of the several companies which he should dismiss, to repair to the several counties where they were levied ; that every soldier might repair to his home, and commit no disorder in the way homeward ; and to give notice of their arrival to the lieutenants or deputy-lieutenants, that they might be in readiness for future service. Instructing him to pay to the lieutenants of every band 3s. a day, for as many days as the soldiers would require to return ; and 8d. a day to the soldiers for the like time.

and assuring him that the way both to get credit to himself and procure the good of the city is rather by performance of such honest and faithful service than either by careless wasting of Her Majesty's treasure or making private advantage of it, as they find many times used elsewhere upon such occasions; commissioning him to undertake a further service of the same kind, praying him to use the same care and diligence as he had already showed; instructing him to obtain the assistance of John Andrews, the customer of the port, and to demand 200*l.* of him, towards making the said provision, which 200*l.* had then lately been forwarded to the said customer for that purpose. "Report touching the Earl of Carlisle's creditors and the Earl of Kenoule, &c.

"By the Committee of Trade and Plantations."

The report was made on the petition of Thomas Henshaw, Esq., on behalf of himself and the rest of the creditors of James, late Earl of Carlisle, and upon the petition of the Countess of Kinnoul. It states that in 1627 Lord Hay, Earl of Carlisle, obtained a patent granting him the Caribbee Islands; that his son James was, on account of the debts of his father, obliged to make over his property to trustees, and the said islands were decreed in Chancery on 7th June 1645 to the creditors in payment of 37,074*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*; that the Earl thereupon, on 26th Feb. 1647, appointed Francis, late Lord Willoughby of Parham, his lieutenant-general over those islands for 21 years, and by another deed demised those islands to him for 21 years, burthened with the debts to the creditors, &c.; that the King on 30 Oct. 1662 granted to the said Lord Willoughby one moiety of the revenue of those islands for seven years, reserving the other moiety to himself, and afterwards, on 13 June 1663, the King in Council heard the pretensions of the Earl of Kinnoul, heir to the late Earl of Carlisle, the Lord Willoughby, and all others claiming an interest in those islands, and declared he would cause satisfaction to be made to the creditors, and that the annual profits arising to the Crown should be divided, one moiety to Lord Francis Willoughby for the remainder of his lease, and after that the said moiety of the customs to go to the support of the government of those islands, &c.; and of the other moiety, 500*l.* per annum to the Earl of Marlborough for life, and after to William Ley, Esq., his uncle, during life; 500*l.* per ann. to the Earl of Kinnoul, until the creditors of the Earl of Carlisle were paid, and after their debts were paid, 1,000*l.* per annum to the Earl of Kinnoul and his heirs for ever.

Further, that the creditors of the Earl of Carlisle had voluntarily abated one third of the principal debt, which amounted to 37,074*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.*, whereupon it was ordered that the other two parts, amounting to 24,716*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.* should be paid to them in goods upon the said islands; the said second moiety of the customs of the Caribbee Islands, after satisfaction to the creditors, to revert to the Crown, excepting the 1,000*l.* per annum to the Earl of Kinnoul; that Francis Lord Willoughby arriving soon after in Barbadoes, passed an Act whereby the duty of 4½ per cent. upon all dead commodities of the produce of those islands, and exported from thence, became payable to the King, and the management thereof was left to the Lord Willoughby as chief Governor, after whose death, William, Lord Willoughby, his brother, succeeded, pursuant to a commission dated 3 Jan. 1666, on which the said creditors complained that the revenues ordered for their satisfaction had been wholly withheld, but by a letter in Council certain agents were nominated on behalf of the creditors to receive such part of the profits as, by the order of 1663, should be due, and to act as controllers of the revenue. On the 26th of February following the King signified to William Lord Willoughby that he had appointed a regiment of foot to be sent to Barbadoes under Sir Tobias Bridges, and that he should pay them and other forces for the defence of those islands out of the King's moiety of the duty of  $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent.

On the 10th of Jan. 1667 the said creditors complained that they had received no part of their debt, nor was their agent admitted to act on their behalf, the answer given by Lord Willoughby being, that the necessary charges of the government upon emergent occasions were intended to be first deducted, that his Lordship had been at great expense in his voyage, carrying on the King's service, repairing forts, expedition of St. Lucia, the public debts by the war, victualling fleets, &c., and they ought not then to expect payment.

On 31 July 1668 a letter was directed from the Council Board to the Lord William Willoughby, signifying that the said regiment should be continued and paid out of the duty of  $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., designed for the support of the Government, and the residue disposed of for the necessary charges of the Government, and for the debts for the public service.

By an Order in Council of 22 Dec 1669, the King directed the Lords of the Treasury that the farm of the duty of  $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. in the Caribbee Islands, should be applied to the support of the militia, and for losses in ships and goods sustained in the late war.

On 9 Sept. 1670 the duty of  $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. in Barbadoes was by letters patent farmed to the Right Hon. Robert Spencer, Esq., Sir Charles Wheler, Col. John Strode, and others for seven years at a rent of 7,000*l.* per annum, and on 25 April 1670 that revenue in the Leeward Islands was farmed to Col. Strode for the same term, under the yearly rent of 700*l.*

On the 22nd of Dec. following an order passed in the Treasury Chamber for the recall of the above regiment, and for the payment, with interest, out of the said  $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent.

On the surrender, by William Earl of Kinnoul, of all his interest in the Caribbee Islands, the King by patent of 24 May 1672, granted to him an annuity of 600*l.* for five years, and at the expiration of that term an annuity of 1,000*l.* out of the said  $4\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., notwithstanding any other charges thereon, and in default out of other the King's treasure.

On 11 June 1673, a privy seal passed for the payment of 4,750*l.* to the said Earl, in satisfaction of the arrears of the annuity of 500*l.*, payable from Midsummer 1663 to Michaelmas 1671, part of which had only been paid, viz., to Michaelmas 1678.

On the petition of the Countess Dowager of Kinnoul the King, on 13 Oct. 1680, referred the same to the Lords of the Treasury. The Countess claimed 9,250*l.*, with interest.

During the late war with the French a debt for the freight of ships, ammunition, wages of seamen, &c., amounting to 11,355*l.* 8*s.* 7*d.* was incurred by the Governor of the Caribbee Islands, of which 6,666*l.* 6*s.* 1*d.* remained unpaid.

There were other similar pretensions amounting to 12,740*l.*

The King granted one moiety of the profits arising in the Caribbee Islands to Francis Lord Willoughby: at his death Richard, then Lord Viscount Ranelagh, and William Lord Brereton, petitioned the King for 8,397*l.* 2*s.* 4½*d.*, expended for the King's use by Lord Willoughby, which sum was due to them in right of their wives, as his daughters and co-heirs. It was ordered to be paid by privy seal of 7 July 1673, and 2,758*l.* 11*s.* 2½*d.* remained unsatisfied.

By letters patent dated 18 Dec. 1665, 500*l.* per annum was granted to Sir Geo. Carteret, Knt. and Bart., deceased, for the lives of the late Earl of Marlborough and James Carteret, Esq., and the arrears amounted to 8,000*l.*

1,492*l.* 5*s.* 7*d.* were due to the soldiers and officers of Sir Tobias Bridges' regiment.

The rent payable from Barbadoes by the farmers for seven years amounted to 49,000*l.*, and from the Leeward Islands 4,900*l.*, but by the war, plague, &c., the farmers had only answered for 20,975*l.* 19*s.* 8*d.* from Barbadoes, and 350*l.* from the other islands, and they stood yet charged for their farm in Barbadoes with 7,652*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.*, and to the Leeward Islands 2,829*l.* 6*s.* 0½*d.*, whereof the farmers craved 4,800*l.* for themselves.

By letters patent of 25 April 1678, the King had demised the duties payable in the Caribbee Islands to Robert Spencer, Col. John Strode, Charles Tucker, and others, for seven years, at a rent of 5,300*l.* per annum, on which they alleged they had paid in tallies 22,148*l.* 3*s.* 10*d.*, there being other tallies unpaid to the sum of 3,820*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*

So that there appeared due to the various claimants out of this revenue 70,193*l.* 13*s.* 9½*d.*, besides the expense of the governments in the Caribbee Islands, for the pay of the Governors and two foot companies at St. Christopher's, 4,678*l.* 10*s.* 8*d.*; for the discharge whereof there was the yearly duty of 4½ per cent, viz, 5,300*l.*, which for the year 1684 was anticipated.

he (the Bishop) had by his interest at Court procured the convocation "to get them a farm" and a good price for their tin; on all occasions making use of the Lord Treasurer's name and the King's authority; acting therein contrary to his (the Earl's) commission: which made it very difficult to reconcile all things to the satisfaction of the tanners and convokers, and impossible to mention a less price, as the Bishop had so raised their expectations.

42. Proposals made to the King, if he should keep the tin in his own hands, and manage it by three Com<sup>rs</sup>, viz, if the King provided 60,000*l.* for the coinage, the proposer would give security for one year's tin over and above the 60,000*l.*, to be paid by the King at the interest of 4*l.* 10*s.* per cent. He and two other Comm<sup>rs</sup>. would expect for the management 2*s.* 6*d.* out of every pound, i.e., one-eighth of the profits, after all charges, interest, &c., in Cornwall and London were deducted, and to be at liberty to coin as many pence, half-pence, and farthings as would be exhausted in the King's dominions.

44. A paper headed:—"The Case of the Tynn rightly stated," showing what the King's rights were in relation to the tin in Devon and Cornwall, asserting, 1stly, that in all grants the King reserved 4*s.* a cwt. for tin made in Cornwall, and that the tinnerns were obliged to bring all their tin to the four towns of Liskerd, Lostwithiel, Truro, and Helston to be stamped; 2ndly, that the King could take the whole tin made, at the market price, which was settled by a convocation of tinnerns, "who are a parliament"; 3rdly, that this taking the tin is called pre-emption, because the King had the privilege to buy it before all others, the contract being made by the Lord Warden, and by the convocation of 24 tinnerns, and every law made by them, as much obliged every tinner as an act of the three estates of Parliament did every individual member of the kingdom. It then traces the history of this pre-emption from the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and shows the reasons the late farmers did not gain by their contract, and the reasons why the pre-emption of tin at 3*l.* 10*s.* per cwt. might be managed to better advantage. It further lays down directions, by the observance of which the controller might prevent embezzlement of tin; and then gives reasons why, in the contract now to be made the tinnerns could not, as formerly, receive their money at Truro on certain days, after all the tin of the county was coined, except it were agreed upon at the convocation.

Undated, but probably in March or April 1688, as there was a

45. Letter of John Shales, Esq., addressed to the Lords of the Treasury, stating that he had informed the gentlemen who had proposed to give two-thirds of the clear profits for the management of the King's pre-emption of tin, that their Lordships were inclined to take 10,000*l.* per annum for the said two-thirds, which proposal some of them readily embraced, but when Sir Henry Hobart returned to town and advised with them they were discouraged, and were inclined to adhere to their first proposition, giving summarily their reasons. 46. A paper addressed to the Lords of the Treasury, signed by the Earl of Bath, stating, by way of introduction, that he had conceived, that by their Lordships' order of 10 Feb. last, the King had laid aside his resolutions to a partnership with the merchants of London in the pre-emption and coinage duty of tin; that before he took his journey into the west, he released the merchants by him procured for partnership, that they might attend their Lordships, with their proposals for the said farm, if willing to engage in it alone; but the said Earl had received fresh advice from those merchants, which occasioned the letter written by him from Plymouth; that the expectation of the country seemed much raised by the King's letters, communicated to the convocation or parliament of tinnners; but what merchants were likely to undertake that farm their Lordships best knew; nevertheless as their Lordships had encouraged the said Earl to renew his endeavours, and as they were free to receive any new proposals for farming the said pre-emption and coinage duty of tin, he had discoursed with persons of experience, and the accompanying proposal, dated 30 April 1688, was the result.

Then follows the said proposal, in five clauses. Accompanied by a query in relation to the second clause, with the answer thereto.

were ready to pay the same as soon as they could have their patent passed, according to the contract; but immediately after the contract was made the Prince of Wales was born, upon which event their Lordships concurred with the Earl of Bath, that they had need of good counsel, and ever since had been the long vacation, and the said Earl was gone to the "convocation" in the west, and they dare not proceed to any conclusion till his Lordship's return; they had in the meantime performed their parts to the tinnerns, and paid them 3*l.* 10*s.* per cent. for all their tin, and lent them money gratis, and though the difficulties of the times were such that they could not sell any of their farmed tin, yet they had made full provision to pay for all the tin. 58. Letter of the Earl of Bath addressed to Lord Godolphin, stating that in his last he had given an account of the proceedings of the convocation or parliament of tinnerns at Lostwithiel, which had adjourned to Saltash. He had made his Lordship's compliment to his countrymen, the gentlemen of the said Cornish parliament, who returned thanks for his Lordship's favour. On Thursday the 11th inst. the convocation met at Saltash, when he thought there would be nothing to do but sign the laws and ratify the agreement for the farm; but instead, he found the influence of the times had so wrought on their tempers that some were grown peevish and suspicious, and started new jealousies and difficulties, which engaged them in disputes till Saturday afternoon, when he was forced to acquaint them that the King's service called him to Plymouth, and the next day being the King's birthday, he invited several of them over with him, and the convocation was adjourned to Monday, at which time he hoped they would have been better qualified, but found still the same heats; but at last the agreement (of which the enclosed was a copy) was sealed. He then went to Tavistock to the Devonshire parliament of tinnerns; their interest in tin was small in comparison with Cornwall, but their concern for their privileges as great as the others, but the matter was finally brought to a conclusion, as his Lordship would find by the enclosed copy. The reason the contractors had not paid the 8,000*l.* he conceived was, the general disturbance of affairs, and because their patent was not passed. He hoped there would be no further delay, unless the present storm that hung over them were a disturbance to their measures. He need not remind his Lordship of his pains, trouble and expense, but hoped his petition would be attended to. He had lent his name to encourage responsible men and "undertakers," but hoped he might be excused from involving his fortune, and that his name might be left out of the patent. His Majesty's proclamation and Order in Council reached Cornwall last night, and would give great satisfaction and assurance of His Majesty's gracious resolutions throughout England; but the corporations in Cornwall (making up a great part of the exceptions in the proclamation) would not equally enjoy the royal favours. His Majesty had commanded him by that post to take care of the city of Exeter, and to raise some part of the militia to secure the peace of it under such officers as he could put no confidence in. Exeter was a place of vast importance, therefore he craved His Majesty's more particular directions. The Mayor, who was major of the militia of Exeter, was a person in whom he had no confidence, as he had often faithfully acquainted the King; the rest of the officers had tendered him their commissions, and desired to be excused from serving under him (the Mayor), so that his Lordship might easily judge what was to be expected from such a commander in case of necessity. He had not thought fit to remove him, but would be glad of His Majesty's pleasure therein by the next post. Without putting the militia of that city into better hands it was impossible (unless the King sent some of his standing forces) to preserve that important place long in peace, or defend it against an enemy. The late farmers were allowed for the charge of management, 56,000*l.* a year, but Wales and the northern counties were not under their management, but on a sub-farm, so this allowance was exclusive, and amounted to 9,000*l.* a year, and was exclusive also of the charge of the Com<sup>rs</sup> patent and house officers, which came to about 11,000*l.* a year, which made 76,000*l.* a year charge, beside the allowance of 5,000*l.* a year for bad debts, and 10,000*l.* a year salary allowed to Mr. Dashwood and partners for their management ; the yearly expense of the three last years of the farm for general riders, collectors, supervisors, and gaugers (Wales and the four northern counties included), came to no more than 61,361*l.* ; but the Com<sup>rs</sup> [in 1683], to raise the revenue, made an addition of officers, which came to 6,483*l.*, and the revenue increased in the year ending Midsummer 1684, 38,078*l.*, and in five years increased to 134,949*l.* ; further expressing the opinion that it was for His Majesty's service to increase the charge, they having found that every new riding had more than trebled the officers' salary ; in addition they could find no advantage in saving 1,250*l.* a year as aimed at by the petitioners, for they proposed to make no more than 580,000*l.* a year, whereas, during the last five years, there had been paid into the Exchequer 596,661*l.*, and the last year 638,358*l.*, and if peace and plenty continued, it was hoped the revenue would be 600,000*l.* a year, and finally they could not think it advisable to unhinge so considerable a revenue, that had been so successfully managed, upon the suggestions of persons wholly unacquainted with the methods and reasons of the then management. Minuted:—"Order'd."

June 28. 19. Presentment of the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Customs to the Lords of the Treasury, stating that they were greatly pressed by the merchants of the city of Bristol, as well as London, concerning a deduction of 5 per cent., which had been made out of debentures upon the exportation of tobacco in roll, in consideration of the liquor and other mixtures made use of in the working the same into roll; complaining of the great hardship to them therein, as also that the said manufacture of spinning or rolling tobacco (which employs many hundreds of poor people, men, women, and children,) was not only in great danger to be lost and driven into other countries, but that such foreign manufacture stops the consumption of our Virginia tobacco, they buying only some leaves thereof to cover and wrap over the tobacco of German growth; the Com<sup>rs</sup> report that there are principally two sorts of rolled tobacco, one that is bright and fair, and made up with very little moisture, and the other very dark coloured, and mixed with great quantity of syrups and other liquors; the former the Com<sup>rs</sup> were informed rather abated than increased the weight by the making it into roll, the stalks which are thrown out and paid custom at importation as tobacco being more considerable than the addition of weight that is made by the moisture or other materials; the other sort, which is much darker, and moister than the former, receives so great an addition of weight by the moisture that is added in working it up, that, notwithstanding the stalks that are thrown out, it is considerably increased in weight, so that the Com<sup>rs</sup> advise that there be no deduction at exportation on the brighter sort of roll, and upon the darker sort the 5 per cent. be continued as formerly. (2.) Respecting compounding of seizures by letters of licence, &c.; replying that the proposer knows very little of the law or practice of the Court of Exchequer, touching compositions by licence upon informations of seizure; for by law no composition could be made by the seizer under one-third of the appraised value, &c.

That the customs at Amsterdam were managed with fewer officers than here, and proposing a retrenchment of superfluous officers, to save many thousands per ann., replying that the revenue there was under very loose management till lately, and subject to great fraud, but there had been a considerable increase of the number of officers, and besides, the situation of the place bore no comparison with the port of London for conveniency, for saving officers, and preventing frauds; but they always endeavoured to reduce the officers as far as they could safely.

of the revenue of excise, and it was well if not to assist the enemies of His Majesty's peace and the Protestant interest. They had offered their service to prevent such gross abuses, and had proposed such a management of the excise that the interest of the King and his subjects might be inseparable; entreating the King to give speedy order that their proposals be either accepted or enquired into, and that they might be appointed of the Kings Com<sup>rs</sup>, or come in as managers, "which is noe new thing." Dated 23 Sept. 1689.

Further proposals offered by them (seeing their late answer to the report of the late Com<sup>rs</sup> of Excise had not had the issue they expected) by which they would increase the 80,000*l.* to 100,000*l.* without loan or interest, and offering to find 500,000*l.* or more if desired, due to the King, in good responsible hands, &c. [as in the petition]; adding that if their Lordships had a desire to be privately informed they were ready to do it, or they would act publicly, or they must beg their Lordships' leave to lay these things openly to the world before the King and Parliament, that by their services to the Crown (which were greater than had ever yet been offered by any other persons in that nature) it might appear whether they deserved less encouragement than those who neither did nor could propose anything so considerable.

Also, "Objections offered that the new intended Com<sup>rs</sup> of Excise may not be alsoe managers, and humbly desired to be answer'd before their com<sup>on</sup> passes the seale."

The objections are as to their fitness for the office, and the loss that would arise to the revenue.

Rosenheim, who would take them at 4*s.* 10*d.* for the crown, i.e., 3,883*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; Mons. Of the remainder that was to be remitted to Hamburgh, Mr. Molesworth had already procured 60,000 crowns, to be imprested to the King of Denmark, and was engaged to see that sum repaid; and the King's pleasure was that their Lordships should give directions to Mr. Herne to send orders to his correspondent at Hamburgh, to pay Mr. Molesworth the said 6,000 crowns and the rest to be deferred. 30. Petition of Sir Richard Reeves, Knt., late Recorder, Sir Francis Brewster, Knt., Luke Lowther, John Rogerson, Wm. Watts, late aldermen, James Cottingham and James Howiston late sheriffs, in behalf of the late Lord Mayor, sheriffs, commons, and citizens of Dublin, showing that the most part of the revenue of that city was spent in preserving the English interest, the Protestant religion, and the said city against the Irish rebels in 1641, in consideration of which King Charles the Second granted 500*l.* per ann. for "its support"; that since 1660 the city had increased in people, trade, and buildings, the latter of which had been so costly that the city had run into debt; that under the auspices of the Earl of Tyrconnel, a new charter was granted to Papists, for whose sakes the old charters were destroyed, so that the Protestant members of the corporation were displaced; that the said Papists had wasted all the plate, goods, and chattels of the corporation in carrying on the rebellion, and their pretended Parliament had confiscated all the estates and goods and attainted the Protestant members of that corporation. Praying for the grant of all the forfeitures of such as were in rebellion, and held from that city, by lease or otherwise, lands or houses, and the forfeitures of the Papists who so illegally succeeded the petitioners in their several places in the corporation, and were then in rebellion against their Majesties. Report of the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Excise to the Lords of the Treasury, on their Lordships' reference to them of the petition of Sir Scroop Howe to His Majesty, praying that he might have a commission to view and examine the receipts and payments of all officers employed or concerned in the duty of hearth money, from Lady Day 1685 to 1689-90.

Lady Day 1689, at which time that duty determined; and that where it should appear any officer was in arrear to their Majesties for the duty, that he might receive the arrear to his own use, informing their Lordships that King Charles the Second took the revenue of hearth-money into his own hands and managed it from 26 March 1684 by the same Com<sup>rs</sup> as he appointed to manage the Excise, and so it had continued, and the Com<sup>rs</sup> caused the officers to give security; they found that hitherto few accounts had been made up by the collectors, and the collectors were most of them returned as in arrear; that one Edmund Stack, clerk of the securities, being a Roman Catholic, took away all the bonds and securities, and many of the collectors, especially those who were Roman Catholics, ran away with great sums, together with the books of collection, so that no exact account could be made until a surcharge could be made after Lady Day 1689; further setting forth their difficulties in obtaining accounts, and giving their opinion that the grant the petitioner desired would be very considerable, though then very uncertain, and that the granting such commission as was desired would be a revocation of their commission, &c. Dated 3 Feb. 1689-90.

The Duke of Wirtemberg much pressed for it, and for an advance of one month, amounting to about 13,000*l*. more, for their support, on their arrival in the distant quarters appointed them in Ireland. If there were no likelihood of procuring these sums near Chester he desired their Lordships should be reminded to send it down in specie, since otherwise the want of money might occasion the stop of the shipping. The Duke of Wirtemberg in a memorial represented that 43 horses were wanting to be recruited, and for the

The Duke of Wirtemberg had received letters from the officers that were then kept in a dungeon at Abbeville in France, giving an account of the sad condition they were in, and praying some relief by money, to be remitted to the Ambassador of Denmark, at Paris, to the value of about 200*l.* Further the writer had received a paper from Mr. van Homrigh, of which he enclosed a copy, for procuring the repayment of 307*l.* 1*s.* to Mons. van der Esch on which their Lordships' directions should be taken. 57. Letter of Ralph Williamson to William Jephson, Esq., stating, that in pursuance of their Lordships' commands, he should send to Berwick near 3,000*l.* in two or three days, being all the money he had, or could get credit for, at Newcastle, by two of his clerks under a convoy of the Danes, who were about to march for Berwick, and so for Scotland. He had paid 900*l.* to Col. Shewstad for the use of his regiment in their march for Scotland; and Mr. Isaacson paid 600*l.*, completing the sum of 1,500*l.* which the writer had orders to pay to Col. Doneb; but as he and his regiment had marched before for Scotland, he paid it, by advice of Col. Fairfax, to Col. Shewstad, of which he had advised Mr. Fielding; and that he should pay him on Thursday next 3,000*l.* He had acquainted Mr. Fielding that he could pay 2,000*l.* more at York, and the remainder where their Lordships would direct, when his collection of the 12*d.* per pound was over, after the Dutch were paid what they had occasion for. He intended to be at York on Tuesday. Major Christian desired to know their Lordships' pleasure, if he was Accompanied by the copy of the letter, giving an account of about 80 men in the town or on board, and their pursuits; and stating that the writer had been often in their company, and could not perceive that they were any way disaffected to the Government. They often drink their Majesties' health. The ship was in great forwardness to sail.

Dated 4 March 1689.

(then in Scotland) from Newcastle; he found the Lords of the Treasury had directed him to pay to Israel Fielding, Esq., 5,000<sup>li</sup> at Berwick and Carlisle, and that they would allow one per cent.; he had advanced 3,000<sup>l</sup> and sent it to Berwick by two of his head collectors of Durham and Northumberland, under a convoy of the last of the Danish forces, on their march for Scotland; the 3,000<sup>l</sup> would be at Berwick that night, ready to be paid to Mr. Fielding, who was advised of it, and that he would send him 2,000<sup>l</sup> to Carlisle, to make up the 5,000<sup>l</sup>; conceiving it better for him to have the 2,000<sup>l</sup> at Carlisle than at Berwick, being nearer the west of Scotland, where the troops must embark for Ireland; he hoped the Lords would allow him one per cent. for the advance of the money, and likewise for the carriage and convoy to Berwick and Carlisle, being near 100 miles, &c. The agents had written some time since, to know whether he desired to be Receiver-General for the additional poll and "review" within his present receipt; he answered them, that the receipt would be but small, and the country large, that he could not get head collectors to receive the money and bring it to him to the country towns, for the allowance by the Act, &c. It would not be possible to collect and return the money for 2*d*. in the pound. Dated 5 March 1689-90.

- March 9. 62. Letter of Israel Fielding to William Jephson, Esq., stating that Mr. Williamson, the receiver of Yorkshire and Northumberland, had given him notice he would send 3,000<sup>l</sup> to Berwick, by which his credit revived at Edinburgh. It contains also various other statements of moneys provided or to be provided for the King's service; that he could not well judge what his charge would be before the Danish troops were embarked, but thought beyond the 5,000<sup>l</sup>. If he had more than was needful it would be employed at Derry to the same end; on the morrow he should go back for Scotland and would use all means "that their march be not retarded." 70. Presentment of the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Customs to the Lords of the Treasury, stating that it had been thought fit, in consideration of the mixture of syrups and other materials used in making tobacco into roll, to deduct 10 per cent. upon exportation, over and above the usual allowance of tare for the package, which was further reduced to 5 per cent. The merchants of London and Bristol complained that the manufacture of spinning and rolling tobacco (which employed many hundreds of poor people, men, women, and children,) was in great danger of being lost, and driven into other countries, and also that foreign manufacture stopped the consumption of Virginia tobacco. The Com<sup>rs</sup> upon the considerations in their former memorial, had distinguished roll tobacco into two sorts, viz., a brighter and a darker sort, and suggested that 5 per cent. should only be deducted from the darker sort, and that the brighter sort should be free, which was agreed to by their Lordships, but that not proving sufficient to keep up the manufacture of that commodity, they now advised that rolled tobacco should be exported without any

He had sent a particular of the pay given to the Danes in Scotland; the account of the contingent charge should be sent as soon as he returned; what would be further chargeable on them would not exceed if it came to 800 or 1,000*l.* He had hinted that he thought they could not well be accompted with till he went to them in Ireland, which would gain a little time if money were hard to come at. He supposed he should have the last 2,000*l.*, to be employed as the King's service should require, though the Lords of the Committee had designed to send him down 3,000 horse, to embark from Kircudbright. The contingent charge would appear to have been influenced by Scotch consciences; but if none were joined to him hereafter, the money would be managed with more frugality. in the customs in the port of London as their Lordships should think fit; certifying their high approval of him, as a person of no mean experience, and that they in the previous July designed him to visit the western ports; and were giving him instructions and despatches for that purpose, when they received a warrant from their Lordships to dismiss him and to constitute Col. Willm. Parsons in his stead, expressing the opinion that he was well qualified as a land surveyor of that port. Dated 18 July 1690.

15. Presentment of the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Customs to the Lords of the Treasury, setting forth the difficulties they had met with from the Patent officers, who refused to comply with the arrangement that had been made to render them more useful; and laying before their Lordships more particularly the case of Oliver Lyme, comptroller of the port of Chester and members, who had in 1681, been detected of divers frauds and misdemeanors, committed in the port of Liverpool, a member of the port of Chester; but who found means to obtain a pardon. It was however found convenient to order him to remove to Chester, being the head port, and to allow 20*l. per ann.*, out of the profits for a deputy to be provided by the Board, but in regard to his health he was allowed to remain at Liverpool, provided he did not interfere with the management of the office there; but lately he had withheld from Mr. Thos. Warburton, the appointed deputy, the 20*l.* a year and the clerk's profits; and had hindered him in the execution of his duty under the pretence of executing the office in person, or appointing his own deputy; moving their Lordships to consider the case, as the management of the office would be materially affected, by this case acting as an example with the other Patent officers, and would render the Com<sup>rs</sup> unable to manage upon the present establishment; further, that their Lordships would lay their hands on his salary by suspension, or otherwise, to compel him to comply with the establishment. Dated 23 July 1690.

Report of Sir Geo. Treby giving his opinion that they could suspend the controller.

Dated 28 July 1690.

Minuted:—"The 110*l.* to be payd by the 6 juniors: viz., the senior 10<sup>li</sup> and the others 20<sup>li</sup> a peice, & to be discharg'd in turns as the superannuated officers dye off." 2 pages.

[? July 28.]

19. Another paper, probably an enclosure to the preceding, containing memoranda, showing that by warrants of the year 1686 certain payments were to be made by the junior landwaiters to officers removed, and that by one of that year, the above Joshua Savage was made a landwaiter, instead of Anthony Weldon, who succeeded Samuel Bathurst and had ever since paid 40*l.* per ann. to the latter. Though he could not be relieved by the words of the order, he seemed to be within the reason of it. Ending with suggestions for the relief of Mr. Savage. 2 pages.

James Kendall, Captain-General and Commander-in-Chief of that island, who had arrived on 12 May, and if this were not an uncertain conveyance (there being but two or three small ships of little force without convoy,) he would have sent their Lordships the account of receipts of the casual revenue to Christmas last, but hoped to do so with more safety by the next fleet, which would sail with a convoy. He then gives an account of what had happened up to the 24th of July, viz, that little had been received by him, and he could not make so speedy a return as their Lordships expected, for bills of exchange were from 15*l.* to 20*l.* per cent. in exchange, and not to be purchased at that rate from good men that would comply duly with their payment; there were enough of others that would not so comply at something more moderate, who would take money and give their bills, which would never be paid but with long time and great difficulty, and those he avoided, for few men of credit and ability had effects in England for want of ships to carry their produce thither. This and the last year had brought such plentiful crops of all things that this island produced, that it was there of little value for want of conveyance to send it to market, which also was the reason their Majesties' revenue of 4½ per cent., and other customs there, appeared not so considerable as they were in themselves, and would prove to be, for those revenues could only be levied as the produce was shipped off, and whenever that were the case it would produce considerably, and what was short in one year would be supplied in the next, for it must be shipped off whenever ships could be had, it not being possible to consume any considerable part of it there; the people there very zealously laid hold of their Majesties' grace in giving leave to commute that duty of 4½ per cent. for some other revenue of a better value; it was then five weeks since Admiral Wright, with his squadron of ships, went to the Leeward Carribee Islands, with intent to make some considerable attempt on the French, of which, or their success, they had no account, but were in daily hopes of having good news from them, knowing the French had no ship of force in America, and that they were not very strong or well manned in any or all the islands, so that they had all the reason imaginable to believe when the fleet returned it would be with honour and victory. He then begs, on account of his health, to be allowed to come to England, and when recovered to return to end his days in that island. Dated 27 June 1690. 3½ pages.

22. Report of the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Customs to the Lords of the Treasury, on the petition of Christopher Dodsworth, merchant, setting forth that of late years the exportation of silver had been so great that the working goldsmiths, the last session of Parliament, petitioned for redress thereof, and asserted that the milled money was usually melted down and exported to their disadvantage and that of the nation; that the petitioner had found by entries at the Custom House, London, from 3 Mar. to 11 Sept., about 6,000 ounces of silver had been publicly shipped for Holland and other foreign markets; that the law gave leave for exportation of foreign bullion only, and the petitioner was advised that, if melted down here, it was an English manufacture, and ought to pay custom outwards; and being advised that above 60,000 ounces were being shipped, he informed the officers of customs, and went with them on board one of the ships and found about 35,000 ounces, and about 16,000 ounces of mixed metal, not worth above 4*s.* per ounce, when the standard was 5*s.* 2*d.*, and the officer, concluding it an English manufacture, seized it; on which the Attorney-General's opinion was taken, who was in favour of the payment of the custom, but one of the Board declared against breaking an old custom, and so the officer was fearful to act; that the custom of the parcel lately shipped amounted to 800*l.* and for six months past to 6,000*l.*: praying their Lordships to hear counsel on the subject. The report they make is, that by the laws, as they then stood, the exportation as well as the importation of bullion was encouraged, and made free of all duties and fees; and by bullion had been always understood

13. Reasons offered by Sir Charles Bickerstaffe for their Majesties buying all sorts of English timber at the first hand.

[There are some curious remarks as to the most desirable time of the year for felling timber and the influence of the soil on the soundness of the timber, &c. amongst which are]:—

"The most knowing persons cannot so well judge of timber (and especially of) plank when it is converted and delivered into their Maties stores, as if they viewed the trees ere the defective parts were cutt off, as also the soyle whereon they stand, for the seemingly firme timber of a decayed tree (when converted) may appear good, but is not lasting or fit for the use of the Navy.

"That unlesse their Maties are the first buyers, winter fel'd timber will not only be much dearer, but also not easily had, it being against the custome to fell oake timber in winter, altho' that timber is infinitely better for the frames of shippes and tree-nayles, as also for all other timber and planks that cannot be shifted but at very great charge, for the spring season (altho' most usuall for cutting oake timber) is very pernicious to its duration."

And again:—

"That the sodaine decay of the thirty shippes (whereof many have been twice repaired at very great charge) was for want of these methods in providing timber, for very many of those shippes were built with old decayed and spring felled timber, greene from the stubb, and also with very much east country plank, which is generally so perishable that the late Com<sup>rs</sup> of the Navy durst not buy it, without Order of Councell to justify them."

Report of the same to the same, stating that he had considered the copy of a bill sent him, prepared to be passed in Parliament, for making void a grant of the honour and manor of Tudbury and forest of Needwood, in the counties of Derby, Stafford, Leicester, Nottingham, and Warwick, granted to Rupert Brown and Saml. Boherne, gent. Brunskell, addressed to the Lords of the Treasury, stating that some of their Lordships' clerks had told his landlord and other of his creditors that their Lordships did not intend to do anything for him; the lawyers "possessed" his creditors that his petition and proposals in Parliament would not protect him, he had told their Lordships that he had lost all, and contracted debts in the discovery of ministers' and officers' corruptions. Minuted:—"May 5, '91. Payd 500<sup>li</sup>."

The memorial states, that on the 5th of January they had calculated the charge of transporting recruits from England to Ireland, and from Ireland and Scotland to Flanders, &c., at 16,133<sup>l</sup>. 7s. 2d., of which they had received 13,000<sup>l</sup>.; they had bought 8,000 bushels of oats at Whitehaven, to be sent to Ballyshannon, the cost of which was 726<sup>l</sup>. 16s. 8d.; they had provided for the transportation of 500 artillery and 500 waggon horses, and 300 men, at a cost of 509<sup>l</sup>. 7s. 6d.; they had hired ships and made provision to carry to Holland the 2nd troop of English and the Dutch Guards, being 652 horses and riders, the charge for which was 2,182<sup>l</sup>. 13s. 9d., whereof there was due 182<sup>l</sup>. 13s. 9d.; they had orders to take up ships at Highlake, to transport 700 recruit horses and riders, and at Biddeford ships for 300 horses and riders, the charge of which was computed at 2,958<sup>l</sup>. 15s., but they feared it was insufficient, as they could not find ships in Liverpool and Chester water for above 120 horses; they must take the rest up, if possible, at Whitehaven, and send them to Highlake. They were ordered to direct Mr. Henley to fit up all the ships he could, the cost of which would be about 500<sup>l</sup>. Mr. Middleton's account of provisions for soldiers and prisoners, bound from Cork to Ostend, was 889<sup>l</sup>. 16s. 7d.; they had bills running on them for provisions, and all the sums amounted to 8,880<sup>l</sup>. 16s. 8d., without which the service must stand still. In addition to which there were great quantities of provisions spent at Bristol by the recruits on shipboard, of which they had no account; but Mr. Henley called earnestly for near 1,000<sup>l</sup>., and the people were growing diffident of dealing with him, except for ready money; the bills coming due daily would be protested for non-acceptance, for they must refuse to accept new bills where so many old ones lay unpaid. 2½ pages.

25. Letter, signed G. Talbot, to "My most honoured L<sup>d</sup>," stating that since his Lordship had so freely offered his favour in promising to use his utmost interest to Lord Godolphin in his behalf, it would be a kind of rudeness in him not to lay hold on it with thanks. Sir Fras. Lawley had written him word that his (the writer's) petition for the revival of his privy seal, of 400*l.* per ann., granted by King Charles II., or else 4,000 ounces of old broken plate, lay before the Lords of the Treasury: begging him to employ his utmost interest with Lord Godolphin and the rest of the Commissioners in his behalf, if his Lordship pleased to lay before them the unparalleled hardship of his case, having been commanded to serve the Crown first as Resident, and then as Envoy Extraordinary at Venice, when by reason of the wars His then Majesty could give him no support, and in consequence he spent all his private fortune and contracted a great debt; beseeching his Lordship to press [their Lordships] to rescue him from his necessitous condition. 47. Report of the Com<sup>rs</sup> for the Revenue of Ireland to the Lords of the Treasury, on the petition of the Mayor, commonalty, and citizens of the city of Londonderry, which complained of the disbursements they had been at, and the losses sustained by them in the preservation of that place; that they were brought to a very low and ruinous condition, their suburbs and plantations, &c. about the city, destroyed, their public buildings and many of their houses within the city lying yet all in rubbish, &c.; that they had taken of the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Revenue in Ireland some lands in the barony of Glenarme, and liberties of Coleraine, being part of the forfeited estate of the Earl of Antrim, (whose regiment was first repulsed before their walls on shutting the gates in December 1688,) and prayed the remission of a year's rent, &c. The report informs their Lordships, that as to that part of the Earl of Antrim's lands taken by the petitioners' agent in their behalf, they were posted among other forfeited lands in that county, and he being the fairest bidder, they were set by them; viz.: the lands for 1,356*l.*, and the arrears for 1,079*l.*; and as to the sufferings, merits, and ruin of that city, they were very remarkable and great; but as they did not think it fit to prescribe or limit their Majesties' bounty, they chose to be silent on that point; if the petitioners expected a grant of the Earl of Antrim's estate, it was computed at the value of 15,000*l.* per ann. Dated 28 June 1691.

Memorial (signed) of divers owners or masters of vessels, engaged in the transport service, to the Lords of the Treasury, stating that they had continued above 24 months in that service, without their just pay, contrary to the tenor of their charter party; praying for at least 10 months' pay. Michelburne's regiment, and at the storming of the city of Limerick lost his leg, on 27 Aug. 1690; praying on account of his helpless condition to be provided for.

- Aug. 5. 9. Presentment of the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Transportation to the Lords of the Treasury, stating that they had represented on the 27th and 29th past that to put the transport ships into any condition to serve longer they must speedily be supplied with money, amounting to 15,528*l.* The owners of the ships there [? London] and at Bristol were very dissatisfied with the payment by tallies, by reason that the sum allowed if paid in ready money would scarce suffice to repair their ships and victual the men for three months, and pay a small part of the wages, and it would cost 15*l.* in the 100*l.* to put off their tallies; and therefore they prayed that tallies might be struck for so much more in the hundred, or double the allowance for repairs. The seamen at the out-ports were much in want of clothes and money to support their families; they would all desert, as many had done. They could not be furnished with shipping without ready money to transport from Cork to Ostend 10,000 foot and 600 horse, at a charge of 12,372*l.*, as they would be obliged to hire 4,124 tons of shipping to complete the tonnage necessary for that service.

Mr. Blathwayt had acquainted them that about 500 recruits for foreign regiments in Ireland were shortly to be transported from Highlake, and Capt. Atkinson informed them that the provisions at Highlake were spent, and no more to be had without "present money," his engagements being already near 2,000*l.* The charge of these provisions would be 150*l.* Their Lordships had ordered 1,200*l.* to be divided between Highlake and Bristol, out of which they intended to pay a bill of Capt. Atkinson's of 700*l.*, and the rest to Mr. Henley, and it would be a great discouragement to them if they were not paid. They had computed the charge of transporting from hence to Holland 110 men of the Guards, at 64*l.* They prayed their Lordships to remember their former presentment of 7,488*l.* 18*s.* 2*d.*, due for provisions, whereof 3,633*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.* remained of the estimate of 16,133*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.*, made in the previous January, which was approved by their Lordships, and payment thereof promised and ordered; in confidence whereof they proceeded to make provisions to carry men to Flanders and Ireland, which were not then paid for. Dated 5 Aug. 1691.

41. Memorial of Mr. John Lithered to the Lords of the Treasury, stating that he attended the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Customs with Mr. Hough, who came to town on Saturday, and he believed he was more indisposed in mind than body, the true reason being that he had been tampering with persons to set their names to certain certificates, which (the petitioner would undertake to make appear, by affidavits from substantial well-affected persons about Margate,) were for the most part criminals in that affair, as well as himself, especially Francis Diggs and others, who were as true French and self-interested persons as Mr. Wells, the officer at Sandwich, was, or as Mr. Hough himself was when an officer in Sussex, or Sir Nicholas Butler when a Com<sup>r</sup> of Customs, and he wished that there was not reason to expect that there were some "of the same kidney" at the Hon. Board at that time. The petitioner avers that it was commonly reported that he was gone to France almost as soon as he got out of sight, and his wife was abused by the mob, who rent her clothes from her and her flesh in several parts, telling her her husband was a rogue and gone to France to sell us, notwithstanding which the Com<sup>rs</sup> credited his certificate more than the petitioner's certificate. 15. Report of the principal officers of the Mint, on the proposals and reasons offered to their Majesties by Sir William Phipps, &c., for obtaining a grant to the general court, in the province of Massachusetts Bay in New England, of the liberty of coining. They conceived it very probable that most of the moneys which had been coined in New England from 1652 (when they had the privilege of coining) might still remain there; the lightness of the coins discouraging their exportation (being about 22½ per cent less in value than our English silver coins), and encouraging the bringing in of foreign coins from Jamaica, Barbadoes, and other places. It was scarcely credible that buyers should want small moneys for change, since the coined moneys of New England were the shilling, sixpence, threepence, and twopence, besides small Spanish coins current there, as in other English colonies. They might (if their Majesties approved) be supplied with pence, half-pence, and farthings of tin from England, to their Majesties' advantage. The privilege of coinage had not been granted to other English colonies as represented. The instance of the East India Company was very different, the privilege of coinage being restricted to their forts in India, and to the coinage of moneys current in the dominions of those Indian princes only. But if their Majesties grant the privilege of coining moneys to the general court in the province of Massachusetts Bay in New England, they proposed that the moneys might be in weight and fineness according to the standard of the Mint in England. The altering the standard in any one of their Majesties' dominions would be an eminent prejudice to the rest. Dated 19 Jan. 1691.

- Feb. 22. 39. Report of Wm. Lowndes to the Lords of the Treasury, on the memorial of the Lord Wm. Paulett, certifying that the fines, penalties, and sums of money arising upon judgments, quod capiatur and capias pro fine, and the revenues and profits arising upon the Greenwax, at the Exchequer, and all arrears (with divers exceptions) were (by Pat., 27 May, 2 Will. & Mary) granted to the said Lord William for 31 years, at a rent of 500*l.* per ann., and under certain other conditions. His Lordship desired that the salary of the Surveyor of Greenwax might be allowed him out of the rent. Mr. Lowndes certifies that the office of Surveyor was (by letters patent of 5 Sept., 1 Will & Mar.) granted to Nathaniel Booth, Esq., with a salary of 250*l.*; but he did not find any clause that his Lordship should pay the salary out of his pocket. Their Lordships had ordered the salary to be paid out of the debts of any accounting sheriff. His opinion was, that the 246*l.* 9*s.* 8*d.*, certified by the deputy clerk of the Pipe, was all the money which Lord Paulett had received, and that the salary paid to the Surveyor should be allowed his Lordship, in part of the arrear of rent of 500*l.* per ann. He conceived that it might not be proper for their Lordships to make an order that Lord Paulett's deputies might search the records of the King's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer, gratis, as was sought; but that the judges of those Courts should be applied to. The quarter's rent which was sought for would be 125*l.* There were several branches of the Greenwax excepted; viz., the fines, penalties, and forfeitures upon

He relates other grievances, and states that the "reducement" of Ireland, which benefitted others, gave him no relief. Praying for his arrears and for confirmation of his half pay.

- March 14. 67. Report, signed "C. Godolphin," to the Lords of the Treasury, on Mr. Snagg's proposals for a grant to coin and vend tin farthings and halfpence for four years; in consideration whereof he was to advance to their Majesties 10,000*l.*, being the equivalent of 3,000*l.* a year at 8*l.* per cent. Stating that there had been coined by the Royal authority since Lady Day 1684 (when the first commission for tin farthings and halfpence was granted) near 59,000*l.*, whereof only 8,500*l.* had been sent to Ireland.
About 21,000*l.* had been the net profit which had accrued to the Crown from the said coinage; 3,000*l.* a year was a greater profit than had been answered to the Crown from the coinage of farthings. It might deserve further consideration how far it might be fit to farm out the coinage of any species of money. He was of opinion that the revenue would be greatly improved by a more extensive distribution of these coins through all parts of England (instead of such discounts as are made for taking them off here), whereby counterfeits would be in a good measure prevented, the poor more duly supplied, and exchange in trade better accommodated. He presumed there might, with care, be 10,000*l.* a year profit realized; 64*l.* per ton was pretty near the market price of tin, but that which was coined (instead of 80*l.*, which was proposed) was worth 180*l.* per ton above the ordinary charge of issuing. 68. Report of the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Customs to the Lords of the Treasury in respect to certain laws passed in the Assembly of Virginia, viz., an Act for Ports, &c., and an Act for the advancement of the manufactures of the growth of that country; advising that the latter law ought not to be revived, as it seemed unreasonable to compel the merchants to receive debts in commodities, which might be of no use to them, &c.; as to the other Act, which provided (1), that all commodities should be imported and exported at the ports set out in the Act; and (2), that a duty should be laid on furs and hides, &c., advising that the building of towns, setting out ports and places for the shipping and landing goods, to bring the people of the country to "a more regular settlement and cohabitation" was very desirable to be encouraged; but it was unreasonable to compel the inhabitants to bring their goods before there were places convenient for their reception; the buying and selling should be restrained to the places to be set out. They referred their Lordships to a former report, which seemed to be made with great deliberation, and their opinion was, that part of the law ought not to pass, but that the Governor should, with proper assistance, take [care] that wharfs and quays should be built. The proposed duty on furs and hides was about 25 per cent. on the value, and would be a total prohibition of the trade, and hinder the exportation of coarse woollen manufactures. Amongst other purposes the duty was proposed towards the maintenance of a pious and learned ministry, and they conceived if 7½ per cent. were laid on those commodities (being the same as was laid on them in the colony of New York), the trade would bear it, the experiment should be tried, and the proceeds be wholly applied to that purpose, &c., Dated 15 March 1691-2.

Accompanied by two schedules, 1st, of commodities proposed for the payment of debts in Virginia, with the rates and prices thereof; and, 2nd, the rates and duties imposed upon the exportation of furs and hides, by an Act made in the Assembly of Virginia in April 1691. 6 pages.

Langston and Col. Windham, with several horses of the Duke of Savoy, the Earl of Argyle, Col. Erle, and several foot regiments, amounting to 984 men and 937 horses, the cost of which would be 3,259*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*; the officers of the Ordnance demanded freight for 3,700 tons of shipping to carry stores at 14*s.* per ton per month; the fleet of transports that sailed under the convoy that attended His Majesty putting into Harwich were furnished with oats, &c.; the Earl of Athlone demanded, for carrying his horses, &c., 100*l.*; their Lordships had promised 2,000*l.* a week till 7,698*l.*, due to the masters at Biddeford, Bristol, &c., were paid, and expected the remainder before entering upon fresh agreements; their Lordships also promised 500*l.* per week to pay 4,719*l.* 19*s.* to the masters of ships that lately transported men from the River Thames to Holland, only 500*l.* of which was ordered. 79. Report of William Tailer, Deputy Surveyor, to the Lords of the Treasury, stating that he had considered the annexed petition of Mr. John Whiteing, and perused a copy of a patent of 13 Car. 1., whereby the King granted to Thomas Talbot, Esq., and Richard Allen, gent., the waste and muddy ground, commonly called Jarrow-slike, in the parish of Jarrow, in the county Palatine of Durham, within the high-water mark of the River Tyne, containing about 300 acres, in consideration of a fine of 40*l.*, and under the yearly reserved rent of 5*l.*, and a further reservation of 4*d.* per acre, of so much as should exceed 300 acres, but without any clause of re-entry and avoiding the grant for non-payment, so that it seemed still in force. The 5*l.* per ann. had been paid from 1642, but was in arrear from the Restoration. By the grantees having made no benefit of their patent it seemed the recovery of the land was difficult and chargeable, and they would most likely be contented to relinquish their interest if their Lordships discharged the arrear (157*l.* 10*s.*), or granted the same arrear to the petitioners, who might procure a surrender, &c., advising that the petitioner might reasonably deserve a new grant, &c. After his return he was sent for again, by warrant of 30 January, to state the arrear due to the army in Ireland, and had to bring over all the muster rolls (which were a horse load), and a commissary and clerk, who, besides his servants, had been maintained and employed by him ever since their coming; praying for some allowance.

- April 2. 3. Report of the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Customs to the Lords of the Treasury upon a proposal of the Lord Lanesboro and Onesephorus Albin, for the better collection of the alien duty, and the improvement of trade and customs, stating that a great part thereof is grounded upon a mistaken supposition, that the alien duties are still payable upon the native commodities of this kingdom exported, &c.; further as to what measures had been adopted in relation to aliens' import duties. They feared that frauds were practised by persons of desperate fortunes; yet it was not supposed that men of substance and reputation, by whom the trade of the kingdom was generally carried on, would subject themselves to such severe penalties as præmunires and other great forfeitures provided, for colouring strangers' goods; and it was very improbable that the frauds could bear any proportion to the value mentioned in the proposal, &c. Respecting the prevention of the running of goods and the encouragement of seamen, the greatest care was used; it was under consideration, during the last session of Parliament, how some impositions might be laid at the Custom House without unhooking the present book of rates, which ought not to be altered without great consideration. The report notices the articles in the proposal seriatim, and concludes by stating that they observe nothing in the paper but what had been already foreseen; and particularly the obsolete practice of taking bonds of merchant strangers, to employ half the value of their merchandise in the commodities of this kingdom, which practice had not been in use from the time of Charles I., the trade being at that time chiefly driven by merchant strangers, but at the time of the report the trade was wholly altered, and was almost entirely in the hands of English merchants and the very nature of the trade was altered; for in those days there was no trade to the East or West Indies, or any plantation; and to lay such a clog on, as was proposed, would prove a great obstruction to trade, and by consequence, instead of an increase, a prejudice to the customs; it being most certain that the freer and more easy trade is in any place the more it flourishes. Dated 2 April 1692.

The proposal referred to, and another paper entitled: "The points we would discours upon before y<sup>e</sup> Lords of y<sup>e</sup> Councell, Treasury, & Commiss<sup>rs</sup> of y<sup>e</sup> Customs." 9½ pages.

- April 5. 4. Report of the officers of the Mint to the Lords of the Treasury, on the petition of the Duchess of Grafton, praying for the grant of letters patent empowering the coining and uttering penny and two-penny pieces, to be composed out of coarse silver, after the manner of stivers current in the United Provinces of the Netherlands; advising,—

(1.) That great inconveniences would follow as those coins would come to the Excise and Post Office, and the Exchequer would be the centre for the greatest part of them; and stating other inconveniences under six other heads.

The sixth and seventh heads are as follows:—

(6.) "If base moneys be in use in other countries, it had its beginning from great necessities, and the Government always had the advantage of it."

(7.) That Spain long since being sensible of the great inconveniences of base moneys (as we are credibly informed), decried all theirs, as France lately did, for the same reason. "That base moneys coined in the reign[s] of Henry the 8th and Edward the 6th, were by Queene Eliz. called in, and reduced to its true value, as it hath ever since continued." Dated 5 Apr. 1692.

[This is in duplicate.]

3. "Reply to the report from the officers of the Mint, concerning the coynage of pence & 2<sup>d</sup> pieces."

[In duplicate.]

Under the last head of these replies, it states that, "since Henry the 8th time the value of money as to things bought therewith, is not now above the 4th part of what it was then, as for example a person could buy as much hay, corne, cheese, &c. in K. Henry 8th time for 1<sup>s</sup>, as he can now for 4<sup>s</sup>; as is apparent from the Statutes of those times; soe then a farthing would goe as far in the market then as a penny will now," &c.

4. Petition of the said Duchess (signed) urging that, as the officers of the Mint had objected nothing material to her proposal, but only alleged that where such pieces had been in use the Government had always had the benefit, and that 40 per cent. might be gained thereby; so she humbly submitted the profits to His Majesty, and prayed he would grant her such allowance as to his wisdom and clemency should seem meet. praying the grant of Her Majesty's moiety of the goods. The report states: "That it seems to us that the whole carriage of this buisnes (as well the importation from Holland, as the conveyance up the river), was by some one of the ships of warr, and the boats that attended her, for that the greatest part of the goods were found on board a hired ketch belonging to the ship "Northumberland," and were brought on board the said ketch by the said ship's pinnace, which gives us occasion againe to reflect (as frequently we have been constrained to doe), upon the unwarrantable proceedings of the men-of-war, and their ungovernable carriage in relation to the customs." A clipper of note, as Lacy was, could command money from his confederates, and they would readily pay rather than be discovered, and goldsmiths and cash keepers undoubtedly furnished clippers with broad money. In May 1688, five persons, viz., Emet, Lambourne, Collet, Palmer, and Cogswell, were condemned on the evidence of Thomas Baily for clipping, &c., praying that as the petitions of such criminals had usually been referred to the Mint, and as Lacy was reprieved without confessing, their Lordships would order that part (at least) of the money he had paid and promised for his reprieve might be applied to the use of the Mint. The petitioner compounded for his first fruits on 8 Sept. 1690, so that there were three years arrear due from John Duff, the late incumbent (5l. 7s. 3d.), the loss of which must be sustained by the present incumbent, unless recovered from Duff's executors, or from their Majesties' bounty, out of secret service, by the recommendation of the Bishop of London. They reported that they had 25 masters of ships on board on the same account, and that they were on the coast to receive their ransoms. The writer [who was secretary to King James the Second] had previously written in favour of Geraldine (or Gerardin) but that letter was not to be considered in opposition to the claim of Butts, the English commissary. The Lord Lucan had shown the writer the article in the capitulation of Limerick, referring to the transport of the Irish troops into France; and the King did not wish to give any advantage to his enemies by infringing the terms of the capitulation. The claim of Butts is therefore to be strictly discharged, and he is to be treated well by the officers of justice, when engaged upon his affairs at Nantes.

He was uncertain if any grant was obtained, but the contrary was alleged, and suggested that a lease in such general terms as was then advised might be granted to the proposer, but the offer of a thirteenth part was less than usual. He had known a sixth part reserved, and never less than a tenth, as was then made payable on lead and ore, in the county of Flint, by Dr. Edisbury.

Aug. 18. 36. Report of the Commissioners of Sewers for Sussex on the petition of Robert Colepeper, gent., setting forth that the lands mentioned in the petition contained several thousand acres of which the petitioner had about 50; 5,000 acres or more were anciently very low brook lands, or moors adjacent to the river of Rother, and long before the reign of Henry VIII. "sewed" into the sea at Rumney, through Rumney Marsh, distant from Rye towards the north-east several miles. The harbour of Rye then and now ought to lie on the west side of Rye town, towards Winchelsea, but the sea breaking suddenly into a small sewer between Guildford Marsh and some low brook lands near the town of Rye, on the south-east side, flowed several miles up into the counties of Kent and Sussex, and drowned several thousand acres of land, and by the violent flux and reflux of the sea far up into the country formed a channel on the east side of the town of Rye; and thereupon the inhabitants of Rye and their western neighbours began to divide and share the harbour by "inning" or embanking several parts thereof from the sea. This increased the flow of the channel and made it more easy to gain more land out of the harbour, which the inhabitants did not omit to do; and thereby left little more than a channel, now called Rye ferry. Afterwards the owners of the drowned lands gained them from the sea, and in 1627 there was not 18 inches of water at ebb tide, where Rye town would then have a harbour, instead of their own harbour, which lay on the other side of the town. When the drowned lands were regained from the sea and the harbour of Rye shut off from the sea, the sea lodged so much "sleech or slubb" in the Rother, as soon stopped the sewer thereof; and thereupon the Rother rose to that height that it surrounded 3,000 acres with fresh water. This alarmed the country, as well to recover the drowned lands as to preserve the 2,000 other acres of land, then decaying, and in danger of being lost, and thereupon several "indraughts" or receptacles were made to receive the salt as well as the fresh water at convenient times to be issued forth, both together, violently on a bare channel so as to maintain a depth and breadth sufficient to "sew" the said lands; and whilst the indraughts had any good effect the channel was of some tolerable depth, but the sea in time lodged so much slubb or sleech in the "indraughts," that it became feazable to make dry land of the same, and to preserve the sewer of the river of Rother also. And thereupon the country was at vast charge in designing the recovery of the one and the preservation of the other. The town of Rye foreseeing that they might lose the channel, exhibited a petition to King Charles the Second, and His Majesty was satisfied that the town of Rye had no pretence for a harbour on the east side of the town, which was formerly firm land, and part was meadow or "brook" land, and given by the Abbot of Roberts-Bridge to the corporation of Rye. The deed of grant among the records at Rye, was not many years before perused, and they conceived that His Majesty was satisfied by the Governor of Dover Castle that no charge or art could make a convenient harbour at Rye, to receive either men-of-war or merchant ships. And the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Sewers shut the sea out of a level called Wittersham Level, for which the owners of the upper levels had for many years paid over 3,000*l. per ann.*, and they had embanked nearly all that level. One end of Wittersham Level lay near the channel, on the east of the town, and the sea, by agreement between the owners of Wittersham Level and of the upper level (decreed in Chancery) being let into part of Wittersham Level, as an indraught, soon blew up all walls and drowned the whole level, and by the flux and reflux of the sea over that level, for about 50 years, the town of Rye during that time had the conveniency of that channel, &c. The town of Rye ought to consider that their harbour was and ought to be on the west of their town, and to consider the means to retrieve their harbour, and not to imagine the drowning a country which had been at several hundred thousand pounds charge, to secure itself from being drowned. The country had also been at great charge to procure the famous Mons. le Plau, (the surveyor of the Fen Level in Lincolnshire,) to take a journey to view these levels and works. The Com<sup>rs</sup> further thought it not requisite for the security of the country to consult new surveyors about projects of navigation, and forts which no law obliged them to undertake; and they conceived the petition and the two certificates were altogether "projectory" and would never tend to the service of the public. Dated 18 Aug. 1692.

Petition of John Earl of Clare, Henry Viscount Longeirle, Anthony Viscount Falkland, Doctor John Radcliffe, Richard Gee, George Dodington, Esqrs., and other partners of the ship "Lyon." addressed to the King, setting forth that they, at the instance of Mr. Thomas Hewetson, in 1688, raised 32,000*l.*, and a further sum of 4,800*l.*, and bought four ships; viz., the "Albemarle," "Palermatan," "Lyon," and "Hunter," fitted out the same for three years and freighted them at a cost of 9,445*l.* for a trading voyage to the south seas, in search of a wreck in those parts; all which ships, with 5,100*l.* to defray expenses, were put under the management of Hewetson, who proceeded on the voyage in Sept. 1688; but by his ill conduct, &c. the design was overthrown. The "Hunter" was blown up in the road of Barbadoes. The ship "Albemarle" left Hewetson on the coast of Brazil, and went to Montserrat, and from thence to England, with sugar, &c. and was there sold to pay the officers and men. The "Palermatan," re-fitted at Barbadoes, was employed in their Majesties' service, and the money allowed for her was paid to Hewetson's agents; and when she came to England the money made by her sale was paid to the officers and men employed in three of the ships. Barbadoes, and in her passage to England took a prize, which yielded about 2,500*l.*, which was all paid to the officers and men, whereby they lost 5,220*l.* Hewetson instead of going to the places appointed remained in the West Indies and employed the ship in several profitable voyages, between Jamaica and the Spanish Indies, and never gave any account of the profits. The ship "Lion" freighted with sugar from Jamaica, was needlessly taken to New York and Lisbon, and in May 1692 she arrived at Falmouth, where the petitioners seized her, &c. but many of the goods had been embezzled by Hewetson. The petitioners finding Hewetson endeavoured to get the money due for the freight into his hand, preferred a bill in Chancery against him and all the merchants concerned; and the freight was directed to be paid into Court. The petitioners had paid nearly 700*l.* to seamen turned over from the royal ships in the West Indies into the "Lion;" yet actions on account of wages had been brought in the Court of Admiralty against the ship, for above 10,000*l.*, whereby she was condemned, &c. The petitioners and partners had raised 42,020*l.*, of which Hewetson had in cargo and money 14,545*l.*, and had given no account of his other transactions, and they had lost by him 42,020*l.* besides the 700*l.* paid to the seamen; and yet more was demanded of them. The petitioners were informed that Hewetson was endeavouring to obtain the money to be allowed by the King, for seven months' service of the said ship "Lion." They prayed that the money might be divided amongst them.

Fitzpatrick, commander of the "St. Albans," each took a French prize, bound to Dublin, on board of which were wines and brandies, which, according to the Act of Parliament, should be destroyed "if brought to England;" but being desired by General Schomberg and several other field officers in Ireland for the soldiers in winter quarters in and about Belfast, they were suffered to be carried into Belfast and paid the duties, a great part was given, and the remainder sold for the nutriment of the soldiers. Dated 20 Feb. 1693-4. 2½ pages.

Feb. 20.

43. Report of the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Customs to the Lords of the Treasury, respecting a complaint against Mr. Francklyn, surveyor of the port of Deal, for being angry with Mr. Waring, the late collector of Deal, for giving him an account of a Sweeds ship that was bound to France, laden with tar and other stores; stating that they had written to the chief boatman, who heard the conversation, to transmit his opinion concerning Francklyn, of his affection or disaffection to the present Government, &c., to which they had received, in answer, an affidavit entirely in his favour; thereupon they made their presentment for removing him from Deal to Milford, believing him innocent of that matter, yet not thinking fit to continue him at Deal for other things charged against him, but not so fully made out as to amount to his dismissal; and further, it was agreeable to the methods of this Board, to remove officers from one port to another, upon strong suspicions of their too great familiarity with the merchants, or of undue practices, when there was not direct proof against them, thereby to break their measures and correspondences, without which any ill-practices could hardly be executed. Dated 20 Feb. 1693-4. 1½ pages.

Feb. 20.

44. Report of the [officers] of the Transport Office to the Lords of the Treasury, upon the papers of the Baron de Lutichaw, who had petitioned for two ships of about 200 tons each, victualled and equipped, to carry 200 Protestant families from Germany to Ireland; he computed they would amount to 1,000 persons, besides their goods, and the ships must make two voyages for them to Hamburg and from thence to Ireland. It would require eight months; the ships would each need 40 men and 20 guns, and could not be hired under 200*l.* per month each, besides which their Majesties would be obliged to insure them against the enemy; for which considerations they advised that it was better to ship the families on board the fleets that come from Hamburg, for England, by 10, 20, or 30 persons on a ship, whom the masters would be glad to bring over at about 20*s.* a head, they finding their own provisions. Dated 20 Feb. 1693-4.

Accompanied by two petitions of the Baron, and another report on the same subject. Dated 20 Jan. 1693-4.

VOL. XXVI.

In one of the petitions he says, he purposed bringing the families from Silesia in Germany, upon three proposals: 1st, that he might be furnished from the prize office with two transport ships; 2nd, that such goods and commodities as these 200 families should bring with them should be customs free; and 3rd, that he should have a grant to him and his heirs of forfeited lands in Ireland to the value of 700<sup>li</sup> per ann.

In the other he prays to have the two ships which those families would have occasion for, after they were transported, to send to and from Norway for boards, timber, and other necessaries for building their houses and settling themselves. 4 pages.

37. Letter of Col. Beeston [Governor of Jamaica] to the Lords of the Treasury, stating that the island of Jamaica furnished facilities for importation and exportation, and the planters sent off their goods to "Corisoe," and returned European goods to the prejudice of the customs, &c. He had ever since his arrival endeavoured to prevent it, but could never catch them until now, when two sloops had been seized. Their Majesties' part, it was thought, might amount to 200*l.*, and that sum was due to the people for the "Faulcon's" sick men, and he prayed to discharge that claim; and if any more came in, to be allowed to apply it for the putting their Majesties' house in a better condition, which was in no capacity to entertain an indifferent family, and the treasury, by reason of the war, could not sustain the charges of the Government. Wolseley, by an order of the Lord Lieutenant, stopped 3*d.* per day out of the subsistence of the soldiers of his regiment, for a debt owing since their last clothing; and for the future the soldiers were to receive but 12*d.* a day for subsistence. On inquiry they found that 11½*d.* a day was paid to each trooper, and this reduction from 15*d.* was made by a verbal order; they had informed the colonel that he must procure Her Majesty's order, or they could not justify the continuance of that reduction; giving their opinion that as perhaps three pence a day was too little for the clothing and accoutrements of a trooper, so elevenpence halfpenny was too little to maintain a trooper and his horse, if he paid his quarters, as it was necessary he should. Further stating that all the off-reckonings of the army, besides this regiment, were stopped in the Treasury and issued from thence for their clothing, &c. Dated Dublin Castle, 29 March 1694.

plainings of the great inconvenience arising by the refusal to pass the white half-pence and farthings in England: the poorer sort generally make their payments in white or copper half-pence—the people begin to scruple copper half-pence, the plate money had for some time been sent away privately into England, to save exchange; by which means scarce any silver was left, except ducatoons at 6s. a piece, and not enough of them for trade. The guineas were the chief coin for payments of customs and quit rents: they passed there at 23s. a piece, they heard they were current in England at 22s. of St. Martins in the Fields, in which he granted one acre of ground near adjoining to the church, to make a new churchyard. It contains the following recital of reasons for the grant; viz.: "that in the time of King Henry the Eighth, the said inhabitants had no parish church, but did resort to the parish church of St. Margaret's, in Westminster, and thereby were forced to carry their dead bodies by the court gate of Whitehall; which the said King Henry then misliking, caused the church in the parish of St. Martins in the Fields, to be erected, and made a parish there, which now is so greatly inhabited, as the church is not of sufficient bigness to receive the parishioners, and the churchyard so little, as there is no room to bury their dead. And forasmuch as we have two houses of access, situate within the same parish, and for that so small a place of buryall, may be cause of breeding and continuing the infection of the plague, and for that also, that the said parish is the chiefest place of residence for us and our councell, in times of terms and parliaments, and therefore carefully to be preserved from the least cause of contagion," &c. 3 pages.

VOL. XXXII.

He concludes his report thus:—"I lately ruled a constat in order to a grant to Sir Robert Cotton of mines in these lordships of Denbigh, Bromfeild, & Yale." Dated 26 April 1695.

The following entry is in the Minute Book, Vol. 6, p. 24, 10 May 1695:—

"Diverse gentlemen came to oppose the grant to the Earl of Portland, of the mannors of Denbigh, Bromfleet [Bromfield], & Yale.

"Sir W<sup>m</sup> Williams (who has an estate in the manors) saies these mannors are very large, of great value, about 2,000<sup>l</sup> a year, and a great number of gent<sup>en</sup> are interested in y<sup>m</sup>.

"That since ye creation they have had no Lord, but the Lord of Heaven & the King, & proceeded thus:—

"We never were concerned in a rebellion, but sometimes when we joynd wth or neighbours ye English.

"That 'tis difficult in point of law whether these mannors are grauntable or not, or be an inseperable part of ye inheritance of ye Pr. of Wales, & when a Prince of Wales is borne they are his, & ye crowne has nothing to do.

"Denbigh is annexed to ye principality by Act of Parl<sup>t</sup>, & I think it cannot be separated but by Act: 'twas in Queen Eliz<sup>a</sup> time.

"The Pr. of Wales alwaies had his revenue, court, & officers, & on ye creation of prince, this LoP paies a great mise; 'tis about 437<sup>l</sup>.

"However, I am sure 'tis most safe to go by Parl<sup>t</sup> & not by patent.

"For Bromf. & Yale w<sup>ch</sup> consists, I think, of 23 mannors, 'twas a customary estate, & in Cha. 1st time 'tis annex<sup>d</sup> to ye principality; 'twas a customary estate renewable & in 13 Cha. 1st 'tis turn'd to an inheritance, & also annexed & this LoP paies a mise of 400<sup>l</sup>.

"If there be a mesne lord he'l carry all ye royaltys, and questions will arise.

"The Acts of Pl<sup>t</sup> confirme or priviledges. Here is the K<sup>s</sup>. patentee & here may be a prince. Must the Lord or the Prince have it?

"These places are full of mines. A new Lord will have eagle's eyes, & there will be perpetuall suits. This is that w<sup>ch</sup> touches every man in ye county in his vitalls.

"22 Cha. 2 is to sell the fee farmes & dutchy rents of Cornwall, but there is an express saving for ye fee-farm rents of Wales; and when the Parl<sup>t</sup> would not lett them be sold, shall they be given now? The Parl<sup>t</sup> did interest the Lord Trer. & Com<sup>rs</sup> of ye Treasury to pursue the instructions of that Act.

"He saies that they have had but small time to make objections, & have not instructions from ye rest of their countrymen.

"Mr. Brierton saies that there may be an inconveniencie to the judges sallarys by this grant.

"Mr Price saies these lo<sup>rs</sup> conteyne about 5 parts in 6 of ye county. We owe a double allegiance as tenants & subjects. Wee would not have our allegiance weakened in any part. He saies he does not understand that one having an estate for life can make a grant in fee.

"That acts of reassumption have been grounded alwaies on paying of great taxes. We shall have a poor Crowne and weak-hearted people to serve the Crowne, if these grants goe on.

"Sir Robert Cotton saies in Queen Eliza. time, there was a grant to Earl Leicester of lands in Wales, w<sup>ch</sup> occasioned fraies, murthers, & many indictm<sup>ts</sup>, & made him surrender to ye Crowne in his life time.

The lordp of Denbigh was then granted to ye s<sup>d</sup> earle. My Lords will represent the matter to ye K.

"Sr Ri. Middleton, Sr John Wynn, Sr Walter Bagot, Sr Tho. Grosvenor, Sir Roger Mostyn, & others are in the countrey that (as Sr Wm Williams saies) would appear in this matter." 3 pages.

S<sup>r</sup> John Fleet saies of y<sup>e</sup> 500 tons, the Comp<sup>a</sup> has delivered 42 of their owne imp<sup>o</sup>. That those concerned wth the powder-makers have exch<sup>d</sup> theirs for Dutch peter, and the Company's invoices falling short, he went & bought Dutch peter at 70<sup>li</sup> a tonn, for the remainder (their owne being sold at 60<sup>li</sup>) and if refracted at 7½ p cent. se[es] no cause to complaine. (The K. has it at 45<sup>li</sup> per ton.) Their invoices fell short, because when the 'Modena' was cast away, the goods in the 'Cha. 2.' & other ships were extreemly damaged. Mr. Richardson saies 7½ per cent. is onely the allowance in Holl[an]d, but it will not refine the peter. S<sup>r</sup> John saies the powder-makers shall have none of y<sup>e</sup> Dutch peter, but theyl supply it out of the shipp 'Hawk,' now come from Ind<sup>a</sup>. They state that on the 23rd of August they attended the Treasury Chambers, not knowing on what account they were sent for, and were asked the reasons why they resigned their employments, but not being fully prepared to answer, they only gave such reasons as readily occurred to them. They repudiate the charge of combination to lay down their employment. He had given notice to the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Revenue that he had seized the ship, but they gave no directions for putting the goods into the King's store. He gives a further account of the proceedings in relation to the ship, which, without consulting him the Com<sup>rs</sup> admitted to an entry contrary to the Lord Deputy's order, &c.; the design he had in this seizure was, to detect a constant trade and correspondence with France. Dated 7 Dec. 1695.

On the back are various particulars respecting the above forfeited lands and the services of the petitioner.

Accompanied by a petition from the said Sir James Caldwell and the two reports referred to, and a memorandum of the yearly rent to the Crown of the said lands in Ballynoone, Ballylow, Oldtowne, and other lands.

The Solicitor-General's report sets forth the following particulars of the services and suffering of the petitioner, viz.:

That about the beginning of February ('88) he raised and maintained several horse and foot at Belleeke, in the county of Fermanagh, for the defence of His Majesty's interest, which forces enabled him to keep a considerable pass there, and the several fords of the River Erne which served to hinder communication between the enemy in

Connaught, under the command of Sarsfield, and those that lay before Derry; that Sir James by the assistance of his daughter, Elizabeth Caldwell, conveyed several quantities of gunpowder to the garrison at Belleek, Enniskillen, and other places near it, which was of great service to them, there not being two barrels of powder in Enniskillen at that time; that Sir James's house and town of Belleek were besieged by the enemy in May 1689, who endeavoured to make their passage that way, sometimes by threats, sometimes by advantageous proposals to Sir James; that he maintained that pass, and sending to Enniskillen for assistance, joined his forces, fell upon the enemy, killed and took a considerable number prisoners, with two pieces of cannon; that he posted his son Capt. Hugh Caldwell, at Donegall, who being attacked by above 2,000 dragoons, under command of the Duke of Berwick, defended the castle of Donegall; also hearing that Major General Kirk was landed at the Lough of Derry, Sir James went in an open boat many leagues on a dangerous coast, to inform General Kirk of the forces that were in that country, and also of the army that lay before Derry, at which time Major-General Kirk gave him a commission for a regiment of foot, and an independent troop of horse, and sent him back with Col. Wolsley, Col. Winn, and other officers, who, soon after they landed, engaged and routed Col. McCarty; that Sir James's house was made a garrison during the war, till Sligo was reduced, which occasioned great ruin and destruction to his house, town, and improvements, his iron works being pulled down, with several mills and other houses by the soldiers, who had mostly free quarters; his stud of horses and stock of cattle of great value made use of by the army, which was quartered upon him, by all which the petitioner's sufferings and losses were computed at 5,000*l.* or 6,000*l.*, &c. This report advises the granting of the estate of Dudley Bagnall, Esq., the rents of which were set for seven years at 964*l.* 16*s.*

26. Presentment of the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Excise to the Lords of the Treasury, relating to Sir Scroop Howe and the making up the yearly accounts of excise. Dated 10 Dec. 1695.

In the Minute Book, Vol. VI., p. 135, 20 Jan. 1695, is the following:—

"An order to be sent to Sir Scroop How requiring him to keep the same number of clerks and allow them y<sup>e</sup> same salarys as M<sup>r</sup> Ashmole did, and to despatch the acc<sup>ts</sup> of excise according to y<sup>e</sup> Com<sup>rs</sup> report of 10 X<sup>br</sup> '95."

There is also a further minute at p. 279, 21 Apr. 1696, on the same subject:—

"Com<sup>rs</sup> of Excise, S<sup>r</sup> Scroop How, & M<sup>r</sup> Story.—The Com<sup>rs</sup> desire S<sup>r</sup> Scroop may keep y<sup>e</sup> same number of clerks as M<sup>r</sup> Ashmole did, w<sup>ch</sup> would carry on y<sup>e</sup> acco<sup>ts</sup> of excise for y<sup>e</sup> time to come; but a greater number wilbe requisite to bring up y<sup>e</sup> acco<sup>ts</sup> that are in arreare. were, and enough to carry on y<sup>e</sup> work there; but twilbe hard for him to find clerks to do y<sup>e</sup> work, w<sup>ch</sup> should have been done per his predecessor. M<sup>r</sup> Story saies if the acc<sup>ts</sup> were even, he has assistance enough to carry them on, or S<sup>r</sup> Scroop would allow more. Being asked why these acc<sup>ts</sup> run in arrear in Ashmole's time, he answers these are properly the Com<sup>rs</sup> acco<sup>ts</sup>, and they should make them up themselves. M<sup>r</sup> Ashmole had 9 clerks, S<sup>r</sup> Scroop has 8. S<sup>r</sup> Scroop must keep 9 able clerks, wth good sallarys. S<sup>r</sup> Scroop saies they want in the whole upon their sallarys 40<sup>li</sup> a year. Ashmole allow'd 720<sup>li</sup> per ann.; none had less than 60<sup>li</sup> a year. The Com<sup>rs</sup> say S<sup>r</sup> Scroop allows but 460<sup>li</sup> a year, besides one clerk, whose sallary is not knowne to them. My Lords expect he keeps y<sup>e</sup> same number of clerks and allow as good sallarys as Ashmole did; but as to the extra charge to bring up ye acc<sup>ts</sup> in arrear, it is not reasonable S<sup>r</sup> Scroop should be at y<sup>e</sup> charge. That extra charge to be paid him by way of incidents. M<sup>r</sup> Story is to propose in writing w<sup>t</sup> instrum<sup>ts</sup> he would have & in w<sup>t</sup> time to make up these acco<sup>ts</sup>." 2 pages.

27. Letter of Mr. Francis Babe to William Lowndes, Esq., stating that he had written thrice to the Lords of the Treasury, and had received no answer, which made him fear their Lordships' offence; as he had found he (Mr. Lowndes) had been his particular friend he hoped he would continue so. He then says that Capt. Sam. Hobson, a surveyor of customs, who had made several seizures of French goods, had pressed him five or six times to bring the business of the French trade before the Irish House of Commons, but he had declined; upon which Hobson dispersed amongst the members a paper entitled "Severall usefull Queries;" on which a select committee was appointed to examine it, and Mr. Babe was summoned to give information thereon, and although he was not the author, yet he stated he could prove the truth of some articles therein. A trade was carried on by Scotch merchants living in Ireland with France, and through them the enemy were supplied with provisions in the year 1693, when the commonalty of France were perishing for want of bread, and intelligence by letters was sent from Dublin of our naval preparations for a descent on France, and a short time after we were unsuccessful in our attempt on St. Malo. These merchants manned their ships outward-bound with Englishmen, and left them in foreign parts to beg, so that some hundreds were begging at St. Sebastians and Bilboa, in Spain.

Upon hearing the matter it appeared Mr. Carleton was considerably concerned in the French trade. Mr. Carleton, out of spite, procured two surveyors to prove certain words uttered by him (Mr. Babe). The House voted that he had committed a high breach of privilege, on which he was confined eight days and received a reprimand on his knees in the house; begging Mr. Lowndes' mediation in case the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Revenue had endeavoured to incense their Lordships against him. Dated 10 Dec. 1695.

his estate comes to y<sup>e</sup> K. subject to this 2,000<sup>l</sup> and is ready to prove his deed; besides 400<sup>l</sup> a year is granted to M<sup>rs</sup> Bagnall & her children out of this estate by His Maj. The 3 witnesses to y<sup>e</sup> deed are, L<sup>d</sup> Hunsden, dead, and they can prove his hand, M<sup>r</sup> Brent, y<sup>e</sup> same, and one Power who is in France, and insists that proving their hands is legall proof. S<sup>r</sup> Richard Levinz [Levinge?], saies the proof should be made in Ireland; it is necessary to prove 'twas executed at y<sup>e</sup> time of y<sup>e</sup> date for it might [be] after y<sup>e</sup> treason committed. S<sup>r</sup> Thomas Powys saies if y<sup>e</sup> deed were never executed, yet in equity his clyent ought to have y<sup>e</sup> 2,000<sup>l</sup> per the articles; especially since y<sup>e</sup> jointure was made. M<sup>r</sup> White saies Bagnall was in England in Octobr 1688. That w<sup>h</sup>soever right M<sup>r</sup> Clifton has, yet the estate being found for y<sup>e</sup> King and no notice taken of his right, he is putt to a petition of right w<sup>h</sup> wilbe tedious & chargeable; besides tho the proof be legal, they will not admit it so in Ireland.

"Mrs. Caldwell saies her father will give security for paying 400<sup>l</sup> a year to M<sup>rs</sup> Bagnall & a 100<sup>l</sup> a year to S<sup>r</sup> Gervaise Clifton, for the interest of his 2,000<sup>l</sup>, and she desires the King will grant him a clause of reprisalls." 5 pages and 5 parts of pages.

The late Com<sup>rs</sup> of Forfeitures would not be prevailed with to call their collectors to account, or to issue process against persons in arrear, though the Lord Lieutenant had often positively commanded them to do it; the Commissioners were first to get in the arrears. There was another considerable debt due to the King. The Earl of Longford and others, on the victory of the Boyne, were empowered to seize goods, &c. to the value of 30,000*l.*, and little or no part had come to the King's receipt, and he feared it was too late to recover it. The forts and fortifications were generally out of repair, the guns unmounted, the palisadoes wanting, and some of the breaches not sufficiently made up since the war. Other works, especially for Galway, had been begun, but not finished. He had (upon intimation that the French had some designs on the kingdom) issued warrants for supplying Galway, Kinsale, and the Fort of Duncannon (being the places most likely to be insulted on) with a month's provisions; other garrisons must be put in a condition to prevent a surprise. He proposed that 6,000*l.* should be allowed of the forfeited arrears for carrying on the service. &c. Dated Dublin Castle, 24 March 1695-6.

The following, which is of a prior date to the letter, is entered in the Minute Book, Vol. VI., p. 301, 19 May 1696 :—
"Lord Raby heard wth Sr Rob<sup>t</sup> Clayton & Lord Fairfax upon a caveat of y<sup>e</sup> latter ag<sup>t</sup> passing to Lord Raby a reversionary lease of the post fines. Mr Soll<sup>r</sup> Gen<sup>l</sup>, of counsell for Sr Rob<sup>t</sup> Clayton, saies, in case a grant be made to any other then his clyent the K. wilbe indebted to them, at y<sup>e</sup> end of their terme, for paym<sup>ts</sup> made by the sheriffs out of their money for taking thieves, removing prisoners, &c., and he desires the lease may be made to them, or else security may be given to answer what shalbe due to them at y<sup>e</sup> end of this terme. Mr Dodd of y<sup>e</sup> same side says, They are the y<sup>e</sup> present tenants, have tenant right, and are in surplusage on their acco<sup>ts</sup>; they have long termes in being, w<sup>ch</sup> were purchased for valuable considerations, and are willing to take further terme, & hope none shall have it over their heads. Mr Attorney for Lord Raby saies, there is no objection in point of law, but y<sup>e</sup> K. may grant to whom he pleases. Tenant right is no right at all, and y<sup>e</sup> K. has declared his pleasure so farr as to sign a warr<sup>t</sup>. He saies, if a true acc<sup>o</sup> were taken, y<sup>e</sup> King's rent would be suff. to reimburse them what the sheriffs apply of this revenue for taking thieves, &c.; but however they have no coven<sup>nt</sup> from y<sup>e</sup> K. if it will not extend thereunto, and there was a pencon of 500<sup>li</sup> a year out it that is ceased. That Sr Robert & L<sup>d</sup> Fairfax cannot pretend tennt right, for y<sup>e</sup> original grantees were L<sup>d</sup> Berksh<sup>r</sup> & Sr Rob. Howard. Mr Pratt, of y<sup>e</sup> same side, That the lease was granted in cons. of services per Lord Berksh<sup>r</sup>, and not of y<sup>e</sup> rent; and those services were sufficiently rewarded by y<sup>e</sup> grant first made, & these gent<sup>em</sup> cannot pretend to another reward for y<sup>e</sup> same service. In case of land there is an improvem<sup>t</sup>, which creates something called tennant right, but nothing of that in case of this revenue. That y<sup>e</sup> last accot was in 1689, when 2,745*l.* was in surplusage, and since then some charges then in being are fallen off. The profits of the last year may go to make good their surplusage, and there wilbe a rent reserved from my Lord Raby, which (if the King pleases) may make good the surplusage to the present lessees; or, if the King will not dispose of y<sup>t</sup>, it will be in His Mat<sup>s</sup> power, upon their applicacion to him, to satisfy them out of any other revenue or branch. S<sup>r</sup> Rob<sup>t</sup> saies they have overp<sup>d</sup> their rent 2,305*li* 5*s.*, & y<sup>t</sup> my Lord Grandison's annuity of 500*li* out of the post fines is unp<sup>d</sup> & in arreare about 1,100*li*.

- July 2. 75. Report of William Tailer, deputy auditor of the duchy of Cornwall, to the Lords [of the Treasury], in reference to a letter of Mr. Willm. Gribble of Truro, in Cornwall, complaining that Mr. Henry Herle, a merchant there, had melted down about two tons of tin into bars, without giving him notice. He (Mr. Tailer) had written to the deputy receiver of the duchy in relation thereto, and his reply was, that several persons had set up "kettles" in their private cellars, particularly at Fowey, Truro, and Penryn, where, under pretence of re-melting into bars tin duly coined in the block, they could run down uncoined tin and defraud the King of the duty and undersell the fair dealing merchant. The practice had been complained of when the now Duke of Leeds was Lord Treasurer, and the exportation of tin without the stamp was prohibited by warrant of 23 Sept 1676, &c.; advising the prohibition of the exportation of all unstamped tin, or carrying it out of the stannary where made in bars, as well as blocks; and that it was requisite that the small stamps as well as the greater hammers should be kept under the care and control of the respective officers of the stannaries; and that the owners of blowing houses should present their blowers to the Stannary Court, to be sworn against embezzlement of tin within their care; and that all private melting places should be suppressed. "Com<sup>rs</sup> for the National Land Bank come in. S<sup>r</sup> Thomas Cook, My Lords, I am com<sup>d</sup>ed to acq<sup>t</sup> yo<sup>r</sup> Lo<sup>ps</sup> since we were last here, no subscriptions are taken ; therefore ye Com<sup>rs</sup> for ye service of ye K. have mett, to consider of such methods as might be for His Ma<sup>ty</sup> service, & have putt their opinion in writing, w<sup>ch</sup> he presents, & is read, viz<sup>t</sup> :- -

"That the exig<sup>t</sup> occasions for m<sup>o</sup> & ye great advantages to be made thereof upon all securitys, as well publiq[ue] as private, have left ye Com<sup>rs</sup> w<sup>thout</sup> hopes of receiving any more subscriptions, upon ye all[owance] of 5<sup>li</sup> per c., & ye Com<sup>rs</sup> having endeavoured to satisfie themselves, upon w<sup>t</sup> allowance y<sup>e</sup> subscripcions may be expected, are humbly of opinion that an allow. after ye rate of 300,000<sup>li</sup> for ye whole summe of 2,564,000<sup>li</sup> will yet bring in ye subscripcions ; but, ye time ly<sup>m</sup>itted for taking them drawing so near to an end, if ye adjusting thereof be deferred, it will render the accomplish<sup>t</sup> to be very doubtfull.

"The Com<sup>rs</sup> therefore do humbly desire that their Lo<sup>ps</sup> pleasure may speedily be declared therein, and if their Lo<sup>ps</sup> shall think fitt to make ye allowance a[foresai]d, that ye Com<sup>rs</sup> may receive from their Lo<sup>ps</sup> such assurance thereof as may be a reasonable security & satisfaction to ye subscrib<sup>rs</sup> for ye same. Upon confidence whereof, & such other fav<sup>rs</sup> & conveniencys as are in their Lo<sup>ps</sup> power to grant, the Com<sup>rs</sup> have great hopes of success.

"Lord Godolphin, I observe there is no certainty, but onely hopes, if what is proposed should be consented to.

"S<sup>r</sup> Tho. Cooke, the Com<sup>rs</sup> have had a meeting & with an unanimous consent have agreed to make this proposition ; & are all resolved to subscribe as farr as their abilitys will give them leave ; and others abroad have declared that they will subscribe considerable sums. We believe if it were lawfull for us to take subscriptions, on the termes proposed, we could give assurance under their hands the whole sune would be subscribed, but we are advised we could not take such subscriptions without the danger of a premunire, and it is our opinion the thing will succeed upon what is here proposed. And if there be any other method more advantageous than this seems to be, if yo<sup>r</sup> Lo<sup>rs</sup> will please to lett us know them, we shall be ready to proceed therein. They withdraw & are called in againe.

"Ld Godolphin[s] an- } Lord Godolphin, gent<sup>en</sup> my Lords have all the stepps [that] have been made in this matter, they have had that precaution & care not to do any thing of themselves, but as you have made propositions they have layd them before ye Lords Justices & have rec<sup>d</sup> their directions in all the particulars, from time to time ; and can make you no other answer at present, but they will take

My Lords propose the employing M<sup>r</sup> Culliford; S<sup>r</sup> Robert Southwell saies they were of opinion ag<sup>t</sup> it in a former report, but now for his part he has a great deference to my L<sup>ds</sup> opinion for employing him. M<sup>r</sup> Godolphin saies he thinks he may be employed to the advantage of ye revenue, but he does not know in wth capacity my L<sup>ds</sup> intend him. Their report of 25 8br '94 is read. S<sup>r</sup> W. Young saies in a former survey, made per M<sup>r</sup> Culliford, good officers were putt out to place others less deserving. M<sup>r</sup> Chadwick thinks ye power wilbe too great. Lord G. thinks a riding surv<sup>r</sup> wilbe able to do more good then a Com<sup>r</sup> of the Customes sent out. M<sup>r</sup> Clerk saies he never knew any benefit by former survey[or]s. The Com<sup>rs</sup> generally say they have not alterd their opinion in their former report.

"M<sup>r</sup> Godolphin thinks he may be well employed port Lond<sup>o</sup>, particularly in prosecuting debts, &c., & in overseing the officers below staires, respecting frauds ab<sup>t</sup> debenturs, & prosecuting the same, & he can propose many other things if he hath time to propose them. Mr. Chadwick saies, as to debts, the present prosecutor should be heard, if any failure as to debenturs M<sup>r</sup> W<sup>m</sup>son has made a proposōn, w<sup>ch</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Ch. thinks should be first heard.

"M<sup>r</sup> Chanc<sup>r</sup>, if there is any occasion in the revenue for an experienced officer the Com<sup>rs</sup> should let my Lords kno it, my Lords having a good opinion of M<sup>r</sup> Culliford.

"M<sup>r</sup> Godolphin saies W<sup>m</sup>son sold his place a year agoe, & now would have another for nothing, wth 400<sup>li</sup> a year.

"Com<sup>rs</sup> of Customs cal'd in with the patent officers & Mr Williamson; Mr Godolphin thinks it wilbe an unnecessary charge to sett up an office proposed per Mr W<sup>m</sup>son, ab<sup>t</sup> examining deb<sup>ts</sup>. The business is ye same that is or should be done per Mr Cook. Ye established method is good already, but not well executed: he proposes the Com<sup>r</sup> should compare the debentur wth the entry in ye book. Sr Nic. Crisp saies 12 persons are now entrusted in examining deb<sup>ts</sup> & other matters about them, & multiplying officers may make confusion. Mr Nicholas p<sup>r</sup>sents a paper of their present methods. Sr Nich<sup>o</sup> saies never any mistake but was discovered before paym<sup>t</sup>. Mr. Chadwick allows that: but saies, he would have an officer to see all be done fairely. Mr. Godolphin saies there has been frauds & gives an instance. Mr Clerk thinks the Com<sup>rs</sup> may examine ye entrys in ye books, and to erect a new office, were to repose all in one man & there would be no more security then at present. Mr W<sup>m</sup>son saies the occasion of his mem<sup>l</sup> was irregularitys by obteyning double sett<sup>s</sup> of deb<sup>ts</sup>. When he was an officer such things were attempted, and he finds such attempts are continued. He will not say m<sup>o</sup> has been actually rec<sup>d</sup> by fraud, but if he had not prevented, it had. He gives an instance, where the same clerk signed a 2<sup>d</sup> sett. The Com<sup>rs</sup> of the Customes are to consider of the best method that shall appear to them, to obviate frauds in the obteyning or paym<sup>t</sup> of debenturs." 5 pages.

Thomas formerly a captain in the regiment raised by Col. Salter. He was also controller of the Treasury there, and Col. Salter treasurer. The writer wished it had not been said that their Lordships had given it him, since their resolution was altered, and that people had not known of his endeavour in favour of Col. Salter. The less interest he had, and the less interest people believed he had, in England, the less could he serve the King in Barbadoes. He had delivered the commission to Capt. Thomas. - Sept. 7. 10. Copy of a letter from Wm. Mathews to Mr. Secretary Trumbull, acquainting him with the progress he had made at Exeter, in relation to the Exchequer Bank, in which he had engaged himself with Joseph Tily, by the approbation of the Treasury. He had broke the neck of the Exchange there, which had been 6, 8, and sometimes 10 per cent. The people ardently craved exchequer bills for their commerce. The excisemen thought there could never be enough sent down. The tuckers [i.e., fullers of cloth] and traders coveted them for a medium of commerce. The weavers and combers, to whom the tuckers and traders paid them for their serges, brought them to him, and he paid them in specie on demand, exchange free. He begged that his honour would insert in the Gazette these words; viz:—
"The Exchequer Bank at Exeter do give notice that they will negotiate bills of exchange gratis, as well foreign as domestick, from Exeter to London, and from London to Exeter, & also from Taunton & Tiverton to London, & the counties of Devon, Somerset, & Cornwall, for any merchants, traders, & others; and when their money is received upon such bills the said bank will pay them to content in London, or at the bank of Exeter on demand."

The several premiums for negotiating bills between Exeter and London amounted to several thousands per ann., which would be all saved by this bank.

He wished he could see the proclamation concerning these "chequer bills," about which he wrote to Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer last week. He dared not dictate, and say that it was absolutely necessary, considering the miseries of the nation, the dismal prospect for the winter, and the "Plonges" we were in, but he feared a disturbance unless this, or some such expedient, were put in force. Dated Exeter, 7 Sept. 1696.

In the Minute Book, Vol. VII., p. 137, 3 May 1697, is:—

Dated 24 Nov.'96. This is minuted thus:—"Ordered."

In Vol. VII., p. 49, of the Minute Books, on 22 Dec. 1696, counsel appeared on the informations transmitted by Sir Richard Newdigate against Mr. Newsham, and their Lordships ordered the affidavits relative to the case to be left at the Treasury, and a hearing was ordered for 22 Jan. At p. 64, on 23 Jan., counsel for and against Mr. Newsham were heard, and various affidavits were read and witnesses examined, but no decision is mentioned as having been arrived at. The proceedings occupy two closely written pages.

Although no dismissal of Mr. Newsham is recorded in the Minute Book, yet it is clear he had been superseded, because in the subsequent Minute Book, 19 April 1698, Vol. VIII., p. 147, he had made a series of charges against John Andrews, receiver of taxes in Warwickshire, who had then succeeded to the office. Without date, but probably 1696, as the coinage was then under revision, and one of the persons signing was Robert Yates, who was concerned about the coinage, as appears by the letter dated 17 Aug. 1696, Vol. XXXIX., No. 40.

- [?1696.] 37. Representation of the case of the Provost and Corporation of the Moneyers in the Mint in the Tower of London to the Lords of the Treasury, showing that they had delivered to their Lordships six weeks before a petition concerning their grievances by reason of the late Coinage Act; the master-worker had said they were then agreed, but that was not so, and their oppression still continued; they craved to be heard, or that their case might be referred to the city goldsmiths, that they might enlighten their Lordships.
 Accompanied by what appears to be the petition referred to, in which they state that they had been a corporation above 300 years, and had been obliged to coin silver money at 9*d.* per pound, but it could not then be done at that rate, as one half was to be in shillings and sixpences, besides the small moneys, which according to indenture were 18 ounces in groats, threepences, twopences, and pence on every hundred weight, which would be the utter ruin of the corporation, as the labour was double, and they employed 120 labourers and 33 horses, besides being answerable for waste and embezzlement. - [?About 1696.] 39. Petition of William Sutton and others to the Lords of the Treasury, showing that they had disposed of their commodities for white halfpence and farthings, not doubting that when the copper halfpence and farthings came out, they should have them exchanged; that they then had upwards of 400*l.* worth of them, and the patentees refused to exchange the said white money; praying for order to be given for their relief. Undated, but perhaps about 1696, as there were contractors for farthings in that year. See Minute Book, Vol. VI., p. 294. 1 page.

Williams, Bart., his chief chemical physician, at 50*l.* per ann., and 10*s.* weekly board wages, till something better was found for him, and that 370*l.* remained unpaid for five years' service; praying that Mr. Lownds might be ordered to read to the King the petition and certificate annexed, and that the Lords of the Treasury might be ordered to minute the next King's waiter's place to him in London, and that his arrears might be paid.

The petition is accompanied by another from him addressed to the Com<sup>rs</sup> of Their Majesties' Treasury, and a certificate as to the employment of Nicholas Williams as a tidesman in the port of London, with a memorandum that he was unfortunately drowned in the Thames in Their Majesties' service, 4th June 1691.

46. Petition of John Bingham, Inspector for the King at the melting house in the Exchequer, showing that he had been appointed to melt down the hammered money, and had discharged his duty, though with much difficulty and danger, by many interruptions and threats; he conceived a great fraud or embezzlement, amounting to 200 lbs. weight, had been perpetrated, and prayed that Mr. Jett might attend their Lordships to answer such charges as might be alleged against him. Undated, but the Act about hammered money passed 1696, (chapter II.), and Mr. Jett was in treaty with the Mint on 12 May 1696.

See Minute Book, Vol. VI., p. 294. 1 page.

[? About
1696 or
1697.]

47. An answer (signed) by the Com<sup>rs</sup> appointed to carry out the Act for granting an aid of 4s. in the pound in the county of Brecknock, made to misrepresentations in a certificate of Sir Edward Williams and other Com<sup>rs</sup> who refused to join with them in the discharge of their duties. Undated; the last Act for 4s. in the pound was passed 7 & 8 Will. 3., and there is mention of the signing the "Association," which took place in 1696. 2 pages.

[? 1696
or 1697.]

48. Copy of a petition of the shipwrights, caulkers, &c. belonging to His Majesty's yard at Kinsale, complaining of the exorbitant rate of provisions from the scarcity of money and the late coming in of the harvest, and that the persons who usually gave them credit had then such apprehensions of peace that they would not trust them, but had arrested some, and unless paid would speedily imprison the rest of them; praying their honours to order such measures for the yard's payment, as to prevent these evil consequences. 1 page.

1697.]

49. A draft (apparently in Mr. Lowndes handwriting) of certain estimates in connexion with the army, for seven months and 12 months, entitled "Computation of 7 months' pay for the foreigners, part of the body of 40,038 men." And further down:

"The like for those in the body of 10,000 men." Undated; but before the disbanding the troops in 1697.

Docquetted:—"Computation of the savings." 1½ pages.

[? 1696.]

50. Letter of Mr. Isaac Newton to the Lords of the Treasury, stating that he had lately received information of certain forfeitures of clippers and coiners in the possession of Simon Rolfe, of Lyn-Regis, Esq., (taken upon Edw. Pamphilon and others, tried and convicted at the Assizes for Norfolk,) in the hands of Joseph Host, Esq., Justice of the Peace there, and in the hands of the Sheriff and Under-Sheriff of Yorkshire; praying warrants for delivery of the same.

It further mentions a process commenced four years since against the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex. Undated, but query 1696, as the process referred to seems to have been in 1692. See entry 14 Aug. 1696. 1 page.

[? 1696.]

51. A printed paper, entitled :—

Part of the Illegal and Evil Practices of His Majesty's General Post Office that hath been proved by divers affidavits, and at several hearings, vivâ voce, before their Excellencies the Lords Justices of England.

They relate to the doings of,—

Mr. William Brockett, "the present Comptroller of the Out-land Office."

Mr. William Gosling, a clerk of the said office.

Mr. Adam Francko, of the said office; and,

Mr. Edmund Sawtell, Clerk of the Irish and Chester Road.

It was a case in which there was a prosecution. Undated; but there is mention of the late "damnable conspiracy," which makes it probable that it was in 1696. 1 page.

[? About
1696.]

52. The proposal of Francis Eyles, merchant, and others, to the Lords of the Treasury, to give bills of exchange, payable at "2 usance," in Amsterdam, for the value of 100,000*l.* st., at the rate of 10 guilders and 8 stivers, Holland's money, for each pound sterling, on certain conditions. Undated, but probably about 1696, as Mr. Eyles was then much engaged in such transactions. See Minute Book. 1 page.

CALENDARS OF STATE PAPERS, &c.

[IMPERIAL 8vo., cloth. Price 15s. each Volume or Part.]

As far back as the year 1800, a Committee of the House of Commons recommended that Indexes and Calendars should be made to the Public Records, and thirty-six years afterwards another Committee of the House of Commons reiterated that recommendation in more forcible words; but it was not until the incorporation of the State Paper Office with the Public Record Office that the present Master of the Rolls found himself in a position to take the necessary steps for carrying out the wishes of the House of Commons.

On 7 December 1855, he stated to the Lords of the Treasury that although "the Records, State Papers, and Documents in his charge constitute the most complete and perfect series of their kind in the civilized world," and although "they are of the greatest value in a historical and constitutional point of view, yet they are comparatively useless to the public, from the want of proper Calendars and Indexes."

Acting upon the recommendations of the Committees of the House of Commons above referred to, he suggested to the Lords of the Treasury that to effect the object he had in view it would be necessary for him to employ a few persons fully qualified to perform the work which he contemplated.

Their Lordships assented to the necessity of having Calendars prepared and printed, and empowered the Master of the Rolls to take such steps as might be necessary for this purpose.

The following Works have been already published under the direction of the Master of the Rolls :—

Vol. II.—East Indies, China, and Japan, 1513-1616.

The first volume of a Calendar of Colonial Papers relating to America and the West Indies, from 1574 to 1660, was published in 1860. The second volume, relating to the East Indies, China, and Japan, from 1513 to 1616, appeared in 1862. The above portion includes an analysis of all Papers from the three great archives of the Public Record Office, the India Office, and the British Museum. The third volume is in the press. The regular series of the East India Papers in the Public Record Office are calendared to the year 1623; those relating to the same subject in the Domestic Correspondence to 1625; and in the Foreign Correspondence to 1621; the Court Minutes of the East India Company to 1621, and the Original Correspondence in the India Office to 1621. Many undated Papers have been dated and arranged.

CALENDAR OF LETTERS AND PAPERS, FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC, OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, the British Museum, &c. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1862-1867.

Vol. I.—1509-1514.

Vol. II. (in Two Parts)—1515-1518.

Vol. III. (in Two Parts)—1519-1523.

These volumes contain summaries of all State Papers and Correspondence relating to the reign of Henry VIII., in the Public Record Office, of those formerly in the State Paper Office, in the British Museum, the Libraries of Oxford and Cambridge, and other Public Libraries; and of all letters that have appeared in print in the works of Burnet, Strype, and others. Whatever authentic original material exists in England relative to the religious, political, parliamentary, or social history of the country during the reign of Henry VIII., whether despatches of ambassadors, or proceedings of the army, navy, treasury, or ordnance, or records of Parliament, appointments of officers, grants from the Crown, &c., will be found calendared in these volumes.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, FOREIGN SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD VI., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, and Correspondant du Comité Impérial des Travaux Historiques et des Sociétés Savantes de France. 1861.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, FOREIGN SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF MARY, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, and Correspondant du Comité Impérial des Travaux Historiques et des Sociétés Savantes de France. 1861.

The two preceding volumes exhibit the negotiations of the English ambassadors with the courts of the Emperor Charles V. of Germany, of Henry II. of France, and of Philip II. of Spain. The affairs of several of the minor continental states also find various incidental illustrations of much interest.

A valuable series of Papers descriptive of the circumstances which attended the loss of Calais merits a special notice; while the progress of the wars in the north of France, into which England was dragged by her union with Spain, is narrated at some length. The domestic affairs of England are of course passed over in these volumes, which treat only of its relations with foreign powers.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, FOREIGN SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF ELIZABETH, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, &c. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham. 1863-1867.

Vol. I.—1558-1559.

Vol. II.—1559-1560.

Vol. III.—1560-1561.

Vol. IV.—1561-1562.

Vol. V.—1562.

These five volumes contain a calendar of the Foreign Correspondence of Queen Elizabeth, from her accession in 1558, to 1562, of which the originals, drafts, or contemporary copies, are deposited in the Public Record Office, &c. These documents are of the greatest value as exhibiting the position of England at one of the most interesting periods of history, in regard to its relations with France, Scotland, Spain, and Germany. They are of especial importance as illustrating not only the external but also the domestic affairs of France during the period which immediately preceded the outbreak of the first great war of religion under the Prince of Condé and the Duke of Guise.

CALENDAR OF TREASURY PAPERS, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. 1557-1696. Edited by JOSEPH REDINGTON, Esq. 1868.

The Papers connected with the administration of the affairs of the Treasury, from 1556-7 to 1696, comprising petitions, reports, and other documents relating to services rendered to the State, grants of money and pensions, appointments to offices, remissions of fines and duties, &c., are calendared in this volume. They illustrate civil and military events, financial and other matters, the administration in Ireland and the Colonies, &c., and afford information nowhere else recorded.

CALENDAR OF THE CAREW PAPERS, preserved in Lambeth Library. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London; and WILLIAM BULLEN, Esq. 1867-1868.

Vol. I.—1515-1574.

Vol. II.—1575-1588.

The Carew Papers relating to Ireland deposited in the Lambeth Library are not only unique in themselves, but are of great importance. Two volumes of the Calendar of these valuable Papers have been published, extending from 1515 to 1588, which cannot fail to be welcome to all students of Irish history. Another volume is in the press.

CALENDAR OF LETTERS, DESPATCHES, AND STATE PAPERS, relating to the Negotiations between England and Spain, preserved in the Archives at Simancas, and elsewhere. Edited by G. A. BERGENROTH. 1862-1868.

Supplement to Vol. I. and Vol. II.

Mr. Bergenroth is engaged in compiling a Calendar of the Papers relating to England preserved in the archives of Simancas in Spain, and the corresponding portion removed from Simancas to Paris. It was deemed essential that Mr. Bergenroth should also visit Madrid, and examine the Papers there, bearing on the reign of Henry VIII. The first volume contains the Spanish Papers of the reign of Henry VII., and the second volume the Papers of the first portion of the reign of Henry VIII. The Supplement to Vols. I. and II. contains new information relating to the private life of Queen Katharine of England; and to the projected marriage of Henry VII. with Queen Juana, widow of King Philip of Castile, and mother of the Emperor Charles V.

Of the Papers in the Venetian archives, Mr. Rawdon Brown has already published two volumes of his Calendar, extending from 1202 to 1519, and has made considerable progress in the third volume. Mr. Brown's researches have brought to light a number of important documents relating to the various periods of English history, and his contributions to historical literature are of the most interesting and important character.

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

[ROYAL 8vo., half-bound. Price 10s. each Volume or Part.]

On 25 July 1822, the House of Commons presented an address to the Crown, stating that the editions of the works of our ancient historians were inconvenient and defective; that many of their writings still remained in manuscript, and, in some cases, in a single copy only. They added, "that an uniform and convenient edition of the whole, published under His Majesty's royal sanction, would be an undertaking honourable to His Majesty's reign, and conducive to the advancement of historical and constitutional knowledge; that the House therefore humbly besought His Majesty, that He would be graciously pleased to give such directions as His Majesty, in His wisdom, might think fit, for the publication of a complete edition of the ancient historians of this realm, and assured His Majesty that whatever expense might be necessary for this purpose would be made good."

The Master of the Rolls, being very desirous that effect should be given to the resolution of the House of Commons, submitted to Her Majesty's Treasury in 1857 a plan for the publication of the ancient chronicles and memorials of the United Kingdom, and it was adopted accordingly. In selecting these works, it was considered right, in the first instance, to give preference to those of which the manuscripts were unique, or the materials of which would help to fill up blanks in English history for which no satisfactory and authentic information hitherto existed in any accessible form. One great object the Master of the Rolls had in view was to form a corpus historicum within reasonable limits, and which should be as complete as possible. In a subject of so vast a range, it was important that the historical student should be able to select such volumes as conformed with his own peculiar tastes and studies, and not be put to the expense of purchasing the whole collection; an inconvenience inseparable from any other plan than that which has been in this instance adopted.

Of the Chronicles and Memorials, the following volumes have been published. They embrace the period from the earliest time of British history down to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

1. THE CHRONICLE OF ENGLAND, by JOHN CAPGRAVE. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

John Capgrave was prior of Lynn, in Norfolk, and provincial of the order of the Friars Hermits of England shortly before the year 1464. His Chronicle extends from the creation of the world to the year 1417. As a record of the language spoken in Norfolk (for it is written in English), it is of considerable value.

2. CHRONICON MONASTERII DE ABINGDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1858.

This Chronicle traces the history of the great Benedictine monastery of Abingdon in Berkshire, from its foundation by King Ina of Wessex, to the reign of Richard I., shortly after which period the present narrative was drawn up by an inmate of the establishment. The author had access to the title-deeds of the house, and incorporates into his history various charters of the Saxon kings, which are of great importance as illustrating not only the history of the locality but that of the kingdom at large. The work is now printed for the first time.

3. LIVES OF EDWARD THE CONFESSOR. I.—La Estoire de Seint Aedward le Rei. II.—Vita Beati Edvardi Regis et Confessoris. III.—Vita Æduuardi Regis qui apud Westmonasterium requiescit. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1858.

The first is a poem in Norman French, containing 4,686 lines. It is addressed to Alianor, Queen of Henry III., and was probably written in the year 1245, on the occasion of the restoration of the church of Westminster. Nothing is known of the author.

The second is an anonymous poem, containing 536 lines, written between the years 1440 and 1450, by command of Henry VI., to whom it is dedicated. Though it does not throw any new light on the reign of Edward the Confessor, yet it is valuable as a specimen of the Latin poetry of the time.

The third, also by an anonymous author, was apparently written for Queen Edith, between the years 1066 and 1074, during the pressure of the suffering brought on the Saxons by the Norman conquest. It notices many facts not found in other writers, and some which differ considerably from the usual accounts.

4. MONUMENTA FRANCISCANA; scilicet, I.—Thomas de Eccleston de Adventu Fratrum Minorum in Angliam. II.—Adæ de Marisco Epistolæ. III.—Registrum Fratrum Minorum Londoniæ. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1858.

This volume contains original materials for the history of the settlement of the order of Saint Francis in England, the letters of Adam de Marisco, and other papers connected with the foundation and diffusion of this great body. It has been the aim of the editor to collect whatever historical information could be found in this country, in the British Museum, or elsewhere, towards illustrating a period of the national history for which only scanty materials exist. None of these have been before printed.

5. FASCICULI ZIZANIORUM MAGISTRI JOHANNIS WYCLIF CUM TRITICO. Ascribed to THOMAS NETTER, of WALDEN, Provincial of the Carmelite Order in England, and Confessor to King Henry the Fifth. Edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, M.A., Tutor and late Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. 1858.

This work derives its principal value from the fact that it is the only contemporaneous account of the rise of the Lollards. At the time when it was written, the disputes of the schoolmen had been extended to the field of theology, and they appear both in the writings of Wycliff and in those of his adversaries.

Wycliff's little bundles of tares are not less metaphysical than theological, and the conflict between Nominalists and Realists rages side by side with the conflict between the different interpreters of Scripture. The "Fasciculi Zizaniorum" gives a good idea of the controversies which were carried on at the end of the 14th and the beginning of the 15th centuries.

6. THE BUIK OF THE CRONICLIS OF SCOTLAND ; or, A Metrical Version of the History of Hector Boece ; by WILLIAM STEWART. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. 1858.

This is a metrical translation of a Latin Prose Chronicle, and was written in the first half of the 16th century. The narrative begins with the earliest legends, and ends with the death of James I. of Scotland, and the "evil ending of the traitors that slew him." Strict accuracy of statement is not to be looked for in such a work as this ; but the stories of the colonization of Spain, Ireland, and Scotland are interesting if not true ; and the chronicle is valuable as a reflection of the manners, sentiments, and character of the age in which it was composed.

The peculiarities of the Scottish dialect are well illustrated in this metrical version of Boece's work, and the student of language will here find ample materials for comparison with the English dialects of the same period, and with modern lowland Scotch.

7. JOHANNIS CAPGRAVE LIBER DE ILLUSTRIBUS HENRICIS. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

This work is dedicated to Henry VI. of England, who appears to have been, in the author's estimation, the greatest of all the Henries. It is divided into three distinct parts, each having its own separate dedication. The first part relates only to the history of the Empire, and extends from the election of Henry I., the Fowler, to the end of the reign of the Emperor Henry VI. The second part is devoted to English history, and extends from the accession of Henry I. in the year 1100, to the year 1446 which was the twenty-fourth year of the reign of King Henry VI. The third part contains the lives of illustrious men who have borne the name of Henry in various parts of the world.

Capgrave was born in 1393, in the reign of Richard II., and lived during the Wars of the Roses, for the history of which period his work is of some value.

8. HISTORIA MONASTERII S. AUGUSTINI CANTUARIENSIS, by THOMAS OF ELMHAM, formerly Monk and Treasurer of that Foundation. Edited by CHARLES HARDWICK, M.A., Fellow of St. Catharine's Hall, and Christian Advocate in the University of Cambridge. 1858.

This history extends from the arrival of St. Augustine in Kent until 1191. Prefixed is a chronology as far as 1418, which shows in outline what was to have been the character of the work when completed. The only copy known is in the possession of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The author was connected with Norfolk, and most probably with Elmham, whence he derived his name.

9. EULOGIUM (HISTORIARUM SIVE TEMPORIS) : Chronicon ab Orbe condito usque ad Annum Domini 1366 ; a Monacho quodam Malmeshiriensi exaratum. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by F. S. HAYDON, Esq., B.A. 1858-1863.

This is a Latin Chronicle extending from the Creation to the latter part of the reign of Edward III., and written by a monk of the Abbey of Malmesbury, in Wiltshire, about the year 1367. A continuation, carrying the history of England down to the year 1413, was added in the former half of the fifteenth century by an author whose name is not known. The original Chronicle is divided into five books, and contains a history of the world generally, but more especially of England to the year 1366. The continuation extends the history down to the coronation of Henry V. The Eulogium itself is chiefly valuable as containing a history, by a contemporary, of the period between 1356 and 1366. The notices of events appear to have been written very soon after their occurrence. Among other interesting matter, the Chronicle contains a diary of the Poitiers campaign, evidently furnished by some person who accompanied the army of the Black Prince. The continuation of the Chronicle is also the work of a contemporary, and gives a very interesting account of the reigns of Richard II. and Henry IV. It is believed to be the earliest authority for the statement that the latter monarch died in the Jerusalem Chamber at Westminster.

10. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE SEVENTH: Bernardi Andreæ Tholosatis Vita Regis Henrici Septimi; necnon alia quædam ad eundem Regem spectantia. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1858.

The contents of these volumes are—(1) a life of Henry VII., by his poet laureate and historiographer, Bernard André, of Toulouse, with some compositions in verse, of which he is supposed to have been the author; (2) the journals of Roger Machado during certain embassies on which he was sent by Henry VII. to Spain and Brittany, the first of which had reference to the marriage of the King's son, Arthur, with Catharine of Arragon; (3) two curious reports by envoys sent to Spain in the year 1505 touching the succession to the Crown of Castile, and a project of marriage between Henry VII. and the Queen of Naples; and (4) an account of Philip of Castile's reception in England in 1506. Other documents of interest in connexion with the period are given in an appendix.

11. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE FIFTH. I.—Vita Henrici Quinti, Roberto Redmanno auctore. II.—Versus Rhythmici in laudem Regis Henrici Quinti. III.—Elmhami Liber Metricus de Henrico V. Edited by CHARLES A. COLE, Esq. 1858.

This volume contains three treatises which more or less illustrate the history of the reign of Henry V., viz.: A Life by Robert Redman; a Metrical Chronicle by Thomas Elmham, prior of Lenton, a contemporary author; Versus Rhythmici, written apparently by a monk of Westminster Abbey, who was also a contemporary of Henry V. These works are printed for the first time.

12. MUNIMENTA GILDHALLÆ LONDONIENSIS; Liber Albus, Liber Custumarum, et Liber Horn, in archivis Gildhallæ asservati. Vol. I., Liber Albus. Vol. II. (in Two Parts), Liber Custumarum. Vol. III., Translation of the Anglo-Norman Passages in Liber Albus, Glossaries, Appendices, and Index. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1869–1862.

The manuscript of the Liber Albus, compiled by John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the City of London in the year 1419, a large folio volume, is preserved in the Record Room of the City of London. It gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of that City in the twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, and early part of the fifteenth centuries.

The Liber Custumarum was compiled probably by various hands in the early part of the fourteenth century during the reign of Edward II. The manuscript, a folio volume, is also preserved in the Record Room of the City of London, though some portion in its original state, borrowed from the City in the reign of Queen Elizabeth and never returned, forms part of the Cottonian MS. Claudius D. II. in the British Museum. It also gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of the City of London in the twelfth, thirteenth, and early part of the fourteenth centuries.

13. CHRONICA JOHANNIS DE OXENEDES. Edited by Sir HENRY ELLIS, K.H. 1859.

Although this Chronicle tells of the arrival of Hengist and Horsa in England in the year 449, yet it substantially begins with the reign of King Alfred, and comes down to the year 1292, where it ends abruptly. The history is particularly valuable for notices of events in the eastern portions of the kingdom, which are not to be elsewhere obtained, and some curious facts are mentioned relative to the floods in that part of England, which are confirmed in the Friesland Chronicle of Anthony Heinrich, pastor of the Island of Mohr.

14. A COLLECTION OF POLITICAL POEMS AND SONGS RELATING TO ENGLISH HISTORY, FROM THE ACCESSION OF EDWARD III. TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1859-1861.

These Poems are perhaps the most interesting of all the historical writings of the period, though they cannot be relied on for accuracy of statement. They are various in character; some of them are upon religious subjects, some may be called satires, and some give no more than a court scandal; but as a whole they present a very fair picture of society, and of the relations of the different classes to one another.

The period comprised is in itself interesting, and brings us, through the decline of the feudal system, to what may be considered the beginning of our modern history. The songs in old English are of considerable interest to the philologist.

15. The "OPUS TERTIUM," "OPUS MINUS," &c., of ROGER BACON. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1859.

This is the celebrated treatise—which, up to this time, had never been printed—so frequently referred to by the great philosopher in his works. It contains the fullest details we possess of the life and labours of Roger Bacon. The volume also contains a fragment by the same author, supposed to be unique, the "Compendium Studii Theologie."

16. BARTHOLOMÆI DE COTTON, MONACHI NORWICENSIS, HISTORIA ANGLICANA; 449-1298: necnon ejusdem Liber de Archiepiscopis et Episcopis Angliæ. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1859.

The author, a monk of Norwich, has here given us a Chronicle of England from the arrival of the Saxons in 449 to the year 1298, in or about which year it appears that he died. The latter portion of this history (the whole of the reign of Edward I. more especially) is of great value, as the writer was contemporary with the events which he records. An Appendix contains several illustrative documents connected with the previous narrative.

17. BRUT Y TYWYSOGION; or, The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

This work, which is also known as "The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales," has been attributed to Caradoc of Llancarvan, who flourished about the middle of the twelfth century. It is written in the ancient Welsh language, begins with the abdication and death of Caedwala at Rome, in the year 681, and continues the history down to the subjugation of Wales by Edward I., about the year 1282.

18. A COLLECTION OF ROYAL AND HISTORICAL LETTERS DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY IV. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1860.

This volume, like all the others in the series containing a miscellaneous selection of letters, is valuable on account of the light it throws upon biographical history, and the familiar view it presents of characters, manners, and events of the time. The period (1399 to 1404) required much elucidation; to which the volume will materially contribute.

19. THE REPRESSOR OF OVER MUCH BLAMING OF THE CLERGY. By REGINALD PECOCK, sometime Bishop of Chichester. Vols. I and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BARINGTON, B.D., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1860.

The "Repressor" may be considered the earliest piece of good theological disquisition of which our English prose literature can boast. The author was born about the end of the fourteenth century, was consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in the year 1444, and translated to the see of Chichester in 1450. While Bishop of St. Asaph, he zealously defended his brother prelates from the attacks of those who censured the bishops for their neglect of duty. He maintained that it was no part of a bishop's functions to appear in the pulpit, and that his time might be more profitably spent, and his dignity better maintained, in the performance of works of a higher character. Among those who thought differently were the Lollards, and it is against their general doctrines that the "Repressor" is directed. Pecock took up a position midway between that of the Roman Church and that of the modern Anglican Church; but his work is interesting chiefly because it gives a full account of the views of the Lollards and of the arguments by which they were supported, and because it assists us to ascertain the state of feeling which ultimately led to the Reformation. Apart from religious matters, the light thrown upon contemporaneous history is very small, but the "Repressor" has great value for the philologist, as it tells us what were the characteristics of the language in use among the cultivated Englishmen of the fifteenth century. Pecock, though an opponent of the Lollards, showed a certain spirit of toleration, for which he received, towards the end of his life, the usual mediæval reward—persecution.

20. ANNALES CAMBRIÆ. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

These annals, which are in Latin, commence in the year 447, and come down to the year 1288. The earlier portion appears to be taken from an Irish Chronicle, which was also used by Tigernach, and by the compiler of the Annals of Ulster. During its first century it contains scarcely anything relating to Britain, the earliest direct concurrence with English history is relative to the mission of Augustine. Its notices throughout though brief, are valuable. The annals were probably written at St. Davids, by Blegewryd, Archdeacon of Llandaff, the most learned man in his day in all Cymru.

21. THE WORKS OF GIRALDUS CAMBRENSIS. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vols. V. and VI. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire, 1861–1868.

The first three volumes contain the historical works of Gerald du Barry, who lived in the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., and John, and attempted to re-establish the independence of Wales by restoring the see of St. Davids to its ancient primacy. His works are of a very miscellaneous nature, both in prose and verse, and are remarkable chiefly for the racy and original anecdotes which they contain relating to contemporaries. He is the only Welsh writer of any importance who has contributed so much to the mediæval literature of this country, or assumed, in consequence of his nationality, so free and independent a tone. His frequent travels in Italy, in France, in Ireland, and in Wales, gave him opportunities for observation which did not generally fall to the lot of mediæval writers in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, and of these observations Giraldus has made due use.

Only extracts from these treatises have been printed before, and almost all of them are taken from unique manuscripts.

The Topographia Hibernica (in Vol. V.) is the result of Giraldus' two visits to Ireland. The first in the year 1183, the second in 1185–6, when he accompanied Prince John into that country. Curious as this treatise is, Mr. Dimock is of opinion that it ought not to be accepted as sober truthful history, for Giraldus himself states that truth was not his main object, and that he compiled the work for the purpose of sounding the praises of Henry the Second. Elsewhere, however, he declares that he had stated nothing in the Topographia of the truth of which he was not well assured, either by his own eyesight or by the testimony, with all diligence elicited, of the most trustworthy and authentic men in the country; that though he did not put just the same full faith in their reports as in what he had himself seen, yet, as they only related what they had themselves seen, he could not but believe such credible witnesses. A very interesting portion of this treatise is devoted to the animals of Ireland. It shows that he was a very accurate and acute observer, and his descriptions are given in a way that a scientific naturalist of the present day could hardly improve upon.

The Expugnatio Hibernica was written about the year 1188, and may be regarded rather as a great epic than a sober relation of facts occurring in his own days. No one can peruse it without coming to the conclusion that it is rather a poetical fiction than a prosaic truthful history.

Vol. VI. contains the Itinerarium Kambriæ et Descriptio Kambriæ.

22. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE WARS OF THE ENGLISH IN FRANCE DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY THE SIXTH, KING OF ENGLAND. Vol. I., and Vol. II. (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1861-1864.

The letters and papers contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from originals or contemporary copies extant in the Bibliothèque Impériale, and the Dépôt des Archives, in Paris. They illustrate the line of policy adopted by John Duke of Bedford and his successors during their government of Normandy, and such other provinces of France as had been acquired by Henry V. We may here trace, step by step, the gradual depletion of the English power, until we are prepared to read of its final overthrow.

23. THE ANGLO-SAXON CHRONICLE, ACCORDING TO THE SEVERAL ORIGINAL AUTHORITIES. Vol. I., Original Texts. Vol. II., Translation. Edited and translated by BENJAMIN THORPE, Esq., Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Munich, and of the Society of Netherlandish Literature at Leyden. 1861.

This Chronicle, extending from the earliest history of Britain to the year 1154, is justly the boast of England; for no other nation can produce any history, written in its own vernacular, at all approaching it, either in antiquity, truthfulness, or extent, the historical books of the Bible alone excepted. There are at present six independent manuscripts of the Saxon Chronicle, ending in different years, and written in different parts of the country. In the present edition, the text of each manuscript is printed in columns on the same page, so that the student may see at a glance the various changes which occur in orthography, whether arising from locality or age.

24. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGNS OF RICHARD III. AND HENRY VII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1861-1863.

The Papers are derived from MSS. in the Public Record Office, the British Museum, and other repositories. The period to which they refer is unusually destitute of chronicles and other sources of historical information, so that the light obtained from these documents is of special importance. The principal contents of the volumes are some diplomatic Papers of Richard III.; correspondence between Henry VII. and Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain; documents relating to Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk; and a portion of the correspondence of James IV. of Scotland.

25. LETTERS OF BISHOP GROSSETESTE, illustrative of the Social Condition of his Time. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1861.

The Letters of Robert Grosseteste (131 in number) are here collected from various sources. They range in date from about 1210 to 1253, and relate to various matters connected not only with the political history of England during the reign of Henry III., but with its ecclesiastical condition. They refer especially to the diocese of Lincoln, of which Grosseteste was bishop. These Letters have not hitherto been collected, and a large portion of them is printed for the first time.

26. DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF MANUSCRIPTS RELATING TO THE HISTORY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND. Vol. I. (in Two Parts); Anterior to the Norman Invasion. Vol. II.; 1066–1200. By THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, Esq., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1862–1865.

The object of this work is to publish notices of all known sources of British history, both printed and unprinted, in one continued sequence. The materials, when historical (as distinguished from biographical), are arranged under the year in which the latest event is recorded in the chronicle or history, and not under the period in which its author, real or supposed, flourished. Biographies are enumerated under the year in which the person commemorated died, and not under the year in which the life was written. This arrangement has two advantages: the materials for any given period may be seen at a glance; and if the reader knows the time when an author wrote, and the number of years that had elapsed between the date of the events and the time the writer flourished, he will generally be enabled to form a fair estimate of the comparative value of the narrative itself. A brief analysis of each work has been added when deserving it, in which the original portions are distinguished from those which are mere compilations. When possible, the sources are indicated from which such compilations have been derived. A biographical sketch of the author of each piece has been added, and a brief notice has also been given of such British authors as have written on historical subjects.

27. ROYAL AND OTHER HISTORICAL LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGN OF HENRY III. From the Originals in the Public Record Office. Vol. I., 1216–1235. Vol. II., 1236–1272. Selected and edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, D.D., Regius Professor in Ecclesiastical History, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. 1862–1866.

The letters contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from the ancient correspondence formerly preserved in the Tower of London, and now in the Public Record Office. They illustrate the political history of England during the growth of its liberties, and throw considerable light upon the personal history of Simon de Montfort. The affairs of France form the subject of many of these letters, more especially in regard to the province of Gascony. The entire collection consists of nearly 700 documents, the greater portion of which is printed for the first time.

28. CHRONICA MONASTERII S. ALBANI.—1. THOMÆ WALSHINGHAM HISTORIA ANGLICANA; Vol. I., 1272–1381; Vol. II., 1381–1422. 2. WILLELMI RISHANGER CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259–1307. 3. JOHANNIS DE TROKELowe ET HENRICI DE BLANEFORDE CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259–1296; 1307–1324; 1392–1406. 4. GESTA ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, A THOMA WALSHINGHAM, REGNANTE RICARDO SECUNDO, EJUSDEM ECCLESIE PRÆCENTORE, COMPILATA; Vol. I., 793–1290; Vol. II., 1290–1349. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; and of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863–1867.

In the first two volumes is a history of England, from the death of Henry III. to the death of Henry V., written by Thomas Walsingham, precentor of St. Albans and prior of the Cell of Wymundham, belonging to that abbey. Walsingham's work is printed from MS. VII. in the Arundel Collection in the College of Arms, London, a manuscript of the fifteenth century, collated with MS. 13 E. IX. in the King's Library in the British Museum, and MS. VII. in the Parker Collection of Manuscripts at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

In the third volume is a Chronicle of English History, from 1259 to 1306, attributed to William Rishanger, monk of Saint Albans, who lived in the reign of Edward I., printed from the Cottonian Manuscript, Faustina B. IX. (of the fourteenth century) in the British Museum, collated with MS. 14 C. VII. (fols. 219–231) in the King's Library, British Museum, and the Cottonian Manuscript Claudius E. III., fols. 306–331: Also an account of transactions attending the award of the kingdom of Scotland to John Balliol by King Edward I., 1291–1292, from MS. Cotton. Claudius, D. VI., attributed to William Rishanger above mentioned, but on no sufficient ground: A short Chronicle of English History, from 1292 to 1300, by an unknown hand, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: A short Chronicle from 1297 to 1307, Willelmi Rishanger Gesta Edwardi Primi Regis Angliæ, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library, and MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., with an addition of Annales Regum Angliæ, probably by the same hand: A fragment of a Chronicle of English History, 1299, 1300, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: A fragment of a Chronicle of English History, 1295 to 1300, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: and a fragment of a Chronicle of English History, 1285 to 1307, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library.

In the fourth volume is a Chronicle of English History, by an anonymous writer, 1259 to 1296, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: Also Annals of King Edward II., 1307 to 1323, by John de Trokelowe, a monk of St. Albans, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: A continuation of Trokelowe's Annals, 1323, 1324, by Henricus de Blanford, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: Also a full Chronicle of English History, by an anonymous writer of St. Albans, 1392 to 1406, from MS. VII. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge: and an account of the past benefactors of St. Albans, written in the early part of the fifteenth century, from MS. VI. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

In the fifth volume begins a history of the abbots of St. Albans, from 793 to the close of the fourteenth century, compiled by Thomas Walsingham, præcentor of St. Albans, from MS. Cotton. Claudius E. IV., in the British Museum. This is continued in the sixth volume.

29. CHRONICON ABBATIE EVESHAMENSIS, AUCTORIBUS DOMINICO PRIORE EVESHAMIE ET THOMA DE MARLEBERGE ABBATE, A FUNDATIONE AD ANNUM 1213, UNA CUM CONTINUATIONE AD ANNUM 1418. Edited by the Rev. W. D. MACRAY, M.A., Bodleian Library, Oxford. 1863.

The Chronicle of Evesham illustrates the history of that important monastery from its foundation by Egwin, about 690, to the year 1418. Its chief feature is an autobiography, which makes us acquainted with the inner daily life of a great abbey, such as but rarely has been recorded. Interspersed are many notices of general, personal, and local history which will be read with much interest. This work exists in a single MS., and is for the first time printed.

30. RICARDI DE CIRENCESTRIA SPECULUM HISTORIALE DE GESTIS REGUM ANGLIÆ. Vol. I., 447-871. Edited by JOHN E. B. MAYOR, M.A., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1863.

Of the compiler of this work, which is in four parts, very little is known. In the prologue he calls himself Richard, a monk of Westminster, and at the end of the first part, Richard of Cirencester, a monk of St. Peter's, Westminster. One volume only, containing the first three books, has been published, the remainder is in the press, and will shortly appear. There is a continuation of the work down to the year 1348, which in due time will also be printed.

31. YEAR BOOKS OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD THE FIRST. Years 20-21, 30-31, and 32-33. Edited and translated by ALFRED JOHN HORWOOD, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1866.

The volumes known as the "Year Books" contain reports in Norman-French of cases argued and decided in the Courts of Common Law. They may be considered to a great extent as the "lex non scripta" of England, and have been held in the highest veneration by the ancient sages of the law, and were received by them as the repositories of the first recorded judgments and dicta of the great legal luminaries of past ages. They are also worthy of the attention of the general reader on account of the historical information and the notices of public and private persons which they contain, as well as the light which they throw on ancient manners and customs.

32. NARRATIVES OF THE EXPULSION OF THE ENGLISH FROM NORMANDY 1449-1450.—Robertus Blondelli de Reductione Normanniæ: Le Recouvrement de Normendie, par Berry, Hérault du Roy: Conférences between the Ambassadors of France and England. Edited, from MSS. in the Imperial Library at Paris, by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham. 1863.

This volume contains the narrative of an eye-witness who details with considerable power and minuteness the circumstances which attended the final expulsion of the English from Normandy in the year 1450. The history commences with the infringement of the truce by the capture of Fougères, and ends with the battle of Formigny and the embarkation of the Duke of Somerset. The whole period embraced is less than two years.

33. HISTORIA ET CARTULARIUM MONASTERII S. PETRI GLOUCESTRÆ. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. H. HART, Esq., F.S.A., Membre correspondant de la Société des Antiquaires de Normandie. 1863-1867.

This work consists of two parts, the History and the Cartulary of the Monastery of St. Peter, Gloucester.

The history furnishes an account of the monastery from its foundation, in the year 681, to the early part of the reign of Richard II., together with a calendar of donations and benefactions. It treats principally of the affairs of the monastery, but occasionally matters of general history are introduced. Its authorship has generally been assigned to Walter Froucester, the twentieth abbot, but without any foundation.

34. ALEXANDRI NECKAM DE NATURIS RERUM LIBRI DUO; with NECKAM'S POEM, DE LAUDIBUS DIVINÆ SAPIENTIÆ. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1863.

Neckam was a man who devoted himself to science, such as it was in the twelfth century.

In the "De Naturis Rerum" are to be found what may be called the rudiments of many sciences mixed up with much error and ignorance. Neckam was not thought infallible, even by his contemporaries, for Roger Bacon remarks of him, "this Alexander in many things wrote what was true and useful; but he neither can nor ought by just title to be reckoned among authorities."

Neckam, however, had sufficient independence of thought to differ from some of the schoolmen who in his time considered themselves the only judges of literature. He had his own views in morals, and in giving us a glimpse of them, as well as of his other opinions, he throws much light upon the manners, customs, and general tone of thought prevalent in the twelfth century.

The poem entitled "De Laudibus Divinæ Sapientiæ" appears to be a metrical paraphrase or abridgment of the "De Naturis Rerum." It is written in the elegiac metre; and though there are in it many lines which violate classical rules, it is, as a whole, above the ordinary standard of mediæval Latin.

35. LEECHDOMS, WORTCUNNING, AND STARCRAFT OF EARLY ENGLAND; being a Collection of Documents illustrating the History of Science in this Country before the Norman Conquest. Vols. I., II., and III. Collected and edited by the Rev. T. OSWALD COCKAYNE, M.A., of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1864-1866.

This work illustrates not only the history of science, but the history of superstition. In addition to the information bearing directly upon the medical skill and medical faith of the times, there are many passages which incidentally throw light upon the general mode of life and ordinary diet. The volumes are interesting not only in their scientific, but also in their social aspect. The manuscripts from which they have been printed are valuable to the Anglo-Saxon scholar for the illustrations they afford of Anglo-Saxon orthography.

36. ANNALES MONASTICI. Vol. I. :—Annales de Margan, 1066–1232; Annales de Theokesberia, 1066–1263; Annales de Burton, 1004–1263. Vol. II. :—Annales Monasterii de Wintonia, 519–1277; Annales Monasterii de Waverleia, 1–1291. Vol. III. :—Annales Prioratus de Duns-tapia, 1–1297; Annales Monasterii de Bermundeseia, 1042–1432. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, and Registry of the University, Cambridge. 1864–1866.

The present collection of Monastic Annals embraces all the more important chronicles compiled in the different religious houses in England during the thirteenth century. These distinct works are seven in number, and the extreme period which they embrace ranges from the year 1 to 1432, although they refer more especially to the reigns of John, Henry III., and Edward I. Some of these narratives have already appeared in print, but others are printed for the first time.

37. MAGNA VITA S. HUGONIS EPISCOPI LINCOLNIENSIS. From Manuscripts in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and the Imperial Library, Paris. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1864.

This work contains a number of very curious and interesting incidents, and, being the work of a contemporary, is very valuable, not only as a truthful biography of a celebrated ecclesiastic, but as the work of a man who, from personal knowledge, gives notices of passing events, as well as of individuals who were then taking active part in public affairs.

The author, in all probability, was Adam Abbot of Evesham. He was domestic chaplain and private confessor of Bishop Hugh, and in these capacities he was admitted to the closest intimacy. Bishop Hugh was Prior of Witham for 11 years before he became Bishop of Lincoln. His consecration took place on the 21st September 1186; he died on the 16th of November 1200; and was canonized in 1220.

38. CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD THE FIRST. Vol. I. :—ITINERARIUM PEREGRINORUM ET GESTA REGIS RICARDI. Vol. II. :—EPISTOLÆ CANTUARIENSES; the Letters of the Prior and Convent of Christ Church, Canterbury; 1187 to 1199. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Vicar of Navestock, Essex, and Lambeth Librarian. 1864–1865.

The authorship of the Chronicle in Vol. I., hitherto ascribed to Geoffrey Vinesauf, is now more correctly ascribed to Richard, Canon of the Holy Trinity of London. The narrative extends from 1187 to 1199; but its chief interest consists in the minute and authentic narrative which it furnishes of the exploits of Richard I., from his departure from England in December 1189 to his death in 1199. The author states in his prologue that he was an eye-witness of much that he records; and various incidental circumstances which occur in the course of the narrative confirm this assertion.

The Letters in Vol. II., written between 1187 and 1199, are of value as furnishing authentic materials for the history of the ecclesiastical condition of England during the reign of Richard I. They had their origin in a dispute which arose from the attempts of Baldwin and Hubert, archbishops of Canterbury, to found a college of secular canons, a project which gave great umbrage to the monks of Canterbury, who saw in it a design to supplant them in their function of metropolitan chapter. These letters are printed, for the first time, from a MS. belonging to the archiepiscopal library at Lambeth.

39. RECUEIL DES CRONIKES ET ANCHIENNES ISTORIES DE LA GRANT BRETAGNE A PRESENT NOMME ENGLETERRE, par JEHAN DE WAURIN. Vol. I., Albina to 688. Vol. II., 1399-1422. Edited by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864-1868.
40. A COLLECTION OF THE CHRONICLES AND ANCIENT HISTORIES OF GREAT BRITAIN, NOW CALLED ENGLAND, by JOHN DE WAURIN. Albina to 688. (Translation of the preceding Vol. I.) Edited and translated by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864.

This curious chronicle extends from the fabulous period of history down to the return of Edward IV. to England in the year 1471, after the second deposition of Henry VI. The manuscript from which the text of the work is taken is preserved in the Imperial Library at Paris, and is believed to be the only complete and nearly contemporary copy in existence. The work, as originally bound, was comprised in six volumes, since rebound in morocco in 12 volumes, folio maximo, vellum, and is illustrated with exquisite miniatures, vignettes, and initial letters. It was written towards the end of the fifteenth century, having been expressly executed for Louis de Bruges, Seigneur de la Gruthuyse and Earl of Winchester, from whose cabinet it passed into the library of Louis XII. at Blois.

41. POLYCHRONICON RANULPHI HIGDEN, with Trevisa's Translation. Vol. I. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Senior Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1865.

This is one of the many mediæval chronicles which assume the character of a history of the world. It begins with the creation and is brought down to the author's own time, the reign of Edward III. Prefixed to the historical portion of the work is a chapter devoted to geography, in which is given a description of every known land.

To say that the Polychronicon was written in the fourteenth century is to say that it is not free from inaccuracies. It has, however, a value apart from its intrinsic merits. It enables us to form a very fair estimate of the knowledge of history and geography which well-informed readers of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries possessed, for it was then the standard work on general history.

The two English translations, which are printed with the original Latin, afford interesting illustrations of the gradual change of our language, for one was made in the fourteenth century, the other in the fifteenth. The differences between Trevisa's version and that of the unknown writer are often considerable.

42. LE LIVRE DE REIS DE BRITTANIE E LE LIVRE DE REIS DE ENGLETERE. Edited by JOHN GLOVER, M.A., Vicar of Brading, Isle of Wight, formerly Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1865.

These two treatises, though they cannot rank as independent narratives, are nevertheless valuable as careful abstracts of previous historians, especially "Le Livre de Reis de Engleterre." Some various readings are given which are interesting to the philologist as instances of semi-Saxonized French.

It is supposed that Peter of Ickham must have been the author, but no certain conclusion on that point has been arrived at.

43. CHRONICA MONASTERII DE MELSA, AB ANNO 1150 USQUE AD ANNUM 1406. Vols. I. and II. Edited by EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOND, Esq., Assistant Keeper of the Manuscripts, and Egerton Librarian, British Museum. 1866-1867.

The Abbey of Meaux was a Cistercian house, and the work of its abbot is both curious and valuable. It is a faithful and often minute record of the establishment of a religious community, of its progress in forming an ample revenue, of its struggles to maintain its acquisitions, and of its relations to the governing institutions of the country. In addition to the private affairs of the monastery, some light is thrown upon the public events of the time, which are however kept distinct, and appear at the end of the history of each abbot's administration. The text has been printed from what is said to be the autograph of the original compiler, Thomas de Burton, the nineteenth abbot.

44. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM, SIVE, UT VULGO DICITUR, HISTORIA MINOR. Vols. I. and II. 1067–1245. Edited by Sir FREDERIC MADDEN, K.H., Keeper of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1866.

The exact date at which this work was written is, according to the chronicler, 1250. The history is of considerable value as an illustration of the period during which the author lived, and contains a good summary of the events which followed the Conquest. This minor chronicle is, however, based on another work (also written by Matthew Paris), which gives fuller details, and which has been called the 'Historia Major.' The chronicle here published, nevertheless, gives some information which is not to be found in the greater history.

45. LIBER MONASTERII DE HYDA: A CHRONICLE AND CHARTULARY OF HYDE ABBEY, WINCHESTER, 455–1023. Edited, from a Manuscript in the Library of the Earl of Macclesfield, by EDWARD EDWARDS, Esq. 1866.

The "Book of Hyde" is a compilation from much earlier sources, which are usually indicated with considerable care and precision. In many cases, however, the Hyde chronicler appears to correct, to qualify, or to amplify—either from tradition or from sources of information not now discoverable—the statements which, in substance, he adopts. He also mentions, and frequently quotes from, writers whose works are either entirely lost or at present known only by fragments.

There is to be found, in the "Book of Hyde," much information relating to the reign of King Alfred which is not known to exist elsewhere. The volume contains some curious specimens of Anglo-Saxon and Mediæval English.

46. CHRONICON SCOTORUM: A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, from the EARLIEST TIMES to 1135; with a SUPPLEMENT, containing the Events from 1141 to 1150. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1866.

There is, in this volume, a legendary account of the peopling of Ireland and of the adventures which befell the various heroes who are said to have been connected with Irish history. The details are, however, very meagre both for this period and for the time when history becomes more authentic. The plan adopted in the chronicle gives the appearance of an accuracy to which the earlier portions of the work cannot have any claim. The succession of events is marked, year by year, from A.M. 1599 to A.D. 1150. The principal events narrated in the later portion of the work are the invasions of foreigners and the wars of the Irish among themselves. The text has been printed from a MS. preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, written partly in Latin, partly in Irish.

47. THE CHRONICLE OF PIERRE DE LANGTOFT, IN FRENCH VERSE, FROM THE EARLIEST PERIOD TO THE DEATH OF EDWARD I. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1866–1868.

It is probable that Pierre de Langtoft was a canon or Bridlington, in Yorkshire, and that he lived in the reign of Edward I., and during a portion of the reign of Edward II. This chronicle is divided into three parts; in the first is an abridgment of Geoffrey of Monmouth's "Historia Britonum," in the second, a history of the Anglo-Saxon and Norman kings, down to the death of Henry III., and in the third a history of the reign of Edward I. The principal object of the work was apparently to show the justice of Edward's Scottish wars.

The language in which the chronicle is written is singularly corrupt, and is a curious specimen of the French of Yorkshire.

48. THE WAR OF THE GAEDHIL WITH THE GAILL, OR, THE INVASIONS OF IRELAND BY THE DANES AND OTHER NORSEMEN. Edited, with a Translation, by JAMES HENTHORN TODD, D.D., Senior Fellow of Trinity College, and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University, Dublin. 1867.

The work in its present form, in the editor's opinion, is a comparatively modern version of an undoubtedly ancient original. That it was compiled from contemporary materials has been proved by curious incidental evidence. It is stated in the account given of the battle of Clontarf that the full tide in Dublin Bay on the day of the battle (23 April, 1014) coincided with sunrise; and that the returning tide in the evening aided considerably in the defeat of the Danes. The fact has been verified by astronomical calculations, and the inference is that the author of the chronicle, if not himself an eye-witness, must have derived his information from those who were eye-witnesses.

The contents of the work are sufficiently described in its title. The story is told after the manner of the Scandinavian Sagas, with poems and fragments of poems introduced into the prose narrative.

49. GESTA REGIS HENRICI SECUNDI BENEDICTI ABBATIS. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF HENRY II. AND RICHARD I., 1169-1192; known under the name of BENEDICT OF PETERBOROUGH. Vols. I. and II. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, Oxford, and Lambeth Librarian. 1867.

This is a chronicle of the reigns of Henry II. and Richard I., known commonly under the name of Benedict of Peterborough, and is one of the best existing specimens of a class of historical compositions of the first importance to the genuine student.

50. MUNIMENTA ACADEMICA, OR, DOCUMENTS ILLUSTRATIVE OF ACADEMICAL LIFE AND STUDIES AT OXFORD (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. HENRY ANSTAY, M.A., Vicar of St. Wendron, Cornwall, and lately Vice-Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. 1868.

The purpose of this work is to supply materials for a History of Academical Life and Studies in the University of Oxford during the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries.

51. CHRONICA MAGISTRI ROGERI DE HOVEDENE. Vol. I. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1868.

This work has long been justly celebrated, but not thoroughly understood until Mr Stubbs' edition. The earlier portion, extending from 732 to 1148, appears to be a copy of a compilation made in Northumbria about 1161, to which Hoveden added little. From 1148 to 1169—a very valuable portion of this work—the matter is derived from another source, to which Hoveden appears to have supplied little, and not always judiciously.

From 1170 to 1192, is the portion of the work which corresponds with the Chronicle known under the name of Benedict of Peterborough (see No. 49); but it is not a copy, being sometimes an abridgment, at others a paraphrase of it; occasionally the two works entirely agree, showing that both writers had access to the same materials, but dealt with them differently. From 1192 to 1201 may be said to be wholly Hoveden's work; it is extremely valuable, and an authority of the first importance.

WORKS PUBLISHED IN PHOTOZINCOGRAPHY.

DOMESDAY BOOK, or the GREAT SURVEY OF ENGLAND OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, 1086 ; fac-simile of the part relating to each county, separately (with a few exceptions of double counties). Photozincographed, by Her Majesty's Command, at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., &c., Director. 35 Parts, imperial quarto and demy quarto (1861-1868) boards. Price 4s. 6d. to 1l. 1s. each part, according to size ; or, bound in 2 vols., 18l.

This important and unique survey of the greater portion of England* is the oldest and most valuable record in the national archives. It was commenced about the year 1084 and finished in 1086. Its compilation was determined upon at Gloucester by William the Conqueror, in council, in order that he might know what was due to him, in the way of tax, from his subjects, and that each at the same time might know what he had to pay. It was compiled as much for their protection as for the benefit of the sovereign. The nobility and people had been grievously distressed at the time by the king bringing over large numbers of French and Bretons, and quartering them on his subjects, "each according to the measure of his land," for the purpose of resisting the invasion of Cnut, King of Denmark, which was apprehended. The commissioners appointed to make the survey were to inquire the name of each place ; who held it in the time of King Edward the Confessor ; the present possessor ; how many hides were in the manor ; how many ploughs were in demesne ; how many homagers ; how many villeins ; how many cottars ; how many serving men ; how many free tenants ; how many tenants in soccage ; how much wood, meadow, and pasture ; the number of mills and fish-ponds ; what had been added or taken away from the place ; what was the gross value in the time of Edward the Confessor ; the present value ; and how much each free-man or soc-man had, and whether any advance could be made in the value. Thus could be ascertained who held the estate in the time of King Edward ; who then held it ; its value in the time or the late king ; and its value as it stood at the formation of the survey. So minute was the survey, that the writer of the contemporary portion of the Saxon Chronicle records, with some asperity—"So very narrowly he caused it to be traced out, that there was not a single hide, nor one virgate of land, nor even, it is shame to tell, though it seemed to him no shame to do, an ox, nor a cow, nor a swine was left, that was not set down."

Domesday Survey is in two parts or volumes. The first, in folio, contains the counties of Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Chester and Lancaster, Cornwall, Derby, Devon, Dorset, Gloucester, Hants, Hereford, Herts, Huntingdon, Kent, Leicester and Rutland, Lincoln, Middlesex, Northampton, Nottingham, Oxford, Salop, Somerset, Stafford, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick, Wilts, Worcester, and York. The second volume, in quarto, contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

Domesday Book was printed verbatim et literatim during the last century, in consequence of an address of the House of Lords to King George III. in 1767. It was not, however, commenced until 1778, and was completed early in 1783. In 1860, Her Majesty's Government, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, determined to apply the art of photozincography to the production of a fac-simile of Domesday Book, under the superintendence of Colonel Sir Henry James, R.E., director of the Ordnance Survey, Southampton. The fac-simile was completed in 1863.

* For some reason left unexplained, many parts were left unsurveyed ; Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmoreland, and Durham, are not described in the survey ; nor does Lancashire appear under its proper name ; but Furness, and the northern part of Lancashire, as well as the south of Westmoreland, with a part of Cumberland, are included within the West Riding of Yorkshire. That part of Lancashire which lies between the Ribble and Mersey, and which at the time of the survey comprehended 688 manors, is joined to Cheshire. Part of Rutland is described in the counties of Northampton and Lincoln.

FAC-SIMILES of NATIONAL MANUSCRIPTS, from WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR to QUEEN ANNE, selected under the direction of the Master of the Rolls, and Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, by Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., Director of the Ordnance Survey. Price, each Part, double foolscap folio, 1*l.* 1*s.

Part I., with translations and notes (William the Conqueror to Henry VII.), 1865.

Part II. (Henry VIII. and Edward VI.), 1866.

Part III. (Mary and Elizabeth), 1867.

The first Part extends from William the Conqueror to Henry VII., and contains autographs of the kings of England, as well as of many other illustrious personages famous in history, and some interesting charters, letters patent, and state papers. The second Part, for the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI., consists principally of holograph letters and autographs of kings, princes, statesmen, and other persons of great historical interest, who lived during those reigns. The third Part contains similar documents for the reigns of Mary and Elizabeth, including a signed bill of Lady Jane Grey.
